Sec. 2. The judge of probate shall have jurisdiction over the appointment of guardians for dependent, neglected and delinquent children. He shall provide himself with a suitable book in which to record all proceedings taken under the provisions of this act, at the expense of the county, and he shall record in said book all proceedings taken in each case coming before him under this act, but need not record any evidence taken except as it shall seem to him proper and necessary. The reasons for appointing such a guardian shall be entered therein and any parent or the attorney for any child may appeal from the final disposition of the guardianship matter by complying with the law regulating appeals from probate courts.

Sec. 3. Any reputable person resident in the county having knowledge of a child in his county, who appears to be either neglected, dependent or delinquent, may file with the probate court of the county where such child resides a petition in writing, setting forth the facts verified by affidavit. The petition shall set forth the name and residence of each parent, if known, and if both are dead or the residence unknown, then the name and residence of the legal guardian, if known, or if not known, then the name and residence of some near relative, if there be one, and his residence is known. It shall be sufficient that the affidavit is upon information and belief.

Sec. 4. Upon the filing of the petition a summons shall be issued by the judge of probate of such county, requiring the person having custody or control of the child, or with whom the child may be, to appear with the child at a place and time stated in the summons, which time shall not be less than twenty-four (24) hours after service. Such place may be in the county seat of such county, or in any other city or village in the county, at the discretion of the probate judge. The said summons shall be served as provided by law for the service of summons in civil actions. The parents of the child, if living, and their residence is known, or its legal guardian, if one there be, or if there is neither parent nor guardian, or if his or her residence is not known, then some relative, if there be one, and his residence is known, shall be notified of the proceedings. In any case the judge may appoint some suitable person to act in behalf of the child. Where the person to be notified resides in the county, service of notice shall be the same as service of the summons, but in any other case service of notice shall be made in such manner as the court may direct. Notice by registered mail proven by receipt of letter containing same, shall be sufficient. If the person summoned as herein provided shall fail without reasonable cause to appear, and abide the order of the court, or bring the child, he may be proceeded against as in case of contempt of court. In case the party served fails to obey the summons, and in any case when it shall be made to appear to the court that such summons will be ineffectual, a warrant may issue on the order of the court, either against the parent or guardian or the person having custody of the child, or with whom the child may be, or against the child itself. On the return of the summons or other process, or on the appearance of the child with or without summons or other process in person before the court, and on return of the service of notice, if there be any person to be notified or a personal appearance or written consent to the proceedings of the person or persons, if any to be notified, or as soon thereafter as may be, the court shall proceed to hear and dispose of the case. Pending the final disposition of any case, the child may be retained in the possession of the person having the charge of the same, or may be kept in some suitable place designated by the judge of probate, at the expense of the county.

Whenever any child under the age of seventeen (17) years is brought before any municipal court or justice of the peace in any county where this act applies, on a criminal charge, judgment shall not be pronounced against the said child until forty-eight (48) hours shall have elapsed from the time of his arraignment. If at any time before judgment is pronounced proceedings under this act for the guardianship of the said child are commenced in the probate court of the county where said child resides, and a certified copy of the petition and summons therein is filed with the municipal court or justice of the peace having jurisdiction of said child, such court or justice shall forthwith discharge the child from custody, and the matter of the guardianship of the said child shall proceed in the probate court, as hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 5. The court shall have authority to appoint or designate one or more discreet persons of good character to serve as probation officers during the pleasure of the court; such probation officers shall act under the orders of the court in reference to any child or children, committed to his care, and it shall be the duty of said probation officers to make such investigations with regard to any child or children as may be required by the court before or during the hearing of the application for a guardian, and to furnish to the court such information and assistance as the judge may require, and to take charge of any child or children before hearing, during the continuance of the hearing, and after hearing until the guardian shall assume custody of the child, whenever he may be so directed by the court, and to keep such records and to make such reports to the court as the court may order or direct. Probation officers appointed under the authority of this act shall receive the same fees as constables for similar services, including all travel and in addition thereto such salary as the board of county commissioners of the county where such officers are appointed, upon recommendation of the probate judge, shall direct.

Sec. 6. When any child under the age of seventeen (17) years, shall be found to be dependent or neglected, within the meaning of this act, the court may make an order appointing a suitable guardian for such child, and such guardian may be any state institution or association willing to receive it, embracing in its objects the purpose of caring for or obtaining homes for dependent or neglected children, which association shall have been accredited as hereinafter provided. The court may, when the health or condition of the child shall require it, cause the child to be placed in a public hospital or institution for treatment or special care, or in a private hospital or institution which will receive it for like purpose without charge.

Sec. 7. In any case where the court shall appoint as guardian of any dependent or neglected child, any association or individual in accordance with the provisions of this act, the child shall, unless otherwise ordered, become a ward, and be subject to the guardianship of the association or individual to whose care it is committed. Such association shall have authority to place such child in a family home of the same religious belief as the parents of such child, with or without indenture, and may be made party to any proceedings for the legal adoption of the child, and may by its attorney or agent appear in any court where such proceedings are pending and assent to such adoption. And such assent shall be sufficient to authorize the court to enter the proper order or decree of adoption. When adoption proceedings for any child or children are commenced, a copy of the petition in such adoption proceedings shall be filed in the court which appointed the guardian for such child, at least thirty (30) days before any final decree of adoption shall be entered. Such guardianship shall not include the guardianship of any estate of the child.

Sec. 8. If any child so put under guardianship have any property, the income of said property shall, unless more than is necessary, be applied, to the education of such child, and upon cause shown to the probate court appointing such guardian, the principal or any part thereof may be used for the same purpose. In the case of the guardianship of any dependent, neglected or delinquent child by an individual or association, any parent may after the expiration of one year of such guardianship, apply to the probate court which has created such guardianship for the termination thereof; and if it appears by clear and convincing evidence the conditions which produced or contributed to the dependency, neglect, or delinquency of such child no longer exist, the child, unless previously adopted under the provisions of Section 7 of this act, shall be restored to its parents. Ten days' notice by registered mail, or by personal service, of the hearing upon said application, shall be given to such child and the guardian thereof, and such guardian shall produce such child at such hearing.

Sec. 9. In all proceedings under this act the court may continue the hearing from time to time. Pending continuance, the child may be allowed to remain in its own home, subject to the visitation of the probation officers, or may be committed to the care or custody of a probation officer as a temporary guardian. When any child is found to be delinquent within the meaning of this act, the court may appoint as a guardian for the said child, any institution incorporated under the laws of this state that may care for delinquent children and become their guardian, or any suitable state institution. Such state institution shall then receive the said child and shall care for it in accordance with the laws now or hereafter governing such institution. The court may in its discretion, cause any delinquent child to be proceeded against in accordance with the laws that may be in force governing the commission of crimes and misdemeanors, or the violation of municipal ordinances.

Sec. 10. All associations receiving children under this act shall, be subject to the same visitation, inspection and supervision by the state board of control as are the public charitable institutions of this state, and it shall be the duty of said board to pass annually upon the fitness of every such association as may receive, or desire to receive, children under the provisions of this act, and every such association shall annually, at such time as said board shall direct, make report thereto, showing its conditions, management and competency to adequately care for such children as are or may be committed to it and such other facts as said board may require, and upon said board being satisfied that such association is competent and has adequate facilities to care for such children it shall issue to the same, a certificate to that effect, which certificate shall continue in force for one (1) year, unless sooner revoked by said board, and no child shall be committed to any such association, which shall not have received a certificate within fifteen (15) months next preceding the commitment. The court may at any time require from any association receiving or desiring to receive children under the provisions of this act, such reports, information and statements as the judge shall deem proper or necessary for his action and the court shall in no case be required to appoint as guardian of a child any association whose standing, conduct or care of children or ability to care for the same, is not satisfactory to the court.

Sec. 11. It shall be lawful for persons having the right to dispose of a dependent or neglected child to enter into an agreement with any association or institution incorporated under any public or private law of this state for the purpose of aiding, caring for, or placing in homes such children, and being approved as herein provided, for the surrender of such child to such association or institution, to be taken and cared for by such association or institution or put into a family home. Such agreement may contain any and all proper stipulations to that end, and may authorize the association or institution, by its attorney or agent, to appear in any proceedings for the legal adoption of such child, and consent to its adoption and the order of the court made upon such consent shall be binding upon the child and its parents or guardian or other persons, the same as if such person were personally in court and consented thereto whether made party to the proceeding or not.

Sec. 12. The court in appointing an individual, or an association, as a guardian for children, shall, whenever possible, select an individual holding the same religious belief as the parents of said child, or an association which is controlled by persons of like religious faith as the parents of the said child.

Sec. 13. This act shall be liberally construed to the end that its purpose may be carried out, to-wit: That the care, custody and discipline of a child shall approximate as nearly as may be that which should be given by its parents.

Sec. 14. The expenses of the proceedings provided for by this act, including the care of children during continuances, when not with relatives, the necessary expenses for travel and board incurred by the judge of probate when holding court in places other than the county seat, and fifteen cents a folio to the judge of probate for all records made by him, additional to his salary, shall be paid by the parents of the child, if of sufficient means, and if not, so paid by the county upon the certificate of the judge of probate. Suit to recover the same from the parents shall be brought by the county attorney when a judgment therefor could probably be collected.

ARTICLE I.

FORM AND INTERPRETATION.

Section 1. (FORM OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENT.) An instrument to be negotiable must conform to the following requirements:

(1) It must be in writing and signed by the maker or drawer;

(2) Must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money;

(3) Must be payable on demand, or at a fixed or determinable future time;

(4) Must be payable to order or to bearer; and

(5) Where the instrument is addressed to a drawee, he must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty.

Sec. 2. (CERTAINTY AS TO SUM; WHAT CONSTITUTES.) The sum payable is a sum certain within the meaning of this act, although it is to be paid:

(1) With interest or

(2) By stated instalments,

(3) By stated instalments, with a provision that upon default in payment of any instalment or of inetrest, the whole shall become due; or

(4) With exchange, whether at a fixed rate or at the current rate on or at a given place; or

(5) With costs of collection or an attorney's fee, in case payment shall not be made at maturity.

Sec. 3. (WHEN PROMISE IS UNCONDITIONAL.) An unqualified order or promise to pay is unconditional within the meaning of this act, though coupled with:

(1) An indication of a particular fund out of which reimbursement is to be made, or a particular account to be debited with the amount; or

(2) A statement of the transaction which gives rise to the instrument. But an order or promise to pay out of a particular fund is not unconditional.

Sec. 4. (DETERMINABLE FUTURE TIME: WHAT CONSTITUTES.) An instrument is payable at a determinable future time, within the meaning of this act, which is expressed to be payable:

(1) At a fixed period after date or sight; or

(2) On or before a fixed or determinable future time specified therein; or

(3) On or at a fixed period after the occurrence of a specified event, which is certain to happen, though the time of happening be uncertain.

An instrument payable upon a contingency is not negotiable and the happening of the event does not cure the defect.

Sec. 5. (ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS NOT AFFECTING NEGOTIABILITY.) An instrument which contains an order or promise to do any act in addition to the payment of money is not negotiable. But the negotiable character of an instrument otherwise negotiable is not affected by a provision which:

(1) Authorizes the sale of collateral securities in case the instrument be not paid at maturity; or

(2) Authorizes a confession of judgment if the instrument be not paid at maturity; or

(3) Waives the benefit of any law intended for the advantage or protection of the obligor; or

(4) Gives the holder an election to require something to be done in lieu of payment of money.

But nothing in this section shall validate any provision or stipulation otherwise illegal.

Sec. 6. (OMISSIONS; SEAL; PARTICULAR MONEY.) The validity and negotiable character of an instrument are not affected by the fact that:

(1) It is not dated; or

(2) Does not specify the value given, or that any value has been given therefor; or

(3) Does not specify the place where it is drawn or the place where it is payable; or

(4) Bears a seal; or

(5) Designates a particular kind of current money in which payment is to be made.

But nothing in this section shall alter or repeal any statute requiring in certain cases the nature of the consideration to be stated in the instrument.

Sec. 7. (WHEN PAYABLE ON DEMAND.) An instrument is pabable on demand:

(1) When it is expressed to be payable on demand, or at sight, or on presentation; or

(2) In which no time for payment is expressed.

Where an instrument is issued, accepted, or indorsed when overdue, it is, as regards the person so issuing, accepting, or indorsing it, payable on demand.

Sec. 8. (WHEN PAYABLE TO ORDER.) The instrument is payable to order where it is drawn payable to the order of a specified person or to him or his order. It may be drawn payable to the order of:

(1) A payee who is not maker, drawer, or drawee; or

(2) The drawer or maker; or

(3) The drawee; or

(4) Two or more payees jointly; or

(5) One or some of several payees; or

(6) The holder of an office for the time being.

Where the instrument is payable to order the payee must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty.

Sec. 9. (WHEN PAYABLE TO BEARER.) The instrument is payable to bearer:

(1) When it is expressed to be so payable; or

(2) When it is payable to a person named therein or bearer; or

(3) When it is payable to the order of a fictitious or non-existing person, and such fact was known to the person making it so payable; or

(4) When the name of the payee does not purport to be the name of any person; or

(5) When only the last indorsement is an indorsement in blank.

Sec. 10. (TERMS WHEN SUFFICIENT.) The instrument need not follow the language of this act, but any terms are sufficient which clearly indicate an intention to conform to the requirements hereof.

Sec. 11. (DATE, RESUMPTION AS TO.) Where the instrument or an acceptance or any indorsement thereon is dated, such date is deemed prima facie to be the true date of the making, drawing, acceptance, or indorsement as the case may be.

Sec. 12. (ANTE-DATED AND POST DATED.) The instrument is not invalid for the reason only that it is ante-dated or post-dated, provided this is not done for an illegal or fraudulent purpose. The person to whom an instrument so dated is delivered acquires the title thereto as of the date of delivery.

Sec. 13. (WHEN DATE MAY BE INSERTED.) Where an instrument expressed to be payable at a fixed period after date is issued undated, or where the acceptance of an instrument payable at a fixed period after sight is undated, any holder may insert therein the true date of issue or acceptance, and the instrument shall be payable accordingly. The insertion of a wrong date does not avoid the instrument in the hands of a subsequent holder in due course; but as to him, the date so inserted is to be regarded as the true date.

Sec. 14. (BLANKS; WHEN MAY BE FILLED.) Where the instrument is wanting in any material particular, the person in possession thereof has a prima facie authority to complete it by filling up the blanks therein. And a signature on a blank paper delivered by the person making the signature in order that the paper may be converted into a negotiable instrument operates as a prima facie authority to fill it up as such for any amount. In order, however, that any such instrument when completed may be enforced against any person who became a party thereto prior to its completion, it must be filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given, and within a reasonable time. But if any such instrument, after completion, is negotiated to a holder in due course, it is valid and effectual for all purposes in his hands, and he may enforce it as if it had been filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time.

Sec. 15. (INCOMPLETE INSTRUMENT NOT DELIVERED.) Where an incomplete instrument has not been delivered it will not, if completed and negotiated, without authority, be a valid contract in the hands of any holder, as against any person whose signature was placed thereon before delivery.

Sec. 16. (DELIVERY; WHEN EFFECTUAL; WHEN PRESUMED.) Every contract on a negotiable instrument is incomplete and revocable until delivery of the instrument for the purpose of giving effect thereto. As between immediate parties, and as regards a remote party other than a holder in due course, the delivery, in order to be effectual, must be made either by or under the authority of the party making, drawing, accepting or indorsing, as the case may be; and in such case the delivery may be shown to have been conditional, or for a special purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring the property in the instrument. But where the instrument is in the hands of a holder in due course, a valid delivery thereof by all parties prior to him so as to make them liable to him is conclusively presumed. And where the instrument is no longer in the possession of a party whose signature appears thereon, a valid and intentional delivery by him is presumed until the contrary is proved.

Sec. 17. (CONSTRUCTION WHERE INSTRUMENT IS AMBIGUOUS.) Where the language of the instrument is ambiguous, or there are omissions therein, the following rules of construction apply:

(1) Where the sum payable is expressed in words and also in figures and there is a discrepancy between the two, the sum denoted by the words is the sum payable; but if the words are ambiguous or uncertain, reference may be had to the figures to fix the amount;

(2) Where the instrument provides for the payment of interest, without specifying the date from which interest is to run, the interest runs from the date of the instrument, and if the instrument is undated, from the issue thereof;

(3) Where the instrument is not dated, it will be considered to be dated as of the time it was issued;

(4) Where there is a conflict between the written and printed provisions of the instrument, the written provisions prevail;

(5) Where the instrument is so ambiguous that there is doubt whether it is a bill or note, the holder may treat it as either at his election;

(6) Where a signature is so placed upon the instrument that it is not clear in what capacity the person making the same intended to sign, he is to be deemed an indorser;

(7) Where an instrument containing the words "I promise to pay" is signed by two or more persons, they are deemed to be jointly and severally liable thereon.

Sec. 18. (LIABILITY OF PERSON SIGNING IN TRADE OR ASSUMED NAME.) No person is liable on the instrument whose signature does not appear thereon, except as herein otherwise expressly provided. But one who signs in a trade or assumed name will be liable to the same extent as if he had signed in his own name.

Sec. 19. (SIGNATURE BY AGENT; AUTHORITY; HOW SHOWN.) The signature of any party may be made by a duly authorized agent. No particular form of appointment is necessary for this purpose; and the authority of the agent may be established as in other cases of agency.

Sec. 20. (LIABILITY OF PERSON SIGNING AS AGENT, ETC.) Where the instrument contains or a person adds to his signature words indicating that he signs for or on behalf of a principal, or in a representative capacity, he is not liable on the instrument if he was duly authorized; but the mere addition of words describing him as an agent, or as filling a representative character, without disclosing his principal, does not exempt him from personal liability.

Sec. 21. (SIGNATURE BY PROCURATION; EFFECT OF.) A signature by "procuration" operates as notice that the agent has but a limited authority to sign, and the principal is bound only in case the agent in so signing acted within the actual limits of his authority.

Sec. 22. (EFFECT OF INDORSEMENT BY INFANT OR CORPORATION.) The indorsement or assignment of the instrument by a corporation or by an infant passes the property therein, notwithstanding that from want of capacity the corporation or infant may incur no liability thereon.

Sec. 23. (FORGED SIGNATURE; EFFECT OF.) When a signature is forged or made without the authority of the person whose signature it purports to be, it is wholly inoperative, and no right to retain the instrument, or to give a discharge therefor, or to enforce payment thereof against any party thereto, can be acquired through or under such signature, unless the party, against whom it is sought to enforce such right, is precluded from setting up the forgery or want of authority.

ARTICLE II.

CONSIDERATION.

Sec. 24. (PRESUMPTION OF CONSIDERATION.) Every negotiable instrument is deemed prima facie to have been issued for a valuable consideration; and every person whose signature appears thereon to have become a party thereto for value.

Sec. 25. (CONSIDERATION, WHAT CONSTITUTES.) Value is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or pre-existing debt constitutes value; and is deemed such whether the instrument is payable on demand or at a future time.

Sec. 26. (WHAT CONSTITUTES HOLDER FOR VALUE.) Where value has at any time been given for the instrument, the holder is deemed a holder for value in respect to all parties who became such prior to that time.

Sec. 27. (WHEN LIEN ON INSTRUMENT CONSTITUTES HOLDER FOR VALUE.) Where the holder has a lien on the instrument, arising either from contract or by implication of law, he is deemed a holder for value to the extent of his lien.

Sec. 28. (EFFECT OF WANT OF CONSIDERATION.) Absence or failure of consideration is matter of defense as against any person not a holder in due course; and partial failure of consideration is a defence pro tanto, whether the failure is an ascertained and liquidated amount or otherwise.

Sec. 29. (LIABILITY OF ACCOMMODATION PARTY.) An accommodation party is one who has signed the instrument as maker, drawer, acceptor, or indorser, without receiving value therefor, and for the purpose of lending his name to some other person. Such a person is liable on the instrument to a holder for value, notwithstanding such holder at the time of taking the instrument knew him to be only an accommodation party.

ARTICLE III.

NEGOTIATION.

Sec. 30. (WHAT CONSTITUTES NEGOTIATION.) An instrument is negotiated when it is transferred from one person to another in such maner as to constitute the transferee the holder thereof. If payable to bearer it is negotiated by delivery; if payable to order it is negotiated by the indorsement of the holder completed by delivery.

Sec. 31. (INDORSEMENT; HOW MADE.) The indorsement must be written on the instrument itself or upon a paper attached thereto. The signature of the indorser, without additional words, is a sufficient indorsement.

Sec. 32. (INDORSEMENT MUST BE OF ENTIRE INSTRUMENT.) The indorsement must be an indorsement of the entire instrument. An indorsement which purports to transfer to the indorsee a part only of the amount payable, or which purports to transfer the instrument to two or more indorsees severally, does not operate as a negotiation of the instrument. But where the instrument has been paid in part, it may be indorsed as to the residue.

Sec. 33. (KINDS OF INDORSEMENT.) An indorsement may be either special or in blank; and it may also be either restrictive or qualified, or conditional.

Sec. 34. (SPECIAL INDORSEMENT; INDORSEMENT IN BLANK.) A special indorsement specifies the person to whom, or to whose order, the instrument is to be payable; and the indorsement of such indorsee is necessary to the further negotiation of the instrument. An indorsement in blank specifies no indorsee, and an instrument so indorsed is payable to bearer, and may be negotiated by delivery.

Sec. 35. (BLANK INDORSEMENT; HOW CHANGED TO SPECIAL INDORSEMENT.) The holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing over the signature of the indorser in blank any contract consistent with the character of the indorsement.

(1) Prohibits the further negotiation of the instrument; or

(2) Constitutes the indorsee the agent of the indorser; or

(3) Vests the title in the indorsee in trust for or to the use of some other person.

But, the mere absence of words implying power to negotiate does not make an indorsement restrictive.

Sec. 37. (EFFECT OF RESTRICTING INDORSEMENT; RIGHTS OF INDORSEE.) A restrictive indorsement confers upon the indorsee the right,

(1) To receive payment of the instrument;

(2) To bring any action thereon that the indorser could bring;

(3) To transfer his rights as such indorsee, where the form of the indorsement authorizes him to do so.

But all subsequent indorsees acquire only the title of the first indorsee under the restrictive indorsement.

Sec. 38. (QUALIFIED INDORSEMENT.) A qualified indorsement constitutes the indorser a mere assignor of the title to the instrument. It may be made by adding to the indorser's signature the words "without recourse" or any words of similar import. Such an indorsement does not impair the negotiable character of the instrument.

Sec. 39. (CONDITIONAL INDORSEMENT.) Where an indorsement is conditional, a party required to pay the instrument may disregard the condition, and make payment to the indorsee or his transferee, whether the condition has been fulfilled or not. But any person to whom an instrument is so indorsed is negotiated, will hold the same, or the proceeds thereof, subject to the rights of the person indorsing conditionally.

Sec. 40. (INDORSEMENT OF INSTRUMENT PAYABLE TO BEARER.) Where an instrument, payable to bearer, is indorsed specially, it may nevertheless be further negotiated by delivery; but the person indorsing specially is liable as indorser to only such holders as make title through his indorsement.

Sec. 41. (INDORSEMENT WHERE PAYABLE TO TWO OR MORE PERSONS.) Where an instrument is payable to the order of two or more payees or indorsees who are not partners, all must indorse, unless the one indorsing has authority to indorse for the others.

Sec. 42. (EFFECT OF INSTRUMENT DRAWN OR INDORSED TO A PERSON AS CASHIER.) Where an instrument is drawn or indorsed to a person as "Cashier" or other fiscal officer of a bank or corporation, it is deemed prima facie to be payable to the bank or corporation of which he is such officer; and may be negotiated by either the indorsement of the bank or corporation, or the indorsement of the officer.

Sec. 43. (INDORSEMENT WHERE NAME IS MISSPELLED, ET CETERA.) Where the name of a payee or indorsee is wrongly designated or misspelled, he may indorse the instrument as therein described, adding, if he think fit, his proper signature.

Sec. 44. (INDORSEMENT IN REPRESENTATIVE CAPACITY.) Where any person is under obligation to indorse in a representative capacity, he may indorse in such terms as to negative personal liability.

Sec. 45. (TIME OF INDORSEMENT; PRESUMPTION.) Except where an indorsement bears date after the maturity of the instrument, every negotiation is deemed prima facie to have been effected before the instrument was overdue.

Sec. 46. (PLACE OF INDORSEMENT; PRESUMPTION.) Except where the contrary appears, every indorsement is presumed prima facie to have been made at the place where the instrument is dated.

Sec. 47. (CONTINUATION OF NEGOTIABLE CHARACTER.) An instrument negotiable in its origin continues to be negotiable until it has been restrictively indorsed or discharged by payment or otherwise.

Sec. 48. (STRIKING OUT INDORSEMENT.) The holder may at any time strike out any indorsement which is not necessary to his title. The indorser whose indorsement is struck out, and all indorsers subsequent to him, are thereby relieved from liability on the instrument.

Sec. 49. (TRANSFER WITHOUT INDORSEMENT; EFFECT OF.) Where the holder of an instrument payable to his order transfers it for value without indorsing it, the transfer vests in the transferee such title as the transferor had therein, and the transferee acquires, in addition, the right to have the indorsement of the transferor. But for the purpose of determining whether the transferee is a holder in due course, the negotiation takes effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made.

Sec. 50. (WHEN PRIOR PARTY MAY NEGOTIATE INSTRUMENT.) Where an instrument is negotiated back to a prior party, such party may, subject to the provisions of this act, reissue and further negotiate the same. But he is not entitled to enforce payment thereof against any intervening party to whom he was personally liable.

ARTICLE IV.

RIGHTS OF THE HOLDER.

Sec. 51. (RIGHT OF HOLDER TO SUE; PAYMENT.) The holder of a negotiable instrument may sue thereon in his own name and payment to him in due course discharges the instrument.

Sec. 52. (WHAT CONSTITUTES A HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.) A holder in due course is a holder who has taken the instrument under the following conditions:

(1) That it is complete and regular upon its face;

(2) That he became the holder of it before it was overdue, and without notice that it had been previously dishonored, if such was the fact;

(3) That he took it in good faith and for value;

(4) That at the time it was negotiated to

Sec. 53. (WHEN PERSON NOT DEEMED HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.) Where an instrument payable on demand is negotiated him he had no notice of any infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating it.
an unreasonable length of time after its issue, the holder is not deemed a holder in due course.

Sec. 54. (NOTICE BEFORE FULL AMOUNT PAID.) Where the transferee receives notice of an infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same before he has paid the full amount agreed to be paid therefor, he will be deemed a holder in due course only to the extent of the amouunt theretofore paid by him.

Sec. 55. (WHEN TITLE DEFECTIVE.) The title of a person who negotiates an instrument is defective within the meaning of this act when he obtained the instrument, or any signature thereto, by fraud, duress, or force and fear, or other unlawful means, or for an illegal consideration, or when he negotiates it in breach of faith, or under such circumstances as amount to a fraud.

Sec. 56. (WHAT CONSTITUTES NOTICE OF DEFECT.) To constitute notice of an infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same, the person to whom it is negotiated must have had actual knowledge of the infirmity or defect, or knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounted to bad faith.

Sec. 57. (RIGHTS OF HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.) A holder in due course holds the instrument free from any defect of title of prior parties, and free from defenses available to prior parties among themselves, and may enforce payment of the instrument for the full amount thereof against all parties liable thereon.

Sec. 58. (WHEN SUBJECT TO ORIGINAL DEFENSES.) In the hands of any holder other than a holder in due course, a negotiable instrument is subject to the same defenses as if it were non-negotiable. But a holder who derives his title through a holder in due course, and who is not himself a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument, has all the rights of such former holder in respect of all parties prior to the latter.

Sec. 59.—(WHO DEEMED HOLDER IN DUE COURSE.) Every holder is deemed prima facie to be a holder in due course; but when it is shown that the title of any person who has negotiated the instrument was defective, the burden is on the holder to prove that he or some person under whom he claims acquired the title as holder in due course. But the last-mentioned rule does not apply in favor of a party who became bound on the instrument prior to the acquisition of such defective title.

ARTICLE V.

LIABILITIES OF PARTIES.

Sec. 60.—(LIABILITY OF MAKER.) The maker of a negotiable instrument, by making it engages that he will pay it according to its tenor, and admits the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse.

Sec. 61.—(LIABILITY OF DRAWER.) The drawer by drawing the instrument admits the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse; and engages that on due presentment the instrument will be accepted or paid, or both, according to its tenor, and that, if it be dishonored and the necessary proceedings on dishonor be duly taken, he will pay the amount thereof to the holder, or to any subsequent indorser who may be compelled to pay it. But the drawer may insert in the instrument an express stipulation negativing or limiting his own liability to the holder.

Sec. 62.—(LIABILITY OF ACCEPTOR.) The acceptor by accepting the instrument engages that he will pay it according to the tenor of his acceptance; and admits,

(1) The existence of the drawer, the genuineness of his signature, and his capacity and authority to draw the instrument; and

(2) The existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse.

Sec. 63.—(WHEN PERSON DEEMED INDORSER.) A person placing his signature upon an instrument, otherwise than as maker, drawer or acceptor, is deemed to be an indorser, unless he clearly indicates by appropriate words his intention to be bound in some other capacity.

Sec. 64.—(LIABILITY OF IRREGULAR INDORSERS.) Where a person not otherwise a party to an instrument, places thereon his signature in blank before delivery he is liable as indorser, in accordance with the following rules:

(1) If the instrument is payable to the order of a third person, he is liable to the payee and to all subsequent parties.

(2) If the instrument is payable to the order of the maker or drawer, or is payable to bearer, he is liable to all parties subsequent to the maker or drawer.

(3) If he signs for the accommodation of the payee, he is liable to all parties subsequent to the payee.

Sec. 65.—(WARRANTY WHERE NEGOTIATION BY DELIVERY, ET CETERA.) Every person negotiating an instrument by delivery or by a qualified indorsement, warrants—

(1) That the instrument is genuine and in all respects what it purports to be;

(2) That he has a good title to it;

(3) That all prior parties had capacity to contract;

(4) That he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair the validity of the instrument or render it valueless.

But when the negotiation is by delivery only the warranty extends in favor of no holder other than the immediate transferee.

The provisions of subdivision three of this section do not apply to persons negotiating public or corporation securities, other than bills and notes.

Sec. 66.—(LIABILITY OF GENERAL INDORSER.) Every indorser who indorses without qualification, warrants to all subsequent holders in due course:

(1) The matters and things mentioned in subdivisions one, two and three of the next preceding section; and

(2) That the instrument is at the time of his indorsement valid and subsisting.

And, in addition, he engages that on due presentment, it shall be accepted or paid, or both, as the case may be, according to its tenor, and that if it be dishonored, and the necessary proceedings on dishonor be duly taken, he will pay the amount thereof to the holder or to any subsequent indorser who may be compelled to pay it.

Sec. 67.—(LIABILITY OF INDORSER WHERE PAPER NEGOTIABLE BY DELIVERY.) Where a person places his indorsement on an instrument negotiable by delivery he incurs all the liabilities of an indorser.

Sec. 68.—(ORDER IN WHICH INDORSERS ARE LIABLE.) As respects one another indorsers are liable prima facie in the order in which they indorse; but evidence is admissable to show that as between or among themselves they have agreed otherwise. Joint payees or joint indorsees who indorse are deemed to indorse jointly and severally.

Sec. 69.—(LIABILITY OF AN AGENT OR BROKER.) Where a broker or other agent negotiates an instrument without indorsement he incurs all the liabilities prescribed by Section sixty-five of this act, unless he discloses the name of his principal, and the fact that he is acting only as an agent.

ARTICLE VI.

PRESENTMENT FOR PAYMENT.

Sec. 70.—(EFFECT OF WANT OF DEMAND ON PRINCIPAL DEBTOR.) Presentment for payment is not necessary in order to charge the person primarily liable on the instrument, but if the instrument is, by its terms, payable at a special place, and he is able and willing to pay it there at maturity, such ability and willingness are equivalent to a tender of payment upon his part. But except as herein otherwise provided, presentment for payment is necessary in order to charge the drawer and indorsers.

Sec. 71.—(PRESENTMENT WHERE INSTRUMENT IS NOT PAYABLE ON DEMAND AND WHERE PAYABLE ON DEMAND.) Where the instrument is not payable on demand, presentment must be made on the day it falls due. Where it is payable on demand, presentment must be made within a reasonable time after its issue, except that in the case of a bill of exchange, presentment for payment will be sufficient if made within a reasonable time after the last negotiation thereof.

Sec. 72.—(WHAT CONSTITUTES A SUFFICIENT PRESENTMENT.) Presentment for payment, to be sufficient, must be made—

(1) By the holder, or by some person authorized to receive payment on his behalf;

(2) At a reasonable hour on a business day;

(3) At a proper place as herein defined;

(4) To the person primarily liable on the instrument, or, if he is absent or inaccessible, to any person found at the place where the presentment is made.

Sec. 73.—(PLACE OF PRESENTMENT.) Presentment for payment is made at the proper place—

(1) Where a place of payment is specified in the instrument and it is there presented;

(2) Where no place of payment is specified, but the address of the person to make payment is given in the instrument and it is there presented;

(3) Where no place of payment is specified and no address is given and the instrument is presented at the usual place of business or residence of the person to make payment;

(4) In any other case if presented to the person to make payment wherever he can be found, or if presented at his last known place of business or residence.

Sec. 74.—(INSTRUMENT MUST BE EXHIBITED.) The instrument must be exhibited to the person from whom payment is demanded, and when it is paid must be delivered up to the party paying it.

Sec. 75.—(PRESENTMENT WHERE INSTRUMENT PAYABLE AT BANK.) Where the instrumeqt is payable at a bank, presentment for payment must be made during banking hours, unless the person to make payment has no funds there to meet it at any time during the day, in which case presentment at any hour before the bank is closed on that day is sufficient.

Sec. 76.—(PRESENTMENT WHERE PRINCIPAL DEBTOR IS DEAD.) Where a person primarily liable on the instrument is dead, and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment must be made to his personal representative if such there be, and if, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, he can be found.

Sec. 77.—(PRESENTMENT TO PERSONS LIABLE AS PARTNERS.) Where the persons primarily liable on the instrument are liable as partners, and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment may be made to any one of them, even though there has been a dissolution of the firm.

Sec. 78.—(PRESENTMENT TO JOINT DEBTORS.) Where there are several persons, not partners, primarily liable on the instrument, and no place of payment is specified, presentment must be made to them all.

Sec. 79.—(WHEN PRESENTMENT NOT REQUIRED TO CHARGE THE DRAWER.) Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge the drawer where he has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will pay the instrument.

Sec. 80.—(WHEN PRESENTMENT NOT REQUIRED TO CHARGE THE INDORSER.) Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge an indorser where the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation and he has no reason to expect that the instrument will be paid if presented.

Sec. 81.—(WHEN DELAY IN MAKING PRESENTMENT IS EXCUSED.) Delay in making presentment for payment is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder, and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, presentment must be made with reasonable diligence.

Sec. 82.—(WHEN PRESENTMENT MAY BE DISPENSED WITH.) Presentment for payment is dispensed with—

(1) Where, after the exercise of reasonable diligence presentment as required by this act cannot be made;

(2) Where the drawee is a fictitious person;

(3) By waiver of presentment, express or implied.

Sec. 83.—(WHEN INSTRUMENT DISHONORED BY NONPAYMENT.) The instrument is dishonored by nonpayment when—

(1) It is duly presented for payment and payment is refused or cannot be obtained; or

(2) Presentment is excused and the instrument is overdue and unpaid.

Sec. 84.—(LIABILITY OF PERSON SECONDARILY LIABLE, WHEN INSTRUMENT DISHONORED.) Subject to the provisions of this act, when the instrument is dishonored by nonpayment, an immediate right of recourse to all parties secondarily liable thereon accrues to the holder.

Sec. 85.—(TIME OF MATURITY.) Every negotiable instrument is payable at the time fixed therein without grace. When the day of maturity falls upon Sunday, or a holiday, the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day. Instruments falling due (or becoming payable) on Saturday are to be presented for payment on the next succeeding business day, except that instruments payable on demand may, at the option of the holder, be presented for payment before 12 o'clock noon on Saturday when that entire day is not a holiday.

Sec. 86.—(TIME, HOW COMPUTED.) Where the instrument is payable at a fixed period after date, after sight, or after the happening of a specified event, the time of payment is determined by excluding the day from which the time is to begin to run, and by including the date of payment.

Sec. 87.—(RULE WHERE INSTRUMENT PAYABLE AT BANK.) Where the instrument is made payable at a bank it shall not be equivalent to an order to the bank to pay the same for the account of the principal debtor thereon.

Sec. 88.—(WHAT CONSTITUTED PAYMENT IN DUE COURSE.) Payment is made in due course when it is made at or after the maturity of the instrument to the holder thereof in good faith and without notice that his title is defective.

ARTICLE VII.

NOTICE OF DISHONOR.

Sec. 89.—(TO WHOM NOTICE OF DISHONOR MUST BE GIVEN.) Except as herein otherwise provided, when a negotiable instrument has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment, notice of dishonor must be given to the drawer and to each indorser, and any drawer or indorser to whom such notice is not given is discharged.

Sec. 90.—(BY WHOM GIVEN.) The notice may be given by or on behalf of the holder, or by or on behalf of any party to the instrument who might be compelled to pay it to the holder, and who upon taking it up would have a right to reimbursement from the party to whom the notice is given.

Sec. 91.—(NOTICE GIVEN BY AGENT.) Notice of dishonor may be given by an agent either in his own name or in the name of any party entitled to give notice, whether that party be his principal or not.

Sec. 92.—(EFFECT OF NOTICE GIVEN ON BEHALF OF HOLDER.) Where notice is given by or on behalf of the holder, it enures for the benefit of all subsequent holders and all prior parties who have a right of recourse against the party to whom it is given.

Sec. 93.—(EFFECT WHERE NOTICE IS GIVEN BY PARTY ENTITLED THERETO.) Where notice is given by or on behalf of a party entitled to give notice, it enures for the benefit of the holder and all parties subsequent to the party to whom notice is given.

Sec. 94.—(WHEN AGENT MAY GIVE NOTICE.) Where the instrument has been dishonored in the hands of an agent he may either himself give notice to the parties liable thereon, or he may give notice to his principal. If he gives notice to his principal he must do so within the same time as if he were the holder, and the principal upon the receipt of such notice himself the same time for giving notice as if the agent had been an independent holder.

Sec. 95.—(WHEN NOTICE SUFFICIENT.) A written notice need not be signed, and an insufficient written notice may be supplemented and validated by verbal communication. A misdescription of the instrument does not vitiate the notice unless the party to whom the notice is given is in fact misled thereby.

Sec. 96.—(FORM OF NOTICE.) The notice may be in writing or merely oral and may be given in any terms which sufficiently identify the instrument, and indicate that it has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment. It may in all cases be given by delivering it personally or through the mails.

Sec. 97.—(TO WHOM NOTICE MAY BE GIVEN.) Notice of dishonor may be given either to the party himself or to his agent in that behalf.

Sec. 98.—(NOTICE WHERE PARTY IS DEAD.) When any party is dead, and his death is known to the party giving notice, the notice must be given to a personal representative, if there be one, and if with reasonable diligence he can be found. If there be no personal representative, notice may be sent to the last residence or last place of business of the deceased.

Sec. 99.—(NOTICE TO PARTNERS.) Where the parties to be notified are partners, notice to any one partner is notice to the firm even though there has been a dissolution.

Sec. 100.—(NOTICE TO PERSONS JOINTLY LIABLE.) Notice to joint parties who are not partners must be given to each of them unless one of them has authority to receive such notice for the others.

Sec. 101.—(NOTICE TO BANKRUPT.) Where a party has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent, or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, notice may be given either to the party himself or to his trustee or assignee.

Sec. 102.—(TIME WITHIN WHICH NOTICE MUST BE GIVEN.) Notice may be given as soon as the instrument is dishonored; and unless delay is excused as hereinafter provided, must be given within the times fixed by this act.

Sec. 103.—(WHERE PARTIES RESIDE IN SAME PLACE.) Where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in the same place, notice must be given within the following times:

(1) If given at the place of business of the person to receive notice, it must be given before the close of business hours on the day following;

(2) If given at his residence, it must be given before the usual hours of rest on the day following;

(3) If sent by mail it must be deposited in the postoffice in time to reach him in usual course on the day following.

Sec. 104.—(WHERE PARTIES RESIDE IN DIFFERENT PLACES.) Where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in different places, the notice must be given within the following times:

(1) If sent by mail it must be deposited in the postoffice in time to go by mail the day following the day of dishonor, or if there be no mail at a convenient hour on that day, by the next mail thereafter.

(2) If given otherwise than through the postoffice, then within the time that notice would have been received in due course of mail, if it had been deposited in the postoffice within the time specified in the last subdivision.

Sec. 105.—(WHEN SENDER DEEMED TO HAVE GIVEN DUE NOTICE.) Where notice of dishonor is duly addressed and deposited in the postoffice, the sender is deemed to have given due notice, notwithstanding any miscarriage in the mails.

Sec. 106.—(DEPOSIT IN POSTOFFICE, WHAT CONSTITUTES.) Notice is deemed to have been deposited in the post-office when deposited in any branch post-office or in any letter box under the control of the post-office department.

Sec. 107.—(NOTICE TO SUBSEQUENT PARTY, TIME OF.) Where a party receives notice of dishonor, he has, after the receipt of such notice, the same time for giving notice to antecedent parties that the holder has after the dishonor.

Sec. 108.—(WHERE NOTICE MUST BE SENT.) Where a party has added an address to his signature, notice of dishonor must be sent to that address; but if he has not given such address, then the notice must be sent as follows:—

(1) Either to the post-office nearest to his place of residence, or to the post-office where he is accustomed to receive his letters; or

(2) If he live in one place, and have his place of business in another, notice may be sent to either place; or

(3) If he is sojourning in another place, notice may be sent to the place where he is so sojourning.

But where the notice is actually received by the party within the time specified in this act, it will be sufficient, though not sent in accordance with the requirements of this section.

Sec. 109.—(WAIVER OF NOTICE.) Notice of dishonor may be waived, either before the time of giving notice has arrived, or after the omission to give due notice, and the waiver may be express or implied.

Sec. 110.—(WHOM AFFECTED BY WAIVER.) Where the waiver is embodied in the instrument itself, it is binding upon all parties; but where it is written above the signature of an indorser, it binds him only.

Sec. 111.—(WAIVER OF PROTEST.) A waiver of protest, whether in the case of a foreign bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument, is deemed to be a waiver not only of a formal protest, but also of presentment and notice of dishonor.

Sec. 112.—(WHEN NOTICE IS DISPENSED WITH.) Notice of dishonor is dispensed with when, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, it cannot be given to or does not reach the parties sought to be charged.

Sec. 113.—(DELAY IN GIVING NOTICE; HOW EXCUSED.) Delay in giving notice of dishonor is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder, and not imputable to this default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, notice must be given with reasonable diligence.

Sec. 114.—(WHEN NOTICE NEED NOT BE GIVEN TO DRAWER.) Notice of dishonor is not required to be given to the drawer in either of the following cases:—

(1) Where the drawer and drawee are the same person;

(2) When the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract;

(3) When the drawer is the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment.

(4) Where the drawer has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will honor the instrument;

(5) Where the drawer has countermanded payment.

Sec. 115.—(WHEN NOTICE NEED NOT BE GIVEN TO INDORSER.) Notice of dishonor is not required to be given to an indorser in either of the following cases:—

(1) Where the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract, and the indorser was aware of the fact at the time he indorsed the instrument;

(2) Where the indorser is the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment;

(3) Where the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation.

Sec. 116.—(NOTICE OF NON-PAYMENT WHERE ACCEPTANCE REFUSED.) Where due notice of dishonor by non-acceptance has been given notice of a subsequent dishonor by non-payment is not wecessary, unless in the meantime the instrument has been accepted.

Sec. 117.—(EFFECT OF OMISSION TO GIVE NOTICE OF NON-ACCEPTANCE.) An omission to give notice of dishonor by non-acceptance does not prejudice the rights of a holder in due course subsequent to the omission.

Sec. 118.—(WHEN PROTEST NEED NOT BE MADE; WHEN MUST BE MADE.) Where any negotiable instrument has been dishonored it may be protested for non-acceptance or non-payment, as the case may be; but protest is not required except in the case of foreign bills of exchange.

ARTICLE VIII.

DISCHARGE OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

Sec. 119.—(INSTRUMENTS; HOW DISCHARGED.) A negotiable instrument is discharged:—

(1) By payment in due course by or on behalf of the principal debtor;

(2) By payment in due course by the party accommodated, where the instrument is made or accepted for accommodation;

(3) By the intentional cancellation thereof by the holder;

(4) By any other act which will discharge a simple contract for the payment of money;

(5) When the principal debtor becomes the holder of the instrument at or after maturity in his own right.

(1) By any act which discharges the instrument;

(2) By the intentional cancellation of his signature by the holder;

(3) By the discharge of a prior party;

(4) By a valid tender of payment made by a prior party;

(5) By a release of the principal debtor, unless the holder's right of recourse against the party secondarily liable is expressly reserved;

(6) By any agreement binding upon the holder to extend the time of payment, or to postpone the holder's right to enforce the instrument, unless made with the assent of the party secondarily liable, or unless the right of recourse against such party is expressly reserved.

Sec. 121.—(RIGHT OF PARTY WHO DISCHARGES INSTRUMENT.) Where the instrument is paid by a party secondarily liable thereon, it is not discharged; but the party so paying it is remitted to his former rights as regards all prior parties, and he may strike out his own and all subsequent indorsements, and again negotiate the instrument, except:—

(1) Where it is payable to the order of a third person, and has been paid by the drawer; and

(2) Where it was made or accepted for accommodation, and has been paid by the party accommodated.

Sec. 122.—(RENUNCIATION BY HOLDER.) The holder may expressly renounce his rights against any party to the instrument, before, at or after its maturity. An absolute and unconditional renunciation of his rights against the principal debtor made at or after the maturity of the instrument discharges the instrument. But a renunciation does not affect the rights of a holder in due course without notice. A renunciation must be in writing, unless the instrument is delivered up to the person primarily liable thereon.

Sec. 123.—(CANCELLATION; UNINTENTIONAL; BURDEN OF PROOF.) A cancellation made unintentionally, or under a mistake or without the authority of the holder, is inoperative; but where an instrument or any signature thereon appears to have been cancelled the burden of proof lies on the party who alleges that the cancellation was made unintentionally, or under a mistake or without authority.

Sec. 124.—(ALTERATION OF INSTRUMENT; EFFECT OF.) Where a negotiable instrument is materially altered without the assent of all parties liable thereon, it is avoided, except as against a party who has himself made, authorized or assented to the alteration, and subsequent indorsers.

But when an instrument has been materially altered and is in the hands of a holder in due course, not a party to the alteration, he may enforce payment thereof according to its original tenor.

Sec. 125.—(WHAT CONSTITUTES A MATERIAL ALTERATION.) Any alteration which changes:—

(1) The date;

(2) The sum payable, either for principal or interest;

(3) The time or place of payment;

(4) The number or the relations of the parties;

(5) The medium or currency in which payment is to be made.

Or which adds a place of payment where no place of payment is specified, or any other change or addition which alters the effect of the instrument in any respect, is a material alteration.

TITLE II.

BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

ARTICLE I.

FORM AND INTERPRETATION.

Sec. 126.—(BILL OF EXCHANGE DEFINED.) A bill of exchange is an unconditional order in writing addressed by one person to another, signed by the person giving it, requiring the person to whom it is addressed to pay on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time a sum certain in money to order or to bearer.

Sec. 127.—(BILL NOT AN ASSIGNMENT OF FUNDS IN HANDS OF DRAWEE.) A bill of itself does not operate as an assignment of the funds in the hands of the drawee available for the payment thereof, and the drawee is not liable on the bill unless and until he accepts the same.

Sec. 128.—(BILL ADDRESSED TO MORE THAN ONE DRAWEE.) A bill may be addressed to two or more drawees jointly, whether they are partners or not; but not to two or more drawees in the alternative or in succession.

Sec. 129.—(INLAND AND FOREIGN BILLS OF EXCHANGE.) An inland bill of exchange is a bill which is, or on its face purports to be, both drawn and payable within this State. Any other bill is a foreign bill. Unless the contrary appears on the face of the bill, the holder may treat it as an inland bill.

Sec. 130.—(WHEN BILL MAY BE TREATED AS PROMISSORY NOTE.) Where in a bill drawer and drawee are the same person, or where the drawee is a fictitious person, or a person not having capacity to contract, the holder may treat the instrument, at his option, either as a bill of exchange or a promissory note.

Sec. 131.—(REFEREE IN CASE OF NEED.) The drawer of a bill and any indorser may insert thereon the name of a person to whom the holder may resort in case of need, that is to say, in case the bill is dishonored by non-acceptance or non-payment. Such person is called the referee in case of need. It is in the option of the holder to resort to the referee in case of need or not as he may see fit.

ARTICLE II.

ACCEPTANCE.

Sec. 132.—(ACCEPTANCE; HOW MADE, ET CETERA.) The acceptance of a bill is the signification by the drawee of his assent to the order of the drawer. The acceptance must be in writing and signed by the drawee. It must not express that the drawee will perform his promise by any other means than the payment of money.

Sec. 133.—(HOLDER ENTITLED TO ACCEPTANCE ON FACE OF BILL.) The holder of a bill presenting the same for acceptance may require that the acceptance be written on the bill and, if such request is refused, may treat the bill as dishonored.

Sec. 134.—(ACCEPTANCE BY SEPARATE INSTRUMENT.) Where an acceptance is written on a paper other than the bill itself, it does not bind the acceptor except in favor of a person to whom it is shown and who, on the faith thereof, receives the bill for value.

Sec. 135.—(PROMISE TO ACCEPT; WHEN EQUIVALENT TO ACCEPTANCE.) An unconditional promise in writing to accept a bill before it is drawn is deemed an actual acceptance in favor of every person who upon the faith thereof, receives the bill for value.

Sec. 136.—(TIME ALLOWED DRAWEE TO ACCEPT.) The drawee is allowed twenty-four hours after presentment, in which to decide whether or not he will accept the bill; but the acceptance if given, dates as of the day of presentation.

Sec. 137.—(LIABILITY OF DRAWEE RETAINING OR DESTROYING BILL.) Where a drawee to whom a bill is delivered for acceptance destroys the same, or refuses within twenty-four hours after such delivery, or within such other period as the holder may allow, to return the bill accepted or non-accepted to the holder, he will be deemed to have accepted the same.

Sec. 138.—(ACCEPTANCE OF INCOMPLETE BILL.) A bill may be accepted before it has been signed by the drawer, or while otherwise incomplete, or when it is overdue, or after it has been dishonored by a previous refusal to accept, or by non-payment. But when a bill payable after sight is dishonored by non-acceptance, and the drawee subsequently accepts it, the holder, in the absence of any different agreement, is entitled to have the bill accepted as of the date of the first presentment.

Sec. 139.—(KINDS OF ACCEPTANCES.) An acceptance is either general or qualified. A general acceptance assents without qualification to the order of the drawer. A qualified acceptance in express terms varies the effect of the bill as drawn.

Sec. 140.—(WHAT CONSTITUTES A GENERAL ACCEPTANCE.) An acceptance to pay at a particular place is a general acceptance, unless it expressly states that the bill is to be paid there only and not elsewhere.

Sec. 141.—(QUALIFIED ACCEPTANCE.) An acceptance is qualified, which is:—

(1) Conditional, that is to say, which makes payment by the acceptor dependent on the fulfillment of a condition therein stated;

(2) Partial, that is to say, an acceptance to pay part only of the amount for which the bill is drawn.

(3) Local, that is to say, an acceptance to pay only at a particular place;

(4) Qualified as to time;

(5) The acceptance of some one or more of the drawees, but not of all.

Sec. 142.—(RIGHTS OF PARTIES AS TO QUALIFIED ACCEPTANCE.) The holder may refuse to take a qualified acceptance, and if he does not obtain an unqualified acceptance, he may treat the bill as dishonored by non-acceptance. Where a qualified acceptance is taken, the drawer and indorsers are discharged from liability on the bill, unless they have expressly or impliedly authorized the holder to take a qualified acceptance, or subsequently assent thereto. When the drawer or an indorser receives notice of a qualified acceptance, he must, within a reasonable time, express his dissent to the holder, or he will be deemed to have assented thereto.

ARTICLE III.

PRESENTMENT FOR ACCEPTANCE.

Sec. 143.—(WHEN PRESENTMENT FOR ACCEPTANCE MUST BE MADE.) Presentment for acceptance must be made:—

(1) Where the bill is payable after sight, or in any other case, where presentment for acceptance is necessary in order to fix the maturity of the instrument; or

(2) Where the bill expressly stipulates that it shall be presented for acceptance; or,

(3) Where the bill is drawn payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee.

In no other case is presentment for acceptance necessary in order to render any party to the bill liable.

Sec. 144.—(WHEN FAILURE TO PRESENT RELEASES DRAWER AND INDORSER.) Except as herein otherwise provided, the holder of a bill which is required by the next preceding section to be presented for acceptance must either present it for acceptance or negotiate it within a reasonable time. If he fails to do so, the drawer and all indorsers are discharged.

Sec. 145.—(PRESENTMENT; HOW MADE.) Presentment for acceptance must be made by or on behalf of the holder at a reasonable hour, on a business day and before the bill is overdue, to the drawee or some person authorized to accept or refuse acceptance on his behalf; and:

(1) Where a bill is addressed to two or more drawees who are not partners, presentment must be made to them all, unless one has authority to accept or refuse acceptance for all, in which case presentment may be made to him only.

(2) Where the drawee is dead, presentment may be made to his personal representative;

(3) Where the drawee has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, presentment may be made to him or to his trustee or assignee.

Sec. 146.—(ON WHAT DAYS PRESENTMENT MAY BE MADE.) A bill may be presented for acceptance on any day on which negotiable instruments may be presented for payment under the provisions of sections seventy-two and eighty-five of this act. When Saturday is not otherwise a holiday, presentment for acceptance may be made before twelve o'clock, noon, on that day.

Sec. 147.—(PRESENTMENT WHERE TIME IS INSUFFICIENT.) Where the holder of a bill drawn payable elsewhere than at the place of business or the residence of the drawee has not time with the exercise of reasonable diligence to present the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment on the day that it falls due, the delay caused by presenting the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment is excused and does not discharge the drawers and indorsers.

Sec. 148.—(WHERE PRESENTMENT IS EXCUSED.) Presentment for acceptance is excused and a bill may be treated as dishonored by non-acceptance, in either of the following cases:—

(1) Where the drawee is dead, or has absconded, or is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract by bill.

(2) Where, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, presentment cannot be made.

(3) Where, although presentment has been irregular, acceptance has been refused on some other ground.

Sec. 149.—(WHEN DISHONORED BY NON-ACCEPTANCE.) A bill is dishonored by non-acceptance,—

(1) When it is duly presented for acceptance and such an acceptance as is prescribed by this act is refused or cannot be obtained; or

(2) When presentment for acceptance is excused and the bill is not accepted.

Sec. 150.—(DUTY OF HOLDER WHERE BILL NOT ACCEPTED.) Where a bill is duly presented for acceptance and is not accepted within the prescribed time, the person presenting it must treat the bill as dishonored by non-acceptance or he loses the right of recourse against the drawer and indorsers.

Sec. 151.—(RIGHTS OF HOLDER WHERE BILL NOT ACCEPTED.) When a bill is dishonored by non-acceptance, an immediate right of recourse against the drawers and indorsers accrues to the holder and no presentment for payment is necessary.

ARTICLE IV.

PROTEST.

Sec. 152.—(IN WHAT CASES PROTEST NECESSARY.) Where a foreign bill appearing on its face to be such is dishonored by non-acceptance, it must be duly protested for non-acceptance, and where such a bill which has not previously been dishonored by non-acceptance is dishonored by non-payment, it must be duly protested for non-payment. If it is not so protested, the drawer and indorsers are discharged. Where a bill does not appear on its face to be a foreign bill, protest thereof in case of dishonor is unnecessary.

Sec. 153.—(PROTEST; HOW MADE.) The protest must be annexed to the bill, or must contain a copy thereof, and must be under the hand and seal of the notary making it, and must specify:—

(1) The time and place of presentment;

(2) The fact that presentment was made and the manner thereof;

(3) The cause or reason for protesting the bill;

(4) The demand made and the answer given, if any, or the fact that the drawee or acceptor could not be found.

Sec. 154.—(PROTEST, BY WHOM MADE.) Protest may be made by—

(1) A notary public; or

(2) By any respectable resident of the place where the bill is dishonored, in the presence of two or more creditable witnesses.

Sec. 155.—(PROTEST, WHEN TO BE MADE.) When a bill is protested, such protest must be made on the day of its dishonor unless delay is excused as herein provided. When a bill has been duly noted, the protest may be subsequently extended as of the date of the noting.

Sec. 156.—(PROTEST, WHERE MADE.) A bill must be protested at the place where it is dishonored, except that when a bill drawn payable at the place of business or residence of some person other than the drawee, has been dishonored by nonacceptance, it must be protested for nonpayment at the place where it is expressed to be payable, and no further presentment for payment to, or demand on, the drawee is necessary.

Sec. 157.—(PROTEST BOTH FOR NONACCEPTANCE AND NONPAYMENT.) A bill which has been protested for nonacceptance may be subsequently protested for nonpayment.

Sec. 158.—(PROTEST BEFORE MATURITY WHERE ACCEPTOR INSOLVENT.)—Where the acceptor has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent, or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, before the bill matures, the holder may cause the bill to be protested for better security against the drawer and indorsers.

Sec. 159.—(WHEN PROTEST DISPENSED WITH.) Protest is dispensed with by any circumstances which would dispense with notice of dishonor. Delay in noting or protesting is excused when delay is caused by circumstances beyond the contsol of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, the bill must be noted or protested with reasonable diligence.

Sec. 160.—(PROTEST WHERE BILL IS LOST, ET CETERA.) When a bill is lost or destroyed or is wrongly detained from the person entitled to hold it, protest may be made on a copy or written particulars thereof.

ARTICLE V.

ACCEPTANCE FOR HONOR.

Sec. 161.—(WHEN BILL MAY BE ACCEPTED FOR HONOR.) Where a bill of exchange has been protested for dishonor by non-acceptance or protested for better security, and is not overdue, any person not being a party already liable thereon may, with the consent of the holder, intervene and accept the bill supra protest for the honor of any party liable thereon, or for the honor of the person for whose account the bill is drawn. The acceptance for honor may be for the part only of the sum for which the bill is drawn; and where there has been an acceptance for honor for one party, there may be a further acceptance by a different person for the honor of another party.

Sec. 162.—(ACCEPTANCE FOR HONOR; HOW MADE.) An acceptance for honor supra protest must be in writing, and indicate that it is an acceptance for honor, and must be signed by the acceptor for honor.

Sec. 163.—(WHEN DEEMED TO BE AN ACCEPTANCE FOR HONOR OF THE DRAWER.) Where an acceptance for honor does not expressly state for whose honor it is made, it is deemed to be an acceptance for the honor of the drawer.

Sec. 164.—(LIABILITY OF THE ACCEPTOR FOR HONOR.) The acceptor for honor is liable to the holder and to all parties to the bill subsequent to the party for whose honor he has accepted.

Sec. 165.—(AGREEMENT OF ACCEPTOR FOR HONOR.) The acceptor for honor, by such acceptance engages that he will on due presentment pay the bill according to the terms of his acceptance, provided it shall not have been paid by the drawee, and provided also that it shall have been duly presented for payment and protested for nonpayment and notice of dishonor given him.

Sec. 166.—(MATURITY OF BILL PAYABLE AFTER SIGHT; ACCEPTED FOR HONOR.) Where a bill payable after sight is accepted for honor, its maturity is calculated from the date of the noting for nonacceptance and not from the date of acceptance for honor.

Section 167.—(PROTEST OF BILL ACCEPTED FOR HONOR, ET CETERA.) Where a dishonored bill has been accepted for honor supra protest or contains a reference in case of need, it must be protested for nonpayment before it is presented for payment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need.

Sec. 168.—(PRESENTMENT FOR PAYMENT TO ACCEPTOR FOR HONOR; HOW MADE.) Presentment for payment to the acceptor for honor must be made as follows:—

(1) If it is to be presented in the place where the protest for nonpayment was made, it must be presented not later than the day following its maturity.

(2) If it is to be presented in some other place than the place where it was protested, then it must be forwarded within the time specified in section one hundred and four.

Sec. 169.—(WHEN DELAY IN MAKING PRESENTMENT IS EXCUSED.) The provisions of Section eighty-one apply where there is delay in making presentment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need.

Sec. 170.—(DISHONOR OF BILL BY ACCEPTOR FOR HONOR.) When the bill is dishonored by the acceptor for honor it must be protested for nonpayment by him.

ARTICLE VI.

PAYMENT FOR HONOR.

Sec. 171.—(WHO MAY MAKE PAYMENT FOR HONOR.) Where a bill has been protested for nonpayment, any person may intervene and pay it supra protest for the honor of any person liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account it was drawn.

Sec. 172.—(PAYMENT FOR HONOR; HOW MADE.) The payment for honor supra protest in order to operate as such and not as a mere voluntary payment must be attested by a notarial act of honor which may be appended to the protest or form an extension to it.

Sec. 173.—(DECLARATION BEFORE PAYMENT FOR HONOR.) The notarial act of honor must be founded on a declaration made by the payer for honor or by his agent in that behalf declaring his intention to pay the bill for honor and for whose honor he pays.

Sec. 174.—(PREFERENCE OF PARTIES OFFERING TO PAY FOR HONOR.) Where two or more persons offer to pay a bill for the honor of different parties, the person whose payment will discharge most parties to the bill is to be given the preference.

Sec. 175.—(EFFECT ON SUBSEQUENT PARTIES WHERE BILL IS PAID FOR HONOR.) Where a bill has been paid for honor, all parties subsequent to the party for whose honor it is paid are discharged, but the payer for honor is subrogated for, and succeeds to, both the rights and duties of the holder, as regards the party for whose honor he pays, and all parties liable to the latter.

Sec. 176.—(WHERE HOLDER REFUSES TO RECEIVE PAYMENT SUPRA PROTEST.) Where the holder of a bill refuses to receive payment supra protest, he loses his right of recourse against any party who would have been discharged by such payment.

Sec. 177.—(RIGHTS OF PAYER FOR HONOR.) The payer for honor on paying to the holder the amount of the bill and the notarial expenses incidental to its dishonor, is entitled to receive both the bill itself and the protest.

ARTICLE VII.

BILLS IN A SET.

Sec. 178.—(BILLS IN SETS CONSTITUTE ONE BILL.) Where a bill is drawn in a set, each part of the set being numbered and containing a reference to the other parts, the whole of the parts constitutes one bill.

Sec. 179.—(RIGHT OF HOLDERS WHERE DIFFERENT PARTS ARE NEGOTIATED.) Where two or more parts of a set are negotiated to different holders in due course, the holder whose title first accrues is as between such holders the true owner of the bill. But nothing in this section affects the rights of a person who in due course accepts or pays the part first presented to him.

Sec. 180.—(LIABILITY OF HOLDER WHO INDORSES TWO OR MORE PARTS OF A SET TO DIFFERENT PERSONS.) Where the holder of a set indorses two or more parts to different persons he is liable on every such part, and every indorser subsequent to him is liable on the part he has himself indorsed, as if such parts were separate bills.

Sec. 181.—(ACCEPTANCE OF BILLS DRAWN IN SETS.) The acceptance may be written on any part and it must be written on one part only. If the drawee accepts more than one part, and such accepted parts are negotiated to different holders in due course, he is liable on every such part as if it were a separate bill.

Sec. 182.—(PAYMENT BY ACCEPTOR OF BILLS DRAWN IN SETS.) When the acceptor of a bill drawn in a set pays it without requiring the part bearing his acceptance to be delivered up to him, and that part at maturity is outstanding in the hands of a holder in due course, he is liable to the holder thereon.

Sec. 183.—(EFFECT OF DISCHARGING ONE OF A SET.) Except as herein otherwise provided where any one part of a bill drawn in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise the whole bill is discharged.

TITLE III.

PROMISSORY NOTES AND CHECKS.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 184.—(PROMISSORY NOTE DEFINED.) A negotiable promissory note within the meaning of this act is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another signed by the maker engaging to pay on demand, or at a fixed or determinable future time, a sum certain in money to order or to bearer. Where a note is drawn to the maker's order, it is not complete until indorsed by him.

Sec. 185.—(CHECK DEFINED.) A check is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank payable on demand. Except as herein otherwise provided, the provisions of this act applicable to a bill of exchange payable on demand apply to a check.

Sec. 186.—(WITHIN WHAT TIME A CHECK MUST BE PRESENTED.) A check must be presented for payment within a reasonable time after its issue or the drawer will be discharged from liability thereon to the extent of the loss caused by the delay.

Sec. 187.—(CERTIFICATION OF CHECK; EFFECT OF.) Where a check is certified by the bank on which it is drawn, the certification is equivalent to an acceptance.

Sec. 188.—(EFFECT WHERE THE HOLDER OF CHECK PROCURES IT TO BE CERTIFIED.) Where the holder of a check procures it to be accepted or certified the drawer and all indorsers are discharged from liability thereon.

Sec. 189.—(WHEN CHECK OPERATES AS AN ASSIGNMENT.) A check of itself does not operate as an assignment of any part of the funds to the credit of the drawer with the bank, and the bank is not liable to the holder, unless and until it accepts or certifies the check.

TITLE IV.

AN ACT relating to local assessments in cities of the first class for the acquisition of lands for streets, parks and boulevards, and the improvement thereof, and the improvement of existing streets, parks and boulevards, and authorizing local improvement bonds payable out of the moneys collected on such assessments.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. Whenever any city of the first class including, among others, those cities operating under Charters adopted in pursuance of Section 36 of Article 4 of the constitution of Minnesota, shall have completed, in accordance with the provisions of its Charter, any assessment upon benefited real estate for paying the cost of the acquisition of any land, or interest in land, taken for a public use, or for paying the cost of any improvement which shall have been duly authorized, or both, the city council of said city by a five-sixths vote may by resolution provide that said assessment may be paid in any number of equal annual installments, not exceeding twenty, (20). Provided, the city council shall not exercise the power granted by this act after the proceeds of such assessment has been pledged by the issue of bonds or certificates of indebtedness to be paid from the proceeds or otherwise.

Sec. 2. The City Clerk shall thereupon transmit a certified copy of such assessment roll to the County Auditor of the county in which the city is situated, each of which certified copies shall bear an appropriate name and be numbered consecutively from one (1) upwards. In cases where the whole undertaking requires the condemnation of land and improvements the assessments for the condemnation of land and the assessments for improvements may be consolidated as to each parcel of land and certified to the County Auditor as one assessment. And thereupon the County Auditor shall include one of the equal annual payments of the principal amount of said assessment with and as a part of the taxes upon each parcel for each year until the whole assessment shall be thus included, together with annual interest at the rate prescribed by the City Council, not exceeding five (5) per cent per annum. With the first installment, the County Auditor shall include interest upon the entire assessment from the date of the assessment to the time when the tax books including the first installment are delivered by the County Auditor to the County Treasurer, and thereafter the County Auditor shall include in the taxes of each year one of such installments, together with one year's interest upon such installment and all subsequent installments at the same rate, each of which, together with such interest shall be collected with the annual taxes upon such land together with like penalties and interest in case of default, all of which shall be collected and enforced as the annual taxes and credited to the proper city fund. Any parcel assessed may be discharged from the assessment by presenting a local improvement bond sold against such assessment as herein provided sufficient in amount to cover all installments unpaid on such parcel and accrued interest, penalties and costs, and surrendering such local improvement bond or bonds to the County Treasurer for cancellation or having endorsed thereon such installments, interest, penalties and costs. Whenever an assessment is certified as aforesaid by the City Clerk to the County Auditor, a duplicate thereof shall be sent to the City Comptroller, and such assessment shall be sufficiently identified by the name and number as aforesaid. All installments due and payable and all interest or penalties on the same having been paid, nothing herein shall prevent the transfer of said property or any interest therein on the books of the County of said local improvement bonds against any one assessment, the principal and interest being payable at fixed dates out of the fund collected from such assessment including interest and penalties, and the whole of such fund is hereby pledged for the payment of said local improvement bonds and the interest thereon as they severally become due. Such local improvement bonds shall be payable to bearer with interest coupons attached, and the city council may, by a five-sixths vote bind the city to make good deficiencies in the collection up to but not exceeding the principal and interest at the rate fixed by the city council upon such local improvement bonds which shall not exceed five (5) per cent per annum. If the city, because of any such guarantee, shall redeem any local improvement bonds, it shall thereupon be subrogated to the holder's rights. For the purpose of such guarantee, penalties collected shall be credited upon deficiencies of principal and interest, before the city shall be liable. Such local improvement bonds shall be sold at public sale at not less than the par value.

Sec. 4. This act shall apply to all cities operating under charters adopted in pursuance of Section 36 of Article 4 of the Constitution of Minnesota. The provisions of this Act are not intended to and shall not be construed to repeal or abrogate any of the provisions of such charter but are intended to be supplementary to said charter and as conferring additional power upon said cities which may be exercised at their option. The Cities' liabilities upon such guarantee shall not be taken into account as part of its indebtedness until the amount of such deficiency or collection defined as aforesaid is determined and only for the amount of such deficiency.

Sec. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 15, 1913.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. In any city of this state now or hereafter having over fifty thousand inhabitants, the board of water commissioners thereof, in addition to all the powers now possessed by such board under any general or special law or under the charter of such city, shall have and possess the power to engage in the manufacture, gathering and purchase of ice, and the sale and distribution thereof to such city and to the several boards and departments thereof and to the inhabitants of such city, and to acquire the necessary land, buildings, machinery and equipment for such purpose.

Sec. 2. For the purpose of acquiring land, storage plants, side-tracks, spur-tracks and other rights in real property, necessary or convenient for the manufacture, gathering, storage or distribution of ice, any such city may exercise the power of eminent domain under and in pursuance of Chapter 41, Revised Laws of 1905 and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, either within or without the corporate limits of such city.

When said bonds or any of them are issued and sold, it shall be the duty of the board of water commissioners to make suitable provision from the revenues of said ice plant for the prompt payment of all current interest on said bonds as the same accrues and for the redemption of said bonds at their maturity.

Sec. 4. The said board of water commissioners shall establish such prices for ice as will at all times insure a sufficient income to pay the interest and to provide a fund to pay the principal upon all the bonds to be issued under this act, as well as to pay all the expenses and cost of the maintenance and repairs of said ice plant and other expenses of operation and equipment.

Sec. 5. This act shall also apply to cities existing under a charter framed pursuant to Section 36, Article 4 of the Constitution.

One of the signers of each such paper shall make oath before an officer, competent to administer oaths, that each signature to the paper appended is the signature of the person whose name purports to be thereto subscribed. The City Council of any city which shall decide by vote of its electors, as herein provided, to acquire or construct any public utility, shall have the power unless otherwise provided by law to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the operation of the same, including the power to fix and prescribe rates and charges. For the purpose of acquiring any such public utility either by purchase or construction, as provided for in this Act, or for the equipment of any such public utility, and in addition to the certificates of indebtedness provided for in Section 3 hereof, any city may borrow money and issue its negotiable bonds to an amount not exceeding one-fifth of the cost thereof, pledging the faith and credit of the City therefor; but no such bonds shall be issued until the question of the issuance of certificates of indebtedness shall have been approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon as provided for in Section 3 hereof, and then only upon a three-fifths vote of the City Council or other governing body. In the exercise of the powers, or any of them, granted by this act, any such city shall have power to acquire, take and hold any and all franchise or franchises, and necessary property, real, personal or mixed, for the purposes specified in this act, either by purchase or condemnation in the manner provided by law for the taking and condemning of private property for public use, but in no valuation of public utility property for the purpose of any such acquisition, except of such public utilities now operating under such existing franchises shall any sum be included as the value of any earning power of such utility, or of the unexpired portion of any franchise granted by said city.

In case of the leasing by any city of any public utility owned by it, the rental reserved shall be based on both the actual value of the tangible property and of the franchise contained in such lease, and such rental shall not be less than a sufficient sum to meet the annual interest upon all outstanding bonds or certificates issued by said city on account of any such public utility.

Sec. 3. In addition to the bonds pledging the faith and credit of the city, as provided for in Section 2 of this Act, any city may issue and dispose of interest-bearing certificates, which shall be a lien or charge against the public utility property for the acquisition or construction of which they were issued and shall be payable out of the specified portion of the revenues or income to be derived therefrom, but which shall under no circumstances be or become an obligation or liability of said city or payable out of the general funds thereof, nor shall such certificates be deemed a part of the indebtedness of said city for any purpose. Such certificates, together with the bonds hereinbefore provided for, shall not be issued on any such public utility property in an amount in excess of the cost to the city of such property as hereinbefore provided, and ten per centum of such cost in addition thereto. In order to secure the payment of such public utility certificates, and the interest thereon, the city may convey by way of mortgage, or deed of trust, any or all of the property thus acquired or to be acquired through the issue thereof; which mortgage or deed of trust shall be executed in such a manner as directed by the city council and acknowledged and recorded in the manner provided by law for the acknowledgment and recording of mortgages of real estate, and may contain such conditions and provisions not in conflict with the provisions of this act, as may be deemed necessary to fully secure the payment of the certificates described therein. Any such mortgage or deed of trust may carry the grant of privilege or right to maintain and operate the property covered thereby, for a period not exceeding twenty (20) years from and after the date such property may come in the possession of any person or corporation as a result of foreclosure proceedings; which privilege or right may fix the rates which the person or corporation securing the same as a result of the foreclosure proceedings shall be entitled to charge in the operation of said property, for a period not exceeding twenty years. Whenever, and as often as default shall be made in the payment of such certificate issued or secured by mortgage or deed of trust, as aforesaid; or in the payment of the interest thereon when due, and any such default shall have continued for the space of twelve months after notice thereof has been given to the mayor and financial officer of the city issuing such certificates, it shall be lawful for any such mortgagee or trustee, upon the request of the holder or holders of a majority in amount of the certificates issued and outstanding under such mortgage or deed of trust, to declare the whole of the principal of all such certificates as may be outstanding, to be at once due and payable, and to proceed to foreclose such mortgage or deed of trust in any court of competent jurisdiction. At a foreclosure sale, the mortgagee or the holders of such certificates may become the purchaser or purchasers and the rights and privileges sold, if he or they be the highest bidders. Any public utility acquired under any such foreclosure shall be subject to regulation by the corporate authorities of the city to the same extent as if the right to construct, maintain and operate such property had been acquired through a direct grant without the intervention of foreclosure proceedings; provided, however, that no such public utility certificates or mortgage shall ever be issued by any city under the provisions of this act, unless and until the question of the adoption of the ordinance of the city council making provision of the issue thereof, shall have first been submitted to a popular vote and approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the city voting upon such question.

Sec. 4. Every such city owning and operating any such public utility shall keep the books of accounts for such public utility distinct from other city accounts, and in such manner as to show the true and complete financial results of such city ownership, or ownership and operation as the case may be. Such accounts shall be so kept as to show the actual cost to such city of such public utilities owned; all cost of maintenance, depreciation, extension and improvement; all operating expenses of every description, in case of such city operation; the amount set aside for sinking fund purposes. The city council shall cause to be printed annually, for public distribution, a report showing the financial results of such city ownership, or ownership and operation.

Sec. 5. No city shall acquire or construct any public utility under the terms of this act unless the proposition to acquire or construct same has first been submitted to the qualified electors of said city at a general city election or at a special election called for that purpose, and been approved by a majority vote of all electors voting upon such proposition.

The question of issuing public utility certificates as provided in Section 3 hereof may at the option of the City Council be submitted at the same election as the question of the acquisition or construction of such public utility.

Sec. 6. In all cases provided in this act for the submission of questions or propositions to popular vote the city council shall pass an ordinance stating the substance of the proposition or question to be voted upon and designating the election at which such question or proposition is to be submitted, which may be at any general or city election, or special election called for that purpose; provided, that such election shall not be held sooner than thirty days from and after the passage of said ordinance.

Notice of special election which shall be held in any city under this act and all proceedings respecting the same shall conform as nearly as may be to the law governing other special elections therein.

And all ballots as to any proposition or question submitted pursuant to the terms of this act shall be delivered to the election judges, shall be deposited in a separate box and shall be counted, canvassed and returned as is provided by law in case of other ballots, and the tally sheets and return blanks shall contain suitable columns and spaces therefor.

No defect or omission in the calling, giving notice or holding of any election under this act shall in any manner affect the validity of such election unless it shall affirmatively appear that such defect or omission changed the result of such election.

Sec. 7. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed to authorize any city to make any grants or to lease any public utility for a period exceeding twenty (20) years from the making of such grant or lease; provided, that when a right to maintain and operate [illegible] any of the certificates hereinbefore mentioned, (and no such right shall be implied) such period shall commence as provided in Section 3 of this act.

Sec. 8. Whenever any city shall decide by a vote of the electors thereof in the manner herein provided, to acquire a Union Depot and terminal system, it may, upon a three-fifths vote of the City Council or other governing body, issue such bonds as are provided for herein at such rate and for such period as the Council may prescribe notwithstanding any provision in the charter of said city limiting the amount of the bonded indebtedness thereof, providing that such issue of bonds shall never be for an amount which together with all other net bonded indebtedness shall exceed ten per cent of the assessed valuation of said city as of the time of such issue.

Sec. 9. This Act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved April 16, 1913.

No liability to any person other than an employe shall attach to any owner of any factory, mill, workshop, engineering works, or mercantile establishment, because of the provision of this act, until notice to comply with the terms of this act has been served upon such owner by an officer or employe of the labor department of this state, and reasonable time to comply with such notice has elapsed.

But whenever notice is required before prosecution, no criminal proceeding shall be commenced until thirty days after such notice, nor then, if within such time the requirements of the notice have been met; Provided, that if such requirement be to put a water-closet or privy in sanitary condition, where the only defect is due to carelessness in its management, or to put an elevator in safe condition, only forty-eight hours shall be allowed. In case of application to the court to restrain, the time aforesaid shall not begin to run until the decision thereon.

Sec. 21. The term "prime mover" as used in this act shall include all steam, gas, oil, or other kinds of engines, and also all electrical apparatus which generates, converts, or transmits power.

The words "guard," "guarded," "safeguard," "safeguarded" and "protection," shall be given a broad interpretation, so as to include any practicable method of mitigating or preventing a specific danger.

Section 1. That Section 14 of Chapter 334 of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1911 be, and the same hereby is, amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 14. Where the county board of any county in this state or the judge or judges of any district court of this state has heretofore located, established or caused to be constructed, or has attempted or purported to locate, establish or cause to be constructed any ditch, drain or other water course within their respective jurisdiction under the provisions of Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota for 1901, or Chapter 230, General Laws of Minnesota for 1905, or under the provisions of both of said acts and acts amendatory thereof, or supplementary thereto, and said county board or said judge of the district court, as the case may be, has found and determined that such ditch, drain or other water course will be of public utility or will promote the public health, and that the benefits or estimated benefits to be derived from the construction thereof are greater than the total cost, including damages awarded and where the contract or contracts for the construction of such ditch have been actually entered into and the county auditor has executed and filed in the office of the register of deeds, the tabular statement required by law and making assessments for the costs and expenses of location, establishment and construction of the same against the lands, corporations, roads and other property benefited thereby, and no appeal has been taken therefrom, or from any such proceedings, or if appeal was taken same has been determined prior to the passage of this Act, and where, first, the final order establishing such ditch is ineffective or not according to law for the reason that the same does not sufficiently or correctly describe or designate the course, or the size or dimensions of such ditch, or the branch or branches thereof, or any part of the same, or is ineffective for any other reason, or, second, where for any reason whether the main ditch or any part thereof, or any branch or lateral ditch or any part thereof has not been located, dug or constructed along the line or at the place or location fixed or determined therefor by the order establishing such ditch, but has been wholly or partially located, dug or constructed along a different line or at a different place or location, or, third, where branches or laterals to any ditch have been wholly or partially located, dug or constructed, additional to, different from, or other than those established or designated by the final order establishing such ditch, or, fourth, where at the final hearing or subsequent thereto, the engineer's work or viewers' report or the final order establishing such ditch, have been either actually or constructively changed or altered or modified by order or action of the county board or the district judge originally acting thereon, or, fifth, where any other action or thing, not above specified, required to be done or performed by any officer or person in the matter of the establishment, location or construction of any such ditch, or of the acceptance or payment therefor, or if any part thereof or of the issuance of bonds therein, or of the making of assessments of benefits therein, or of the making or filing of the lien of assessments of benefits therein, or any other step in such drainage proceedings, has been attempted to be performed, but has been actually done or performed in a manner not in compliance with law, than all of said proceedings so taken as aforesaid and all parts thereof and any assessments or liens so levied or assessed or attempted to be levied or assessed for payment of the expense and cost of said ditch, including damages awarded, and the contract, if any, entered into the said ditch matter, and all payments thereon or otherwise made in such ditch proceedings, and all ditch bonds issued in the said proceedings, and the final order establishing any such ditch, and any such change or alteration in such final order, or in the engineer's or viewers' report therein, and all other steps and proceedings in such ditch matter attempted to be done, but wherein the provisions of law were not fully complied with or were violated, and each and all of the same are hereby legalized and declared to be valid and in full force and effect, the same as if all proceedings in the matter of locating and establishing said ditch and the acceptance thereof and payment therefor and all other proceedings therein were in all respects regular, and the same as if the final order establishing said ditch had been regular and correctly made. Where such main ditch or branches or laterals or any part thereof has not been wholly or partly located, dug or constructed along the line determined and fixed therefor, as aforesaid, but has been wholly or partly located, dug or constructed at a different place, or where branches or laterals to any ditch have been wholly or partly located, dug or constructed additional to, different from or other than those established by the final order establishing such ditch, or when such final order was ineffective or defective as aforesaid, then the said ditch or branches thereof as wholly or partly located, dug or constructed at such different place and such branches or laterals additional to or different from those designated or established by such final order and all such ditch or branches as actually located and constructed or partially constructed, and each and all of the same are hereby legalized and made valid and effective at such different place of location or construction, the same as if there located and ordered constructed by the final order establishing such ditch, provided that, if any person whose lands are affected by the said ditch or by such change claims additional or other damages to such lands on account of such change, than as originally awarded, or claims a reduction of assessment of benefits to any such land by reason of such change, then and in either such case, such person shall within sixty days after the passage of this Act, make application to the county board which established such ditch, in the case of a county ditch, or to a judge of the district court which established the same, in case of a judicial ditch, to have his claim for such additional damages or reduced benefits considered and determined, and such county board shall thereupon proceed to hear and consider such application and determine the same, upon such notice of hearing herefor, as shall be deemed advisable by such county board or district judge, as the case may be, and shall make such order in the premises as may be just and equitable and required by the evidence submitted, and appeal from such order or review thereof shall be had in the manner provided by law for appeal from or review of assessment of benefits in county and judicial ditch proceedings. Provided, that the provisions of this Section shall not apply to any action at law or in equity now pending in any court of this State, but for the purpose of questioning or reviewing any such defect in any such ditch proceeding.

CHAPTER 844—H. F. No. 1,131.

AN ACT to repeal Chapter 313 of the General Laws of 1911, and relating to joint freight rates over two or more connecting lines of railway between points within this state and relating to the powers and duties of the railroad and warehouse commission and to enact substitute therefor.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. Every owner or consignor of freight to be transported by railway from any point within this state to any other point within this state shall have the right to require that the same shall be transported over two or more connecting lines of railway, to be transferred at the connecting point or points without change of car or cars if in carload lots, and with or without change of car or cars if in less than carload lots, whenever the distance from the place of shipment to destination, both being within this state, is less over two or more connecting lines of railway than it is over a single line of railway, or where the initial line does not reach the place of destination; and it shall be the duty, upon the request of any such owner or consignor of freight, made to the initial company, of such railway companies whose lines so connect, to transport the freight without change of car or cars if the shipment be in carload lot or lots, and with change of car or cars if it be in less than carload lots, from the place of shipment to destination, whenever the distance from the place of shipment to destination, both being within this state, is less than the distance over a single line, or when the initial line does not reach the point of destination, for a reasonable joint through rate. This section shall not apply to interurban railways operated by electricity, except as to freight or cars transported over two or more such interurban railways having similar equipment so as to make it physically practicable to comply with the provisions of this section.

Sec. 2. The board of Railroad and Warehouse Commission shall, within ten days after this act takes effect, notify in writing every railway company owning or operating a railway within this state that it will, upon a day named in such notice, which day shall not be more than thirty days after giving said notice, take up for investigation the subject of establishing joint through rates, as herein provided, between the railway lines in this state. It shall also give a similar notice, directed "To whom it may concern," and so publish the same, that it will have general circulation throughout the state. All corporations, partnerships and persons interested in the subject may present themselves at the hearing and be heard, under such rules and regulations as the board may prescribe. At the end of the investigation, which shall be carried on with all due diligence, the said board of Railroad and Warehouse Commission shall make and publish a schedule of joint through railway rates for such traffic and on such routes as in its judgment the fair and reasonable conduct of business requires shall be done by carriage over two or more lines of railway, and will promote the interests of the people of this state. In the making thereof, and in changing, revising or adding to the same, the board shall be governed as nearly as may be by the preceding sections of this chapter, and shall take into consideration, among other things, the rates established for shipments within this state for like distances over single lines, the rates charged by the railway companies operating such connecting lines for joint inter-state shipments, and the increased cost, if any, of a joint through shipment as compared with a shipment over a single line for like distances. In establishing such rates for shipments in less than carload lots, in cases where at the connecting point or points in the line of shipments the connecting railways have not and are not required to have a common station or stopping place for loading or unloading freight, the board shall make such lawful regulations as in its judgment will be fair and just respecting the transportation of such freight from the usual unloading place of one railway to the usual loading place of the other. The joint through rates thus established shall be promulgated by mailing a printed copy thereof to each railway company affected thereby and shall go into effect within ten days after they are so promulgated; and from and after that time an official printed schedule thereof shall be prima facie evidence, in all courts of this state, that the rates therein fixed are just and reasonable for the joint transportation of such freight between the points and over the lines described therein. The said board shall deliver a printed copy of said schedule to any person making application therefor. The share of any railway company of any joint through rate shall not be construed to fix the charge that it may make for transportation for a similar distance over any part of its line for any single rate shipment or the share of any other joint rate. The board, upon such reasonable notice as it may prescribe, may, upon its own motion or upon the application of any person, firm or corporation interested therein, revise, change or add to any joint through rates fixed or promulgated hereunder; and any such revised, changed or added joint rates shall have the same force and effect as the rate or rates originally established. The said board is empowered to authorize upon proper hearing, any railway company whose line connects the point of shipment with the point of destination, but requires a longer haul than the joint haul over which a joint rate has been established, to charge the joint rate without affecting the charge upon any other part of its line, except the charge for a like kind of property must not be greater for a shorter than for a longer distance over its railroad, all of the shorter haul being included within the longer. This section shall apply to interurban railways and their connection with ordinary steam railways.

Sec. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after January 1, 1914.

Approved April 18, 1913.

CHAPTER 845—S. F. No. 73.

AN ACT to amend Chapter 185, General Laws of Minnesota 1911, entitled, "An Act relating to the acquisition of lands for streets, parks and parkways in cities of the first class and the improvement and government thereof and the improvement and government of existing streets and parkways."

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That Section 2 of Chapter 185, General Laws 1911, is hereby amended so that it shall read as follows:

"Section 2. After the adoption of the resolution it shall be the duty of the city engineer to make and present to the council a plat and survey of such proposed improvement, showing the character, course and extent of the same and the property necessary to be taken or interfered with thereby, with the name of the owner of each parcel of such property so far as the engineer can readily ascertain the same, and such statement as may in the opinion of the engineer be proper to explain such plat and survey and the character and extent of the proposed improvement.

When such plat and survey shall be finally adopted by the city council, it shall be filed with the city clerk, and it shall be held to show correctly the character and extent of the improvement actually agreed upon and ordered by the city council.

Said plat shall also show the amount of land taken from each owner, so far as the owners may be known, and the lands contiguous to such improvements.

The city council shall then or afterwards appoint five freeholders of said city, no two of whom shall reside in the same ward, as commissioners to view the premises and to ascertain and award the amount of damages and compensation to be paid to the owners of property which is to be taken or injured by such improvement, and to assess the amount of such damages and compensation and the expense of the improvement upon the lands and property to be benefited by such improvement, and in proportion to the benefits to be received by each parcel and without regard to a cash valuation.

Three or more commissioners shall constitute a quorum and be competent to perform any duty required of such commissioners; and they shall be notified of their appointment, and vacancies in their number shall be filled by the city council, and they shall be sworn to the faithful discharge of their duties. They shall give notice by two publications in the official paper of said city that such survey and plat is on file in the office of the city clerk, for the examination of all persons interested, and that they will on a day designated in such notice, which shall be at least ten days after the first publication of such notice, meet at a place designated in said notice on or near the proposed improvement, and view the property proposed to be taken or interfered with for the purpose of such improvements, and ascertain and award therefor compensation and damages, and view the premises to be benefited by such improvement, and assess thereon in proportion to benefits, amount necessary to pay such compensation and damage and the cost of making the improvement, and that they will then and there hear such allegations and proofs as interested persons may offer. Any such commissioners shall meet and view the premises pursuant to such notice, and may adjourn from time to time, and, after having viewed the premises, may, for the hearing of evidence and preparation of their award and assessment, adjourn or go to any other convenient place in said city, and may have the aid and advice of the city engineer and of any other officer of the city, and adjourn from time to time. After viewing the premises and hearing the evidence offered, such commissioners shall prepare and make a true and impartial appraisement and award of the compensation and damages to be paid to each person whose property is to be taken or injured by the making of such improvement; but if the remainder of the same property, a part of which only is to be taken or damaged by such improvement, shall be benefited by such improvement, then the commissioners in considering and awarding compensation and damages, shall also consider, estimate and offset the benefits which will accrue to the same owner, in respect to the remainder of the same property, and award him only the excess of the compensation or damages over and above such benefits.

The said commissioners shall then assess the amount of such compensation and damages so awarded upon the land and property benefited by such proposed improvements, together with the expense and cost of making the improvements as fixed by the city council, and in proportion to such benefits, but in no case shall the amount of such assessment exceed the actual benefit to the lot or parcel of land so assessed, deducting therefrom any damages or injuries to the same parcels which are less than such benefits, and assessing only the excess, and prepare and report to the city council their appraisement and award, and if in the judgment of said commissioners the whole amount of such compensation and damages, together with the cost of making such improvement, shall exceed the actual benefit to the specific property subject to assessment, they shall so indicate in their report and shall state the amount of such excess. Said commissioners shall also report to the city council an assessment list containing their assessment of such compensation, damages, and costs, or so much thereof as shall not exceed the actual benefits to the property so assessed, which list shall contain a brief description of each tract or parcel of property assessed, the name or names of the owners thereof, if known, and the amount assessed against each parcel of property and the amount of the excess of such compensation, damages and costs as aforesaid, which they shall return unassessed.

The commissioners may employ clerical assistance, and the cost thereof, as well as the commissioners' compensation, and the expenses of printing the notices required, including, among others, the notice of consideration by the city council, hereinafter referred to, estimated at the same rate per line as the cost of printing the prior notices, shall be added to the other amounts to be assessed and shall be assessed therewith. The city attorney shall represent the city before the commissioners and produce such evidence as the case may require.

The city council may, however, provide by the resolution appointing such commissioners that a certain specified percentage, not exceeding thirty-three and one-third (33 1-3) per cent, of the total damages and cost of improvements, shall in any case be payable out of the city's general funds, and in that case the city's share shall be added to the amount of the certificates to be issued and sold under Section 10, and the city council shall from year to year levy a sufficient tax upon the taxable property of the city to pay the same, with interest. In such case the amount provided to be paid out of the general funds shall not be assessed.

Said commissioners shall, upon the completion of their said report, file the same with the city clerk for presentation by him to the city council and thereupon it shall be the duty of said city clerk to give notice to all interested parties by one (1) publication in the official paper of said city that he will at the next meeting of the city council, or as soon thereafter as practicable, present such report to said council for their consideration and action, the first one (1) of which said notices shall be published at least ten (10) days before the presentation of such report to said city council; such published notices shall contain descriptions of the several lots and parcels of land taken for such proposed improvements, and the amount awarded for the taking of each such lot or parcel, together with the names of the owner or owners of the same, as nearly as they can be readily ascertained. It shall also contain descriptions of the several lots or parcels of land upon which benefits have been assessed and the amount assessed against each such lot or parcel, together with the names of the owner or owners of the same, as nearly as the same can be readily ascertained.

Such report after its presentation to the city council shall lie over until the next regular meeting of the council which shall occur at least one week after the reception thereof, at which time, or at any meeting to which the report may be referred, the city council may act upon such report and hear any complaint touching such award or assessment, or it may refer the matter to a committee of the council to hear such complaints and report thereon. The council may confirm such award and assessment or either, or annul the same, or send the same back to the commission for further consideration; and the commissioners may in such case again, upon giving notice published once in the official paper of said city, meet at a time and place to be designated in said notice, which time shall be at least two weeks after the publication of such notice, and hear any further evidence that may be adduced by interested persons, and may adjourn from time to time, and may correct any mistakes in such award and assessment and alter and revise the same as they shall deem just, and again report the same to the city council, who may thereupon confirm or annul the same. Whenever the city council shall confirm any such award and assessment such confirmation shall make such award and assessment final and conclusive upon all parties interested, except as hereinafter provided, and the city council shall proceed, at the same or any subsequent meeting, to levy such assessment upon the several parcels of land described in the assessment list reported by the commissioners, in accordance with the assessment so confirmed, and cause to be made and adopted an assessment roll of the same, which may be in the following form, or in any other form the council may adopt:

Sec. 2. Section 3 of said Chapter 185 shall be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 3. Any person whose property is proposed to be taken, interfered with or assessed for benefits under any of the provisions of this chapter, and who deems that there is any irregularity in the proceedings of the council or action of the commissioners, by reason of which the award of the commissioners ought not to be confirmed, or who is dissatisfied with the amount of damages awarded to him for the taking of or interference with his property or with the amount of the assessment for benefits to any property affected by such proceedings, may at any time before such award or assessment shall be confirmed by the city council, file with the city clerk, in writing, his objection to such confirmation, setting forth therein specifically the particular irregularities complained of and containing a description of the property affected by such proceedings, and if, notwithstanding such objections, the city council shall confirm the award or assessment, such person objecting shall have the right to appeal from such order of confirmation of the city council, to the district court, of the county at any time within ten days after such order. Such appeal shall be made by serving a written notice of such appeal upon the city clerk of said city, which shall specify the property of the appellant affected by such award, and refer to the objection filed as aforesaid, and by also delivering to said city clerk a bond to the city, executed by the appellant, or by some one on his behalf with two sureties, who shall justify in the penal sum of fifty dollars, conditioned to pay all costs that may be awarded against the appellant. Thereupon the city clerk shall make out and transmit to the clerk of said district court a copy of the award of said commissioners, as confirmed by the council, and of the order of the council confirming the same, and of the objection filed by the appellant as aforesaid, all certified by said clerk to be true copies, within ten days after the taking of such appeal. But if more than one appeal be taken from any award, it shall not be necessary that the clerk in appeals subsequent to the first, shall send up anything except a certified copy of the appellant's objections. There shall be no pleading on such appeal but the court shall determine in the first instance whether there was in the proceedings any such irregularity or omission of duty prejudicial to the appellant and specified in his said written objections, that as to him the award or assessment of the commissioners ought not to stand and whether said commissioners had jurisdiction to take action in the premises.

The case may be brought on for hearing, on eight days' notice, at any general or special term of the court, and shall have precedence of other civil cases, and the judgment of the court shall be either to confirm or annul the proceedings only as the same affects the property of the appellant proposed to be taken, damaged or assessed for benefits, and described in said written objection. From such determination no appeal or writ of error shall lie.

In case the amount of damages awarded or assessment made for benefits is complained of by such appellant, the Court shall, if the proceedings be confirmed in other respects, upon such confirmation, appoint three disinterested freeholders, residents of said city, commissioners to re-appraise such damages or benefits. The parties to such appeal shall be heard by said court upon the appointment of such, and the court shall fix the time and place of the meeting of such commissioners. They shall be sworn to the faithful discharge of their duties as such commissioners, and shall proceed to view the premises and to hear the parties interested, with their allegations and proofs pertinent to the question of the amount of such damages or assessments. Such commissioners shall be governed by the same provisions in respect to the method of arriving at the amount of damages and the offset thereto of benefits to other property of the same owners, and in all other material respects, as are in this Chapter made for the government of commissioners appointed by said city council. They shall, after such hearing and view of the premises make report, to said court of their appraisal of damages or assessments of benefits in respect to such appellant. The award or assessment of such commissioners shall be final unless set aside by the court for good cause shown. In case such report is set aside, the court may, in its discretion, recommit the same to the same commissioners or appoint a new board as it shall deem best. Said court shall allow a reasonable compensation to such commissioners for their services, and make such award of costs on such appeal, including the compensation of such commissioners as it shall deem just in the premises.

In case the court shall be of opinion that such appeal was frivolous or vexatious, it may adjudge double costs against such appellant.

An appeal may be taken from the court's final order to the Supreme Court by the city or any party thereto.

In case of proceedings conducted by the City Council all reports and other papers shall be filed in the office of the city clerk, and notices of appeal and other notices to the city shall be served upon the city clerk. In case of proceedings conducted by the board of park commissioners, all papers shall be filed in the office of the secretary or other recording officer of the board, and all notices of appeal and other notices to the city shall be served upon the secretary or other recording officer of the board."

Sec. 3. Section 6 of said Chapter 185 shall be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 6. The city council and park commissioners may by such concurrent resolution specify the method of improving any such street or parkway, including grading, paving, curb, gutter and sidewalk, as well as sewer and water mains where necessary. The city engineer shall estimate the cost of each item of such improvements separately and submit the estimate with the plat. Such estimates shall be for six inch water mains and eighteen inch sewers. The city council shall examine such estimates and after modifying if necessary, find and adopt an estimate of such cost. The city council, in appointing commissioners, shall recite said estimate, and the commissioners shall assess the amount thereof upon such lots and parcels of land in the city as they shall deem specially benefited in proportion to such benefits, and not exceeding the actual benefit to any parcel, and add the same to the benefits assessed under Section 2 of this act and report the net result of damages or benefits as required by said Section 2, and with like proceedings thereafter.

Any existing street or parkway may be improved and the expense thereof assessed and raised in the manner provided by this chapter, including any or all of the following improvements, to-wit, widening, grading, pavement, sidewalks, curb and gutter, sewers and water mains. In case of streets or parkways exceeding eighty (80) feet in width, the resolution may, for the purpose of facilitating connections with private property and obviating the necessity of cutting or breaking into the improvements, order a double water main or a double sewer, one on either side of the street or parkway, or adopt such other arrangement or device as may seem most feasible."

Sec. 4. Section 5 of said Chapter 185 shall be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 5. The city clerk shall transmit a certified copy of such assessment roll to the county auditor of the county in which the land lies, and the county auditor shall include five (5) per cent of the principal amount of such assessment with and as part of the taxes upon each parcel for each year for twenty years, together with annual interest at the rate ascertained, as hereinafter provided. With the first installment the auditor shall include interest upon the entire assessment from the date of the assessment to the time when the tax books including the first installment are delivered by the county auditor to the county treasurer, and thereafter the auditor shall include in the taxes for each year one of such installments, together with one year's interest upon such installment, and all subsequent installments at the same rate, each of which, together with such interest, shall be collected with the annual taxes upon such land, together with like penalties and interest in case of default, all of which shall be collected with and enforced as the annual taxes and credited to the proper city fund. Any parcel assessed may be discharged from the assessment at any time after the receipt of the assessment by the county auditor by paying all installments that have gone into the hands of the county treasurer as aforesaid, with accrued interest, penalties and costs, as above provided, and by paying all subsequent installments; or any parcel assessed may be discharged from the assessment by presenting certificates or bonds sold against such assessments as herein provided sufficient in amount to cover all installments due on such parcel and accrued interest, penalties and costs, and all installments yet to accrue, by surrendering such certificates or bonds to the county treasurer for cancellation or having endorsed thereon such installments, interest, penalties and costs, said assessment shall be a lien on the land from the time of the making thereof as against the owner and every person in any way interested in the land. The owner of the land and any person interested therein may defend against such assessment at the time of application for judgment in the regular proceedings for the enforcement of delinquent taxes, but such assessment shall not be deemed invalid because of any irregularity, provided the notices have been published substantially as required, and no defense shall be allowed except upon the ground that the cost of the improvement is substantially less than the amount of the assessment, and then only to the extent of the difference between the assessment and the actual cost. Assessments made under this act shall be called special street and parkway assessments to the city of ——————— and numbered consecutively. Whenever an assessment is certified as aforesaid by the city clerk to the county auditor, a duplicate thereof shall be sent to the city comptroller, and all such assessments shall be sufficiently identified by the name and number as aforesaid."

Sec. 5. Section 10 of said Chapter 185 shall be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 10. The city council, for the purpose of realizing the funds for making such improvement and paying such damages, may issue and sell special certificates of indebtedness, or special street or parkway improvement bonds, as they may decide, which shall entitle the holder thereof to all sums realized upon any such assessment, or if deemed advisable, a series of two or more certificates or bonds against any one assessment, the principal and interest being payable at fixed dates out of the fund collected from such assessments, including interest and penalties, and the whole of such fund is hereby pledged for the pro rata payment of such certificates or bonds and the interest thereon, as they severally become due. Such certificates or bonds may be made payable to the bearer, with interest coupons attached, and the city council may bind the city to make good deficiencies in the collection, up to, but not exceeding, the principal and interest at the rate fixed as hereinafter provided and for the time specified in Section 5. If the city, because of any such guaranty, shall redeem any certificate or bond, it shall thereupon be subrogated to the holder's rights. For the purpose of such guaranty, penalties collected shall be credited upon deficiencies of principal and interest before the city shall be liable. Such certificates or bonds shall be sold at public sale or by sealed proposals at a meeting of which at least two weeks' published notice shall be given, to the purchaser who will pay the par value thereof at the lowest interest rate, and the certificates or bonds shall be drawn accordingly, but the rate of interest shall in no case exceed five per cent per annum, payable annually or semi-annually. The city clerk shall certify to the county auditor the rate of interest so determined, and interest shall be computed upon the assessments at such annual rate, in accordance with the terms of Section 5."

Sec. 6. Section 11 of said Chapter 185 shall be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 11. Nothing in this act contained shall apply to any city operating under a charter by it adopted in pursuance of Section 36, Article 4, of the Constitution of Minnesota.

The term city council in this act as amended shall be held to refer to the governing body of such cities, whether so called or called common council or otherwise. The proportion of the cost of any improvement which may be made payable out of the city's general fund by resolution under Section 2, and for which certificates or bonds are issued, shall be accounted a part of the bonded debt of the city, but the city's liability upon any guaranty to make good deficiencies under Section 10, shall not be taken into account as part of its indebtedness, until the amount of such deficiency of collection, defined as aforesaid, is determined, and then only for the amount of such deficiency."

Sec. 7. The title to said Chapter 185, General Laws 1911, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"An act relating to the acquisition of lands for streets, parks and parkways in cities of the first class and the improvement and government thereof and the improvement and government of existing streets and parkways."

AN ACT to amend Section 9 of Chapter 312 of the General Laws of 1903, as amended by Chapter 364 of the General Laws of 1909, authorizing cities having a population of 10,000 or less to establish and maintain a general system of sewers and to maintain, alter, relay and extend any existing system of sewers, and to provide for the cost thereof, and to create sewer districts within the limits of such cities.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That Section 9 of Chapter 312 of the General Laws of 1903 as amended by Chapter 364 of the General Laws of 1909, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 9. Whenever any work or improvement provided for by this act shall have been determined upon and a contract let therefor, the city engineer, or other competent engineer selected by the city council, shall forthwith calculate the proper amount to be specially assessed for such district, joint district and lateral sewers against every assessable lot, piece or parcel of land within the sewer district affected, without regard to cash valuation, in accordance with the provisions of section 5 of this act.

Provided, that no property shall be especially assessed for the cost of a sewer in excess of the cost of a sewer eighteen inches in diameter, and that whenever any district, joint district or lateral sewer of larger diameter than eighteen (18) inches shall be laid or relaid, the cost thereof in excess of the estimated cost of a like sewer eighteen (18) inches in diameter shall be paid out of the sewer fund, if any, or in case there is no sufficient sewer fund, then out of the general revenue fund of the city.

Provided, further, that in calculating the special assessment for any district sewer or joint district sewer, the cost of laying or relaying such sewer in any public ground, street or alley, and all catch basins, manholes, lamp holes and flushing valves and tanks, shall be taken as part of such district sewer or joint district sewer, and to be paid for by such special assessment.

And provided, further, that private owners may lay, relay or extend any lateral sewer through any public ground, street or alley, and connect the same with any general, district or joint district sewer, upon permission granted by a majority of the city council, and that any private owner alone, or two or more owners jointly, may lay, relay, or extend lateral sewers through private ground pursuant to rights acquired therefor by agreement or purchase from any private owner or owners. In the event that any private owner shall alone or jointly with others lay, relay or extend any such lateral through public ground, the city shall not be or become in any way or in any respect liable for any act or negligence involved therein.

When such engineer shall have finished his calculation of the amount to be specially assessed, as aforesaid, against each lot, piece or parcel of land in the sewer district affected, he shall at once prepare and file with the city clerk or recorder tabulated statements, in duplicate, showing the proper description of each and every lot, piece or parcel of land to be specially assessed and the amount he has calculated against the same, and such statement shall be the basis of the assessment and be known as the proposed assessment to be made by the city council as hereinafter prescribed, and shall be laid before the city council for its approval at its next regular meeting, to be held not less than ten (10) days thereafter. The city clerk or recorder shall thereupon cause notice of the time and place when and where the city council will meet in regular session, to pass upon each proposed assessment, to be published in the official paper of the city at least ten (10) days prior to such meeting of the city council.

During all the time between the filing of such proposed assessment with the city clerk or recorder and such meeting of the City Council, such proposed assessment shall be open to inspection and copying by all persons interested.

At such meeting of the City Council, all persons aggrieved by such proposed assessment may appear before the City Council and present their reasons why such proposed assessment or any particular item thereof should not be adopted, and the City Council shall hear and pass upon all objections hereto, if any, and may alter or affirm and adopt such proposed assessment as shall be deemed just in the premises, and upon the adoption by resolution of such proposed assessment the same shall be certified by the city clerk and filed in his office, and shall thereupon be and constitute the special assessment. The amounts assessed against each lot, piece or parcel of land by such special assessment shall bear interest from the date of the adoption of such special assessment until the same have been paid, the rate of interest to be designated by a resolution of the City Council at the time of the adoption of such special assessment, but not to exceed six per cent (6) per annum and such special assessment, with the accruing interest thereon, shall be a paramount lien upon the property included therein from the time of the adoption of such assessment by the City Council, and shall remain such lien until fully paid, and shall have precedence over all other liens, except general taxes, and as to such shall be concurrent, and shall not be divested or impaired by any judicial sale, and no mistake in the description of the property or in the name of the owner shall invalidate the lien.

The City Council may at any time by resolution direct the City Clerk or recorder to make up and file in the office of the County Auditor a certified statement of the amount of all such unpaid assessments and the amount of interest which will be due thereon on the first day of January of the following year, and the City Clerk or recorder shall within twenty (20) days thereafter make up and file such certified statement in the office of the Auditor of the County, which statement shall also contain a description of the lands affected by the assessment. Such resolution may also direct that such special assessment shall be payable in equal annual installments, not exceeding ten, and payable on the first day of January of each year, each of said installments to bear interest at the rate hereinbefore provided until fully paid, and the certified statement of the city clerk or recorder shall in this case show the amount of each of such installments, the date when each installment becomes due and the amount of interest to be paid on each installment in each year. After said statement is filed in the office of the County Auditor it shall be the duty of such Auditor to extend upon the tax roll of each year the amount of such assessment or installment thereof, as the case may be, and the amount of interest which will become due on the first day of January of the following year as shown by said certified statement against the different lots or parcels of land therein described, and such amounts when so extended in each year shall be carried into the tax becoming due or payable in January of the following year, and enforced and collected in the manner provided for the enforcement and collection of State and County taxes, and the assessments and interest paid to the County Treasurer shall be paid over by him to the Treasurer of such city upon the apportionment of general taxes.

Provided, that any person may at any time before the transmission of the certified statement of the city clerk or recorder to the County Auditor pay such special assessment as to any lot, piece or parcel of land affected thereby, together with the interest accrued thereon at the date of such payment, to the City Treasurer and receive the proper receipt therefor, and the city clerk or recorder shall upon the presentation of such receipt from the City Treasurer cancel upon the special assessment roll the special assessments so paid.

Provided, further, that any person may pay any such assessment with accrued interest thereon after the same has been so certified to the County Auditor, provided, the tax roll containing such assessment has not, in due course been delivered to the County Treasurer for collection, and the receipt of such City Treasurer shall be sufficient authority upon presentation to the County Auditor for him to mark such assessment "paid" upon his roll, but after the tax roll has been delivered to the County Treasurer for collection, the said assessment must be paid to him, with the penalties allowed by law. The same penalties and interest shall attach and be collected by the County Treasurer on assessments as upon general taxes, which penalties and interest shall belong to the city and be turned over by said County Treasurer to the city with the assessments. This Section as amended shall apply to all assessments heretofore or hereafter levied under the provisions of this act."

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

CHAPTER 397—S. F. No. 925.

AN ACT to enable cities of the first class to acquire, construct and operate union railway passenger stations and tracks to connect the same with all railroad systems in the city; to require all railroad companies to run passenger trains to and from such stations and take and discharge passengers and their baggage therein; and to require compensation from railway companies for the use thereof; to acquire all lands and property necessary or convenient for such purposes by purchase, gift, condemnation or otherwise; to provide compensation to railway companies for the loss of existing passenger station facilities; and to confer on the Railway and Warehouse Commission power to regulate the use of such station and facilities.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. Each city of the first class, acting through its council, is hereby authorized and empowered to acquire from time to time, by purchase, gift, condemnation or otherwise, all lands necessary or convenient and to erect, construct and maintain thereon a union passenger railway station and to require every railway company whose line enters the city to run its passenger trains into and from such station and to receive and discharge passengers and their baggage therein, together with such tracks as may be necessary, convenient or adequate for the use of all passenger trains and for connecting such station with all the passenger tracks of all the railroad companies that enter the city.

The term "council" shall be deemed in this act to include the chief governing body of every city of the first class by whatever name known.

The council shall not proceed under this act until after having determined so to do by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the council.

Sec. 2. The Council shall prepare and file with the Railroad and Warehouse Commission (hereinafter called the "Commission") maps, plans and drawing showing the real property necessary or convenient to be taken and the location, dimensions and general plan of buildings, sheds, tracks and approaches to be maintained for the purposes aforesaid.

Section 3. The Commission shall give to each railroad company whose tracks enter the city not less than twenty (20) days' notice by service upon some freight or ticket agent of each such company in the city of the time and place when it will meet in such city to examine such maps, plans and drawings and hear evidence thereon for which purpose it may adjourn from time to time.

The Commission may permit amendments to be made by the city council to such maps, plans and drawings and shall approve same when found reasonably adequate and convenient for the accommodation of the public and the railroad companies.

Sec. 4. After such approval by the Commission the council shall cause a true copy of the maps showing the lands to be acquired to be certified by the City Clerk and filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds with the statement that such maps have been prepared and adopted by the council and approved by the Commission for the purposes of this act, and the filing of such maps in the office of the Register of Deeds shall be notice to all persons of the determination by the city to take such lands.

The council shall thereupon, with all convenient speed file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the County in which the city is situate a petition for the taking of such lands under the power of eminent domain and all persons shall take notice of the filing of such maps and such petition. The petition shall ask the court to appoint three appraisers, residents of the state, to ascertain and determine and award the compensation and damages to be paid to each owner, lessee, incumbrancer and other person interested in any portion of the land. Every railroad company whose passenger tracks enter the city, its lessees and mortgagees and others interested in its property shall be made a defendant as well as every such owner, lessee, incumbrancer or other persons interested in the land to be taken. Any defendant railroad company, its mortgagees, lessees and other persons interested may by answer show what buildings, lands and improvements it will be compelled to abandon and lose the benefit of, in whole or in part, by the transfer of its passenger business to the union station and the appraisers shall ascertain the facts and award reasonable compensation for such loss. The mortgagees and lessees, if any, and other persons interested in such buildings, lands and improvements, so far as known, shall be made parties defendant.

Sec. 6. Such petition shall be presented to the court at a time fixed, and notice thereof shall be served upon each of the defendants at least twenty (20) days before the time of hearing. If any of the defendants be not residents of the state, of which the return of the sheriff that such defendant cannot be found in his county shall be prima facie evidence, the attorney for the city may file affidavit stating that he has mailed the notice to such defendant at the place of his residence, or that the residence of the defendant is not known, and thereupon notice may be served by publication once in each week for three successive weeks in the official newspaper of the city, the last of which publication shall occur at least twenty (20) days before the time of the hearing of the petition.

Sec. 7. The court at the time of such hearing upon evidence that the maps and plans have been approved by the Commission; shall appoint three appraisers to ascertain and award compensation and damages as aforesaid and by the same order shall order and determine that upon the completion or substantial completion of the station and tracks and the approval thereof by the Commission, every defendant railroad company, its successors and assigns, shall run all its passenger trains to and from such union station and take and discharge passengers and their baggage therein and pay compensation therefor as required by this act, and such order shall be construed as a final judgment and mandate of the court requiring the defendant railroad companies, their successors and assigns, so to do. Such order shall be conclusive of the right of the city to take the land described by the maps and the duty of the defendant Railroad companies to use the station as aforesaid and pay the rentals and compensation required by this act; and shall not be brought in question except by direct appeal therefrom.

Sec. 8. Appeal may be taken to the Supreme Court by any defendant or, in case of denial of the petition, by the city within thirty (30) days after notice of the filing of the order. Such notice may be served upon the parties or upon any attorney who has appeared. Notice of appeal need not be served upon defendants who have not appeared. Such appeal shall be given priority over other cases of the Supreme Court and shall be heard and determined as soon as the business of the court will permit without regard to term time.

Sec. 9. The time of meeting of the appraisers shall not be fixed after the time to appeal has expired, and in case any appeal is taken the time of the appraisers' meeting shall not be fixed until the final determination of all the appeals. Upon the expiration of the time for appeal or upon the final determination of all appeals, the court shall, upon the ex parte application of the city, fix the time for the first meeting of the appraisers. They shall take and file with the Clerk of the Court an oath for the faithful discharge of their duties and prepare notice of their first meeting, which notice shall be served upon all defendants in the manner prescribed for the serving of the notice of hearing of the petition. The appraisers shall hear all evidence offered and for that purpose adjourn from time to time, but no subsequent notice of the appraisers' meeting need be given. The Clerk of the Court, or one of his deputies, shall attend upon the meetings of the appraisers for the purpose of administering oaths and keeping brief minutes of the proceedings. The appraisers may, at their discretion, designate a stenographer to take the testimony of witnesses, and fix his compensation, which shall be paid by the petitioner.

Sec. 10. Upon the completion of the hearing the appraisers, or a majority of them, shall file a report of their award of damages and compensation to each defendant for the taking of or injury to and loss of his property. The damages shall be determined and fixed as of the date of filing the maps in the office of the Register of Deeds.

Sec. 11. Upon the filing of such report the attorney for the city shall give notice thereof to the defendants who have appeared, by service upon them or their attorneys. The report shall be final unless set aside by the court for good cause shown upon motion made within sixty (60) days after notice of filing the report. Defendants who have not previously appeared may make like motion within sixty (60) days after filing the report. In case the report is set aside as to any parcel or parcels the court shall recommit to the same appraisers, or appoint new appraisers, in its discretion, and by its order fix the time and place of their meeting of which other notice need not be given. Such appraisers shall proceed as directed in the first instance and the court shall have like power with respect to their report and shall proceed upon like notice. All awards not set aside shall be confirmed by the court and appeals may be taken to the Supreme Court as provided by law in case of orders in special proceedings.

Sec. 12. The court may, in any order appointing appraisers embody directions to the appraisers in relation to the measure of damages and any other matter as to which directions may seem to be expedient and the appraisers shall be governed thereby. The appraisers may at any time apply to the court for directions upon any questions arising before them. The appraisers shall in every instance view the premises and property to be taken. The court may during the progress of the proceedings make any other and further orders than those herein expressly provided for which it shall find necessary or convenient to accomplish fully the purpose of this act.

Sec. 13. Upon the final determination of the amount of damages to which each defendant is entitled the council has the power, within ninety (90) days to set aside and abandon the entire proceedings and if not so set aside the city shall be bound to pay the damages finally awarded and such interest thereon, if any, as the court may deem just. In determining the amount of interest the court shall consider the use which the defendant has made of the property in the meantime. The defendants shall likewise be entitled to taxes and assessments paid upon the property after the filing of the plat, or such part thereof, if any, as the court shall consider just, and in determining the question the court shall also consider the use which the defendant has made of the property.

Upon the failure of the council to abandon and set aside the proceedings within the ninety (90) days aforesaid the city shall upon ten (10) days' notice to all who have appeared apply to the court for a judgment and decree which judgment and decree shall transfer to and vest in the city every right, title, interest, estate, lien, claim and demand of every defendant in the proceedings and of all those who claim by, through or under the defendant, and in cases where the defendants are owners in fee the title of the city shall be a fee simple title, unqualified in any way whatever, and the judgment shall fix and determine the amount to which each defendant is entitled including principal and any interest or taxes allowed by the court. The credit of the city shall be pledged to the payment of such amounts.

Sec. 14. Upon the entry of such judgment the city shall be entitled to the possession of all property taken and the court shall issue a writ or writs to put the city in possession.

Sec. 15. The lands embraced in such maps and proceedings may include any and all stations, station grounds, tracks, bridges, lands and property of any railroad company or other public service corporation whether in use for railroad purpose or other public use or not, and the purposes of such union passenger station are hereby declared a paramount use to which any and all other public uses to which property has been previously devoted shall be subordinate.

Sec. 16. Immediately upon the entry of the judgment provided for in Section 15, the mayor of the city shall appoint, with the consent of the council, a board of three, (3) directors who shall be known as the "Union Station Directors." The term of the directors first appointed shall expire one on the first day of May next following and the other two on the first day of May and the next two successive years and thereafter one director shall be appointed each year for a term of three years to succeed those whose terms expire. The directors shall file with the City Clerk an oath for the faithful discharge of their duties.

It shall be the duty of the Union Station Directors to take possession of, manage, improve, regulate and control the use of the property so acquired and to employ and to select all agents and employes necessary for the purpose, but subject and according to any law governing classification and appointment of the officers and employes of the city. The directors shall belong to the unclassified service. The directors shall erect and construct station buildings and appurtenances and the tracks connecting the same with the tracks of the railroad companies and shall arrange for the use of existing tracks and facilities during the process of construction and change so as to interrupt as little as may be the business of the different railroad companies and so as to interfere as little as possible with the convenience of the public.

Sec. 17. Upon the completion or substantial completion of the station, appurtenances and connecting tracks the directors shall from time to time make all necessary rules and regulations for the use thereof by the different railroad companies in such manner as best to serve their convenience and the public convenience and thereafter the directors shall manage and control the entire property.

Sec. 18. The council shall have the power to raise money for the payment of such awards and interest thereon after the date of such judgment at the rate of 6 per cent per annum and to pay the cost of all improvements aforesaid and all expenses incurred by the issue and sale of special union station bonds of the city in an amount to be approved by the Commission for the payment of which the net revenues of the station facilities aforesaid shall be pledged, which bonds may be secured by a mortgage upon the property. The city shall not otherwise be liable upon such bonds and mortgage.

Sec. 19. The bonds may be issued in such amounts and for such times as the council shall deem best and the commission approve, and shall be sold from time to time at public sale or upon sealed bids after advertisement once a week for not less than three weeks in the official newspaper to the purchaser who will pay the par value thereof at the lowest annual interest rate, which interest shall be payable semi-annually. The bonds my be payable to bearer with semi-annual interest coupons attached, or may be registered in the name of the owner and transferred as to principal only upon the register with a provision for changing from coupon bonds to registered bonds and vice versa.

Sec. 20. Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That subdivision two (2) of section one thousand six hundred and forty (1640), Revised Laws of the State of Minnesota for the year one thousand nine hundred and five (1905), as amended by Chapter three hundred thirty-one (331), General Laws of Minnesota for the year one thousand nine hundred and nine (1909), be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

2. It may print or use in its policy printed forms of description and specification of the property insured, including permits for the use of electricity, gasoline, acetylene, or storage of other extra hazardous product or material, for repairs and improvements, for the operation or ceasing to operate, for the maintenance of sprinkling or other improvements, and for the use of the premises for ordinary work and materials incident to the business.

Any permit for the use or storage of a hazardous product may contain a caution giving instructions as to the proper method of use or storage.

It may print or use in its policy printed forms for insurance against loss of rents and rental values, leaseholds of buildings, use and occupancy, and indirect or consequential loss or damage caused by change of temperature resulting from the destruction of refrigerating or cooling apparatus, or any of its connections.

It may also use a form specifically excluding the last mentioned hazard.

When the policy covers a lumber risk upon the request of the insured in writing, of which fact such writing shall be the only evidence, and if in consideration thereof a reduction in the rate of premium is made by the company, the form known as the "clear space lumber clause" may be used, said form to be in the following terms, to-wit:

The rate of premium upon the within policy has been reduced from the sum of $........ to the sum of $........ and in consideration of such reduction the assured agrees that a continuous space of .... feet shall hereafter at all times be maintained between the property hereby insured and any woodworking or manufacturing establishment; said space shall, in all cases, exclude and be measured from the exterior boundary of any permanent structure or addition connected with or attached to (here insert description of nearest wood-worker), said space not to be occupied by any independent or disconnected building or structure (here insert exceptions if any), or by accumulation of combustible materials of any kind and except the loading or unloading only within or transportation of lumber or timber products across such clear space. It shall not be used for handling, piling or sorting lumber for temporary purposes or otherwise. This clause shall not be construed to prohibit the maintenance or operation within said clear space of tramways used exclusively for the transportation of lumber, provided, that lumber is neither piled or stored thereon. Sorting platforms shall not be held tramways within the meaning of this clause, and failure upon the part of the insured to comply with the terms of this clause shall not avoid this policy, nor in any manner lessen the liability of the company hereunder but in case of such failure the assured shall be liable to the company for the difference in the premium hereinbefore set forth.

It may also print or use in its policy a permit containing what is know as the "Watchman Clause", said clause to be in the following words, towit:

"The insured agrees that during the continuance of this policy he will uniformly and constantly maintain a watch service in connection with said premises, and in consideration of such uniform and constant watch service the rate of premium charged upon the policy has been reduced from $........ to .... and it is hereby expressly agreed and understood that the failure of the assured to maintain such uniform and constant watch service or comply with this clause or agreement, shall in no manner, nor to any extent avoid this policy, or in case of loss lessen the liability of the company under this policy, but in the event of the failure of the assured to maintain such watch service or perform his part of this agreement, he shall then be liable, and hereby agrees to pay said full premium for the unexpired term of said policy.

It may also print or use in its policy a printed form providing that in case of a risk equipped with automatic sprinklers the assured shall use due diligence in seeing that the equipment is properly maintained; also a permit that the premises may remain vacant or unoccupied for a stipulated number of days beyond the thirty (30) days provided in the policy, for which permit an additional premium may be charged; also a form whereby the assured agrees that, for a reduction in the rate of premium, barrels and buckets of water shall be kept at hand at all times; that failing so to do, the assured shall be liable for the highest rate written in the policy; also a form may be attached excluding liability for loss or damage to dynamos and other electrical appliances caused by electric current, either natural or artificial.

It may also print or use in its policy printed forms providing that in case of loss such loss shall be payable to the mortgagee, as his, her, its, or their interest may appear; a printed form in the following words, to-wit: "Subject to the stipulations, provisions and conditions contained in this policy, the loss, if any, is payable to .... mortgagee, as his, her, its or their interest may appear."

It may also print or use in its policy in case the assured desires liability to attach to several buildings, divisions or locations in [illegible] form in the following words, to-wit: [illegible] is hereby agreed [illegible] this policy shall attach to or on each building, division or location in such proportion as the value in or on such building, division or location bears to the aggregate value of the subject insured."

It may also print or use in its policy the following clause, to-wit:

"The insured has relinquished all rights to recover for loss or damage by fire from .... (Here insert name of individual, partnership, association or corporation.)"

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

PART 1.

COMPENSATION BY ACTION AT LAW—MODIFICATION OF REMEDIES.

Section 1. When personal injury or death is caused to an employe by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, of which injury the actual or lawfully imputed negligence of the employer is the natural and proximate cause, he, or, in case of death, his personal representative, for the exclusive benefit of the surviving spouse and next of kin, shall receive compensation by way of damages therefor from his employer, provided the employe was himself not wilfully negligent at the time of receiving such injury; and the question of whether the employe was willfully negligent shall be one of fact to be submitted to the jury, subject to the usual powers of the court over verdicts rendered contrary to the evidence, or to law.

Sec. 2. In all cases brought under Part 1. of this act it shall not be a defense (a) that the employe was negligent, unless and except it shall also appear that such negligence was willful; (b) that the injury was caused by the negligence of a fellow employe; (c) that the employe had assumed the risks inherent in, or incidental to the work, or arising out of and in the course of his employment from the failure of the employer to provide and maintain safe premises and suitable appliances, which grounds of defense are hereby abolished except as provided in Section 4.

Sec. 3. If the employer elects not to come under Part 2. of this act, he loses the right to interpose the three defenses named in Section 2 in any action brought against him for personal injury or death of an employe.

Sec. 4. If the employer becomes subject to Part 2 of this act and the employe does not, then the employer may set up such defenses as are available at the time of the passage of this act.

Sec. 7. No claim for legal services or disbursements pertaining to any demand made or suit brought under the provisions of this act shall be an enforceable lien against the amount paid as compensation, or be valid or binding in any other respect, unless the same be approved in writing by the Judge presiding at the trial, or in case of settlement without trial, by a Judge of the District Court. Provided, that if notice in writing be given the defendant, of such claim for legal services or disbursements, the same shall be a lien against the amount paid as compensation, subject to determination of the amount and approval hereinbefore provided. Sec. 10. Such agreement or the election hereinafter provided for shall be a surrender by the parties thereto of their rights to any other method, form or amount of compensation or determination thereof than as provided in Part 2 of this act, and an acceptance of all the provisions of Part 2 of this act, and shall bind the employe himself and for compensation for his death shall bind his personal representative, the surviving spouse and next of kin, as well as the employer, and those conducting his business during bankruptcy or insolvency, for compensation for death or injury, as provided for by Part 2 of this act.

Sec. 12. Either party may terminate his acceptance, or his election not to accept of the provisions of Part 2. by thirty (30) days' notice to the other. A duplicate of such notice with proof of service attached thereto shall be filed with the Labor Commissioner and the time shall not begin to run until the notice is so filed.

Provided, however, that during the thirty (30) days immediately succeeding the taking effect of this act, notice of election not to accept the provisions of Part 2. may be given by either party to the other as above provided, and shall be immediately effective as a notice of election, upon filing duplicate thereof with the Labor Commissioner.

(c) For permanent partial disability, the compensation shall be based upon the extent of such disability. In cases included by the following schedule the compensation shall be that named in the schedule, to-wit:

(8) If the deceased employe leave a widow and four or more dependent children, there shall be paid to the widow for the benefit of herself and such children, sixty per centum of the monthly wages of the deceased.

(9) In case of remarriage of a widow without children, she shall receive a lump sum settlement equal to one-half of the amount of the compensation remaining unpaid. In case of remarriage of a widow who has dependent children, the unpaid balance of compensation which would otherwise become due to her, shall be paid to such children.

(10) If the deceased employe leave a dependent orphan, there shall be paid forty per centum of the monthly wages of deceased, with ten per centum additional for each orphan in excess of two, with a maximum of sixty per centum of such wages.

(11) If the deceased employe leave a dependent husband and no dependent child, there shall be paid to the husband twenty-five per centum of the monthly wages of deceased.

(12) If the deceased employe leave no widow or children or husband entitled to any payment hereunder, but should leave a parent or parents, either or both of whom are wholly dependent on the deceased, there shall be paid, if only one parent, twenty-five per centum of the monthly wages of the deceased, and if both parents, thirty-five per centum of the monthly wages of the deceased to such parent or parents.

(13) If the deceased leave no widow or dependent child or husband or parent entitled to any payment hereunder, but leaves a brother, sister or grandparent wholly dependent on him for support, there shall be paid to such dependent relative, if but one, twenty-five per centum of the monthly wages of the deceased, or if more than one thirty per centum of the monthly wages of the deceased, divided between or among them share and share alike.

(14) If compensation is being paid under Part 2 of this act to any dependent, such compensation shall cease upon the death or marriage of such dependent, unless otherwise provided herein.

(15) Partial Dependents. Partial dependents shall be entitled to receive only that proportion of the benefits provided for actual dependents which the average amount of the wages regularly contributed by the deceased to such partial dependent at, and for a reasonable time immediately prior to the injury, bore to the total wage of the deceased, during the same time.

(16) No Dependents. Expense of last sickness and burial not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100.00), in addition to the medical and hospital services and expenses provided by Section 18.

(17) Death Compensation. The compensation in case of death shall be subject to a maximum compensation of ten dollars ($10.00) per week and a minimum of six dollars ($6.00) per week; provided, that if at the time of injury the employe receives wages of less than six dollars ($6.00) per week, then the compensation shall be the full amount of such wages per week. This compensation shall be paid during dependency not exceeding three hundred (300) weeks. Payments to be made at the intervals when the wage was payable, as nearly as may be.

(18) In computing and paying compensation to orphans or other children, in all cases, only those under eighteen years of age, or those over sixteen years of age who are physically or mentally incapacitated from earning, shall be included; the former to receive compensation only during the time they are under eighteen, the latter only for the time they are so incapacitated, within the period of three hundred (300) weeks.

Sec. 15. INJURY INCREASING DISABILITY—If an employe receive an injury, which, of itself, would only cause permanent partial disability, but which, combined with a previous disability, does in fact cause permanent total disability, the employer shall only be liable for the permanent partial disability caused by the subsequent injury.

Sec. 16. LIABILITY OF JOINT EMPLOYERS—In case any employe for whose injury or death compensation is payable under Part 2 of this act shall, at the time of the injury, be employed and paid jointly by two or more employers subject to this act, such employers shall contribute the payment of such compensation in the proportion of their several wage liability to such employe. If one or more but not all of such employers should be subject to Part 2 of this act, and otherwise subject to liability for compensation hereunder, then the liability of such of them as are so subject, shall be to pay the proportion of the entire compensation which their proportionate wage liability bears to the entire wages of the employe: Provided, however, that nothing in this Section shall prevent any arrangement between such employers for a different distribution, as between themselves of the ultimate burden of such compensation.

Sec. 17. WAITING PERIOD—No compensation shall be allowed for the first two weeks after injury received, except as provided by Section 18, nor in any case unless the employer has actual knowledge of the injury or is notified thereof within the period specified in Section 19.

Sec. 18. MEDICAL, SURGICAL AND HOSPITAL SERVICE—Such medical and surgical treatment, medicine, medical and surgical supplies, crutches and apparatus as may be reasonably required at the time of the injury and thereafter during the disability, but not exceeding ninety (90) days, to cure and relieve from the effects of the injury, the same to be provided by the employer and in case of his inability or refusal seasonably to do so, the employer to be liable for the reasonable expense incurred by or on behalf of the employe in providing the same; provided, however, that the total liability under this Section shall not exceed the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) in value; except that the court may, during said period of ninety (90) days, upon necessity being shown therefor, require the employer to furnish such additional medical, surgical and hospital treatment and supplies as may be reasonable, which, together with any such sums or relief theretofore furnished shall not exceed in all two hundred dollars ($200.00) in value.

Sec. 19. NOTICE TO EMPLOYER OF ACCIDENT. Unless the employer shall have actual knowledge of the occurrence of the injury, or unless the injured workman, or a dependent, or some one in behalf of either, shall give notice thereof to the employer in writing, within fourteen (14) days after the occurrence of the injury, then no compensation shall be due until such notice is given or knowledge obtained. If the notice is given, or the knowledge obtained within thirty (30) days from the occurrence of the injury, no want, failure, or inaccuracy of a notice shall be a bar to obtaining compensation, unless the employer shall show that he was prejudiced by such want, defect or inaccurracy, and then only to the extent of such prejudice. If the notice is given, or the knowledge obtained within ninety (90) days, and if the employe, or other beneficiary, shall show that his failure to give prior notice was due to his mistake, inadvertence, ignorance of fact or law, or inability, or to the fraud, misrepresentation or deceit of the employer or his agent, then compensation may be allowed, unless the employer shall show that he was prejudiced by failure to receive such notice, in which case the amount of compensation shall be reduced by such sum as shall fairly represent the prejudice shown. Unless knowledge be obtained or notice given, within ninety (90) days after the occurrence of the injury, no compensation shall be allowed.

Sec. 20. The notice referred to in Section 19 may be served personally upon the employer, or upon any agent of the employer upon whom a summons may be served in a civil action, or by sending it by registered mail to the employer at the last known residence or business place thereof within the State, and shall be substantially in the following form:

NOTICE.

"You are hereby notified that an injury was received by (Name).............. who was in your employ at (Place)..............
while engaged as (Kind of Work).............. on or about the .... day of..............
19........ and who is now located at (Give Town, Street and Number).............. that so far as now known, the nature of the injury was.............................., and that compensation may be claimed therefor.
(Signed) ....
(Giving Address)
Dated..............19........"

But no variation from this form shall be material if the notice is sufficient to advise the employer that a certain employe, by name, received a specified injury in the course of his employment on or about a specified time, at or near a certain place specified.

Sec. 21. EXAMINATION AND VERIFICATION OF INJURY. (1) The injured employe must submit himself to examination by employer's physician, if requested by the employer, and at reasonable times thereafter upon employer's request. The employe shall be entitled upon request to have his own physician present at any such examination. Each party shall defray the cost of his own physician.

(2) Medical Examination by Neutral Physician—In case of dispute as to the injury, the Court may, of its own motion, or upon request of any interested party, appoint a neutral physician of good standing and ability to make an examination of the injured person, and report his findings to the Court. The expense of such examination shall be borne by the said parties.

(3) If the injured employe refuses to comply with any reasonable request for examination, his right to compensation shall be suspended and no compensation shall be paid while he continues in such refusal.

(4) Autopsy—In all death claims where the cause of death is obscure or disputed, any interested party may require an autopsy; the cost of such autopsy shall be borne by the party demanding the same.

Sec. 22. SETTLEMENT AND PAYMENT OF COMPENSATION. (1) The interested parties shall have the right to settle all matters of compensation between themselves. But all settlements shall be substantially in accordance with the provisions of Sections 13 and 14 of this act, and shall be approved by a Judge of the District Court. When so approved such settlements shall be filed with the Clerk of the District Court and in case of default by the employer in the payment of any compensation determined or agreed upon and the continuation of such default for the period of thirty (30) days after payment is due and payable, the employe may upon five (5) days' notice in writing to the employer of his intention to apply to the court for judgment, cause judgment to be entered on such settlement or determination for all compensation due and payable and unpaid; and such judgment shall have the same force and effect, and may be satisfied as other judgments of the same court.

(2) In case of a dispute over, or failure to agree upon a claim for compensation between employer and employe, or the dependents of the employe, either party may submit the claim, both as to questions of fact, the nature and effect of the injuries, and the amount of compensation therefor according to the schedule herein provided, to the judge of the district court of the county which would have jurisdiction in a civil case, or, where there is more than one judge of said court, then to either or any of said judges of such court; which judge is hereby authorized to hear and determine such disputes in a summary manner, and his decision as to all questions of fact shall be conclusive and binding, subject to the right of appeal as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 23. In case a deceased employe entitled to compensation is an alien, who leaves surviving him a wife or other dependent residing outside of the United States, the said Judge shall by order, in case no other personal representative of the deceased shall have been appointed by the Probate Court, direct payment to be made to the duly accredited consular officer of the foreign country of which the deceased was a citizen, if such consular officer resides in the State of Minnesota, upon like terms as to bond for the proper application of the compensation coming to the deceased, as are required of administrators. But in either case such representatives shall, when so appointed and at reasonable times thereafter, upon request of the employer, furnish to the employer a sworn statement containing a list of the dependents with the names, age, residence and relationship of each dependent to the deceased.

Sec. 24. Record of Settlements—Copies of all settlements and releases shall be filed by the employer with the Labor Commissioner within ten (10) days after such settlements are made, and shall become part of the permanent records of that department.

Sec. 24 A. The Labor Commissioner upon demand of an employe in this State, shall advise such employe of his rights under this act and shall assist, so far as possible, in adjusting differences between employe and employer under Part 2 thereof. He shall observe in detail the operation of the act throughout the State and shall make report thereof to each session of the Legislature, together with such suggestions and recommendations as to changes as he may deem necessary or advisable for the improvement thereof.

Sec. 25. Payment in Lump Sum—The amounts of compensation payable periodically hereunder, either by agreement of the parties, so approved by the court, or by decision of the court, may be commuted to one or more lump sum payments, except compensation due for death or permanent total disability, or for permanent partial disability resulting from the loss of an arm or a hand or a foot or a leg or an eye. These may be so commuted only with the consent of the District Court.

Sec. 26. Settlements to be Final—Exceptions—All settlements of compensation by agreement of the parties, and all awards of compensation made by the Court, where the amount paid or to be paid in settlement or by award, does not exceed the compensation for six months disability, shall be final and not subject to readjustment.

Sec. 27. When compensation payable periodically may be modified—All amounts paid by employer and received by the employe or his dependents, by lump sum payment, shall be final; but the amount of any award payable periodically for more than six (6) months may be modified as follows:

(a) At any time by agreement of the parties and approved by the court.

(b) If the parties cannot agree, then at any time after six (6) months from the date of the award an application may be made to the court by either party on the ground of increase or decrease of incapacity due solely to the injury. In such case the same procedure shall be followed as in Section 30 in case of disputed claim for compensation.

Sec. 28. Employer may pay award to trustee and be Discharged—At any time after the amount of any award has been agreed upon by the parties, or found and ordered by the Court, a sum equal to the present value of all future installments of compensation calculated on a six per cent basis, may (where death or the nature of the injury renders the amount of future payments certain) by leave of court, be paid by the employer to any savings bank or trust company of this State to be approved and designated by the Court, and such sum, together with all interest thereon, shall, thereafter be held in trust for the employe or the dependents of the employe, who shall have no further recourse against the employer. The payment of such sum by the employer, evidenced by the receipts in duplicate of the trustee one of which shall be filed with the Labor Commissioner, and the other filed with the Clerk of the District Court, shall operate as a satisfaction of said award as to the employer. Payment from said fund shall be made by the trustee in the same amounts and at the same time as are herein required of the employer until said fund and interest shall be exhausted. In the appointment of the trustee, preference shall be given, in the discretion of the court, to the choice of the injured employe or the dependents of the deceased employe, as the case may be.

Sec. 29. Preference as to Compensation—The right to compensation and all compensation awarded any injured employe or for death claims to his dependents, shall have the same preference against the assets of the employer as other unpaid wages for labor; but such compensation shall not become a lien on the property of third persons by reason of such preference.

Claims for compensation owned by an injured employe or his dependents, shall not be assignable and shall be exempt from seizure or sale for the payment of any debt or liability.

Sec. 30. PROCEDURE IN CASE OF DISPUTE. Procedure in case of dispute shall be as follows: Either party may present a verified complaint to said judge setting forth the names and residences of the parties and the facts relating to employment at the time of injury, the injury in its extent and character, the amount of wages being received at the time of injury, the knowledge of the employer of notice of the occurrence of said injury, and such other facts as may be necessary and proper for the information of the said judge, and shall state the matter or matters in dispute and the contention of the petitioner with reference thereto.

Upon the presentation of such complaint, it shall be filed with the Clerk of the District Court of the proper county, and the judge shall fix by order a time and place for the hearing thereof, not less than three (3) weeks after the date of the filing of said complaint. A copy of said complaint and order shall be served as summons in a civil action upon the adverse party within four (4) days after filing the complaint. Within seven (7) days after the service of such complaint the adverse party shall file an answer to said complaint, which shall admit or deny the substantial averments of the complaint, and shall state the contention of the defendant with reference to the matter in dispute as disclosed by the complaint. The answer shall be verified in like manner as required for a complaint.

At the time fixed for hearing, or any adjournment thereof the said judge shall hear such witnesses as may be presented by each party, and in a summary manner decide the merits of the controversy. This determination shall be filed in writing with the clerk of the said court, and judgment shall be entered thereon in the same manner as in causes tried in the said District Court, and shall contain a statement of facts as determined by said Judge. Subsequent proceedings thereon shall only be for the recovery of moneys thereby determined to be due, provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed as limiting the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, to review questions of law by certiorari. Costs may be awarded by said Judge in his discretion, and when so awarded the same costs shall be allowed, taxed and collected as are allowed, taxed and collected for like services and proceedings in civil cases.

Sec. 31. Rights of Action Preserved—Every right of action for death, by wrongful act or for injury by negligence, accruing to an injured employe prior to the taking effect of this act is continued and preserved under the existing law.

Sec. 31 A. Any employer who is responsible for compensation as provided in this act may insure the risk in any manner then authorized by law. But those writing such insurance shall in every case be subject to the conditions in this Section hereinafter named.

If the risk of the employer is carried by any insurer doing business for profit, or by any insurance association or corporation formed of employers, or of employers and workmen, to insure the risks under this act, operating by the mutual assessment or other plan or otherwise, then in so far as policies are issued on such risks they shall provide for compensation for injuries or death according to the full benefits of Part 2 of this act.

Such policies shall contain a clause to the effect that as between the workman and the insurer, that notice to and knowledge by the employer of the occurrence of the injury shall be deemed notice and knowledge on the part of the insurer; that jurisdiction of the employer for arbitration or other purposes shall be jurisdiction of the insurer, and that the insurer will in all things be bound by and subject to the awards rendered against such employer upon the risks so insured.

Such policies must provide that the workman shall have an equitable lien upon any amount which shall become owing on account of such policy to the employer from the insurer and in case of the legal incapacity or inability of the employer to receive the said amount and pay it over to the workman or dependents, the said insurer will pay the same direct to said workman or dependents, thereby discharging all obligations under the policy to the employer and all of the obligations of the employer and insurer to the workman; but such policies shall contain no provisions relieving the insurance company from payment when the employer becomes insolvent or discharged in bankruptcy or otherwise, during the period the policy is in force, if the compensation remains owing.

The insurer must be one authorized by law to conduct such business in the State of Minnesota, and authority is hereby granted to all insurance companies writing such insurance to include in their policies in addition to the requirements now provided by law the additional requirements, terms and conditions in this Section provided.

It shall be lawful for the employer and the workman to agree to carry the risks covered by Part 2 of this act in conjunction with other and greater risks and providing other and greater benefits such as additional compensation, accident, sickness or old age insurance or benefits, and the fact that such plan involved a contribution by the workman shall not prevent its validity if the employer pays not less than the cost of the insurance of the risks otherwise covered by Part 2 of this act, and workman gets the whole of the additional compensation or benefits.

If the employer shall insure to his employes the payment of the compensations provided by Part 2 of this act, in a corporation or association authorized to do business in the State of Minnesota, and approved by the Insurance Commissioner of the State of Minnesota, and if the employer shall post a notice or notices in a conspicuous place or in conspicuous places about this place of employment, stating that he is so insured and stating by whom insured, and if the employer shall further file copy of such notice with the Labor Commissioner of the State of Minnesota, then, and in such case, any suits or actions brought by an injured employe or his dependents shall be brought directly against the insurer, and the employer or insured shall be released from any further liability.

Provided that in case of insolvency or bankruptcy of such Insurance Company the employer shall not be released from liability under the provisions of this act.

The return of any execution upon any judgment of an employe against any such Insurance Company unsatisfied in whole or in part, shall be conclusive evidence of the insolvency of such Insurance Company and in case of the adjudication of bankruptcy or insolvency of any such Insurance Company by any court of competent jurisdiction, proceedings may be brought by the employe against the employer in the first instance or against such employer and Insurance Company jointly or severally or in any pending proceeding against any Insurance Company, the employer may be joined at any time after such adjudication.

Sec. 32 (1) THIRD PERSONS' RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES. Any person who creates or carries into operation any fraudulent scheme, artifice or device to enable him to execute work without himself being responsible to the workman for the provisions of this act, shall himself be included in the term "employer," and be subject to all the liabilities of employers under this act. But this Section shall not be construed to cover or mean an owner who lets a contract to a contractor in good faith, nor a contractor who, in good faith, lets to a sub-contractor a portion of his contract. Provided, however, that no person shall be deemed a contractor or sub-contractor, so as to make him liable to pay compensation within the meaning of this Section, who performs his work upon the employer's premises and with the employer's tools or appliances and under the employer's direction; nor one who does what is commonly known as "piece work," or in any way where the system of employment used, merely provides a method of fixing the workman's wages.

(2) Where compensation is claimed from, or proceedings taken against a person under subdivision One of this Section, the compensation shall be calculated with reference to the wage the workman was receiving foom the person by whom he was immediately employed at the time of the injury.

(3) The employer shall not be liable or required to pay compensation for injuries due to the acts or omissions of third persons not at the time in the service of the employer, nor engaged in the work in which the injury occurs, except as provided in Section 33, or under the conditions set forth in Section 34 (i).

Sec. 33. LIABILITY OF PARTY OTHER THAN EMPLOYER—PROCEDURE—(1) Third party under Part 2. That where an injury or death for which compensation is payable under Part 2 of this act is caused under circumstances also creating a legal liability for damages on the part of any party other than the employer, such party also being subject to the provisions of Part 2, of this act, the employe in case of injury or his dependents in case of death, may, at his or their option, proceed either at law against such party to recover damages, or against the employer for compensation under Part 2 of this act, but not against both.

If the employe in case of injury, or his dependents in case of death, shall bring an action for the recovery of damages against suh party other than the employer, the same amount thereof, manner in which and the persons to whom the same are payable, shall be as provided for in Part 2 of this act and not otherwise; provided that in no case shall such party be liable to any person other than the employe or his dependents for any damages growing out of or resulting from such injury or death.

If the employe or his dependents shall elect to receive compensation from the employer, then the latter shall be subrogated to the right of the employe or his defendents to recover against such other party, and may bring legal proceedings against such party and recover the aggregate amount of compensation payable by him to such employe, or his dependents hereunder, together with the costs and disbursements of such action and reasonable attorney's fees expended by him therein.

(2) Third Party not Under Part 2.—That where the injury or death for which compensation is payable under Part 2 of this act was caused under circumstances also creating a legal liability for damages on the part of any party other than the employer, such party not being subject to the provisions of Part 2 of this act, legal proceedings may be taken by the employe or dependents against such other party to recover damages, notwithstanding the payment by the employer, or his liability to pay compensation hereunder. But in such case, if the action against such other party is brought by the injured employe or in case of his death by his dependents, and judgment is obtained and paid, or settlement is made with such other party, either with or without suit, the employer shall be entitled to deduct from the compensation payable by him, the amount actually received by such employe or dependents; provided that if the injured employe or in case of his death his dependents shall agree to receive compensation from the employer or shall institute proceedings to recover the same, or accept from the employer any payment on account of such compensation, such employer shall be subrogated to all the rights of such employe or dependents and may maintain, or in case an action has already been instituted, may continue the action either in the name of the employe or dependents, or in his own name against such other party for the recovery of damages, but such employer shall nevertheless pay over to the injured employe or dependents all sums collected from such other party by judgment or otherwise in excess of the amount of such compensation payable by the employer under Part 2 of this act, and costs, attorney's fees, and reasonable expenses incurred by such employer in making such collection or enforcing such liability; provided that in no case shall such party be liable to any person other than the employe or his dependents for any damages growing out of or resulting from such injury or death.

Sec. 34. WORDS AND PHRASES DEFINED. Throughout this act the following words and phrases as used therein shall be considered to have the following meaning respectively, unless the context shall clearly indicate a different meaning in the connection used.

(a) The word "compensation" has been used both in Part 1 and Part 2 of this act to indicate the money benefits to be paid on account of injury or death. Strictly speaking, the benefit which an employe may receive by action at law under Part 1, of this act is damages, and this is indicated in Section 1. To avoid confusion, the word "compensation" has been used in both parts of the act, but it should be understood that under Part 1 the compensation by way of damages is determined by an action at law.

(b) "Child" or "Children" shall include posthumous children and all other children entitled by law to inherit as children of the deceased.

(c) A dependent child or orphan shall be considered to mean an unmarried child under the age of eighteen years or one over that age, who is physically or mentally incapacitated from earning.

(d) The term "employer" as used here shall mean every person not excluded by Section 8, who employs another to perform a service for hire, and to whom the "employer" directly pays wages, and shall include any person or corporation, copartnership, or association or group thereof, and shall include county, village, town, city, school district and other public employers, except the State.

(e) The term "physician" shall include "surgeon," and in either case shall mean one authorized by law to practice his profession within one of the United States and in good standing in his profession at the time.

(f) The term "workman" shall include the plural and all ages and both sexes.

(g) The terms "employe" and "workman" are used interchangeably and have the same meaning throughout this act, and shall be construed to mean:

(1) Every person in the service of a county, city, town, village or school district therein, under any appointment or contract of hire, express or implied, oral or written; but shall not include any official of any county, city, town, village or school district therein, who shall have been elected or appointed for a regular term of office, or to complete the unexpired portion of any regular term.

(2) Every person, not excluded by Section 8, in the service of another under any contract of horse, express or implied, oral or written, including aliens and also including minors who are legally permitted to work under the laws of the State, who for the purpose of making election of remedy under this act shall be construed the same, and have the same power of contracting and electing as adult employes.

(h) The word "accident" as used in the phrases "personal injuries due to accident" or "injuries or death caused by accident" in this act shall, unless a different meaning is clearly indicated by the context, be construed to mean an unexpected or unforeseen event, happening suddenly and violently, with or without human fault and producing at the time, injury to the physical structure of the body.

(i) Personal Injuries, etc.—Without otherwise affecting either the meaning or interpretation of the abridged clause, "presonal injuries arising out of and in the course of employment," it is hereby declared:

Not to cover workmen except while engaged in, on, or about the premises where their services are being performed, or where their service requires their presence as a part of such service at the time of the injury, and during the hours of service as such workmen, and shall not include an injury caused by the act of a third person or fellow employee intended to injure the employee because of reasons personal to him, and not directed against him as an employee, or because of his employment.

(j) Wherever in this act the singular is used, the plural shall be included; where the masculine gender is used, the feminine and neuter shall be included.

(k) Amputations—Amputations between the elbow and the wrist shall be considered as the equivalent of the loss of a hand, and amputation between the knee and the ankle shall be considered as the equivalent of the loss of a foot.

(l) The Labor Commissioner, referred to in this act, shall denote the Commissioner of Labor of the State of Minnesota.

(m) "The Court" as used herein shall mean the District Court which would have jurisdiction in an ordinary civil case involving a claim for the injuries or death in question, and "The Judge" shall mean a Judge of said Court.

(n) As to Constitutionality—In case for any reason any paragraph or any provision of this act shall be questioned in any court of last resort and shall be held by such court to be unconstitutional or invalid, the same shall not be held to affect any other paragraph or provision of this act, except that Parts 1 and 2 are hereby declared to be inseparable, and if either Part be declared void or inoperative in an essential part, so that the whole of such part must fall, the other part shall fall with it and not stand alone. Part 1 of this act shall not apply in cases where Part 2 becomes operative in accordance with the provisions thereof, but shall apply in all other cases, and in such cases shall be in extension or modification of the common law.

Sec. 35. REPEALING INCONSISTENT ACTS—All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provision of this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 36. TIME ACT SHALL TAKE EFFECT—This act shall take effect from and after the 1st day of October, A. D. 1913.

Approved April 24, 1913.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. Where in a foreclosure of a real estate mortgage by action or in an attempted foreclosure of a real estate mortgage by action prior to 1910, the defendants or any of them were non-residents and the summons in said action was served on the non-resident defendants, but it does not affirmatively appear that the affidavit showing the non-residence of the defendants and other matters as required by Section 5204, General Statutes 1894, or Section 4111, Revised Laws 1905, was ever filed, but a judgment of foreclosure has been rendered and the property covered by said mortgage attempted to be foreclosed has been sold under such judgment and the sheriff has issued his certificate of sale and the sale has been confirmed by the court, such sheriff's certificate or the record thereof in the office of the Register of Deeds of the proper county shall be conclusive evidence of the filing of such affidavit, and no such judgment or sale shall be deemed invalid or be set aside unless the action or proceeding in which the validity of such judgment or sale is called in question or the defense alleging its invalidity be interposed with reasonable diligence and not later than five (5) years after such sale.

The City Council or other governing body of any city of the first class not operating under a home-rule charter, notwithstanding any provision of its charter to the contrary, may hereafter provide by ordinance for the payment of all current bills incurred by the city for goods, wares and merchandise, the purchase whereof has been duly authorized for the use of the city or any of its departments, without waiting the formal vote of said governing body directing payment thereof.

CHAPTER 500—S. F. No. 103.

AN ACT to enable a county or counties to establish and maintain tuberculosis sanatoria.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. The board of county commissioners of any county in this state or the boards of county commissioners in any group of counties in this state shall have and are hereby granted and given power with the advice and approval of the advisory commission of the Minnesota Sanatorium for Consumptives to establish and maintain as hereinafter provided, a sanatorium for the treatment and care of persons affected with tuberculosis, provided that said power so granted shall be exercised as follows:

a. Such sanatorium may be established by a majority vote of the commissioners of such county or a majority vote of the commissioners of each such group of counties whenever and in cases where the amount of the cost of construction to be paid by such county or group of counties shall not exceed such sum as may be raised by a tax levy of not to exceed one mill on the dollar of the taxable property of any such county or group of counties.

b. When the cost of constructing said sanatorium shall exceed the amount specified in subdivision "a" hereof or whenever it is necessary to issue the bonds of such county or any county in any such group of counties to defray the cost which such county or any of such counties are required to pay under the terms of this act, then and in all such cases the questions of (1) whether such sanatorium shall be established (and when necessary) (2) whether such bonds shall be issued to defray any county's portion of the cost thereof, shall be submitted to the voters of such county or, if more than one, to the voters of each of such counties requiring a bond issue, and the sanatorium shall not be established or bonds issued therefor unless a majority of the voters of such county, or, if more than one, of each such county voting thereon shall vote in favor of each proposition submitted to it or to them.

c. The board of county commissioners of any such county, or, if more than one, the board of county commissioners of any such counties shall have the power and authority in any case to submit the question to the voters of any such county or counties in the way and manner provided in this act and in the event that the cost which the county, or, if more than one, the counties will be required to pay for the erection of such sanatorium under this act shall be less than an amount equal to the amount which can be raised in any such county or counties by a tax levy of one mill on the dollar of the taxable property of each such county or group of counties and the commissioners of any such county or counties shall decide not to construct the same under the power herein contained, on a petition of not less than 5 per cent of the freeholders of such county or counties, such question shall be submitted to the voters of such county or group of counties and if a majority of the voters of such county or a majority of the voters of each county of such group of counties voting thereon vote in favor thereof, then such sanatorium shall be erected hereunder and a tax levied if necessary to pay the cost which such county or counties are required to pay under this act, which tax shall be extended and collected as herein provided.

Provided, that any county or group of counties which has heretofore commenced proceedings to erect a sanatorium or taken any steps preliminary thereto may by a resolution of the board of county commissioners thereof, adopted by a majority vote of said board of county commissioners or each board of county commissioners, as the case may be, determine to proceed under the provisions of this act and may continue hereunder and complete such sanatorium and be entitled to all the provisions and benefits provided for in this act.

Provided, however, that the said sanatorium when so constructed shall in all respects conform to the requirements of this act.

The board of county commissioners of any such county, or the board of county commissioners of each of such group of counties, if more than one, erecting such sanatorium under the provisions of this act, may, by resolution, create a fund to be known as the "Sanatorium Fund"; and such funds may be raised by taxation at the time of deciding to erect such sanatorium under this act or at any time subsequent thereto, or if submitted to the people at the first meeting of the board of county commissioners, after the people of said county or counties shall have voted to erect the same, and the amount so determined by said board to be raised by taxation shall be levied by the county auditor in addition to all other taxes authorized by law, and shall be extended on the tax lists and collected as other county taxes; and this provision shall be construed to vest in the county commissioners of such county or counties, as the case may be, power to levy a tax to pay interest and principal of any bonds authorized hereunder as the same shall come due and become payable, and the said tax shall be levied, extended and collected in the same way and manner as other county taxes are levied, extended and collected, and shall be used for no other purpose, provided that no institution established under this act shall have less than twenty beds.

The question as to the establishment and maintenance of the sanatorium, or issuance of bonds therefor, may be submitted at a general or special election; if at the general election the notices of such election shall state that the questions will be voted upon and the provisions for taking such vote shall be made upon the blue ballots furnished therefor, as in the case of other questions, and the result shall be canvassed and returned in like manner; if at a special election, such election shall be ordered by resolution of the county board and the procedure for, at and after such election shall be substantially and as far as applicable the same as provided for in Sections 399 to 403 inclusive, of the Revised Laws of 1905, and the county auditor upon the passage of the necessary resolution, shall proceed as in said sections provided. If the proposition is to affect more than one county, then the necessary action shall be taken by the county board and county auditor of each county affected. If funds are to be borrowed from the state, the procedure outlined herein shall be sufficient for that purpose, instead of those provided for in Chapter 122, General Laws of 1907.

If the bonding proposition should carry at any such election at which both propositions are voted upon, and the other proposition should fail to carry, no bonds shall be issued to provide money for the establishing or maintaining of a sanatorium until at some future election at which the question is properly submitted, and a majority of the votes cast upon the question shall have been in favor of the establishing and maintaining of such sanatorium. Where more than one county is involved the result of the vote on the question or questions submitted in each of said counties, shall be certified by the county auditor thereof to the county auditors of the other counties interested.

The amount of taxes to be raised in any one county for the construction of any such sanatorium hereunder, shall never exceed an amount equal to the amount which may be raised by a tax levy of one mill on the dollar of taxable property in such county.

Sec. 2. Upon the decision to establish and maintain a Tuberculosis Sanatorium under this act, the County Commissioners of any County shall appoint a Commission consisting of three Members, residents of the county, at least one of whom shall be a licensed physician. These members shall be chosen with reference to their special fitness for such office and the appointment of said licensed physician before becoming effective shall be approved by the State Board of Health. Under the first appointment one member shall be chosen to hold office for one year, one for two years and one for three years, all from the first Monday of the next July following such appointment, and thereafter one member shall be chosen each year to serve for a period of three years commencing with the first Monday in July in each year respectively, and each appointee shall hold office until his successor is appointed and qualified. This Commission shall be known as the County Sanatorium Commission. Its members shall serve without compensation but shall be entitled to reimbursement for all necessary expenses incurred by them in connection with their official duties.

Said County Sanatorium Commission shall have full charge and control, except as hereinafter provided, of all moneys received for the credit of the Tuberculosis Sanatorium fund hereinafter described and full charge and control of the location, establishing, and maintenance of any Santorium building constructed under this act and shall make such regulations concerning the same as may seem to it advisable, but no site shall be secured and no buildings erected or equipped without the approval and consent of the Advisory Commission of the Minnesota Sanatorium for Consumptives, and before final action is taken the plans and specifications shall be submitted to the State Board of Health for approval as provided by Section 2131, Revised Laws of 1905. The State Board of Control, shall have full power and control over the construction and equipment of any such Sanatorium whose establishment has been determined upon by said County Sanatorium Commission as hereinafter provided.

Said County Sanatorium Commission may when deemed necessary appoint and employ with the approval and consent of the Advisory Commission of the Minnesota Sanatorium for Consumptives a competent Superintendent who shall employ other necessary help at a compensation to be determined by the County Sanatorium Commission. Said Superintendent shall be the executive officer of the Sanatorium and he shall act as Secretary of the County Sanatorium Commission. One member of said Commission shall be elected annually by the Commission as its President.

Sec. 3. Two or more Counties may unite in acquiring, establishing, equipping and maintaining such Sanatorium and in such case said Commission shall be composed of three members chosen from the County in which said Sanatorium is to be located, as provided for in Section 2, and two members shall be chosen from each of the other Counties interested by the County Commissioners of each such County; under the first appointment one member shall be chosen to hold office for one year and one for two years from the first Monday of the next July following such appointment and thereafter one member shall be chosen each year to serve for a period of two years, commencing with the first Monday in July each year and each appointee provided for in this Section shall hold office until his successor is appointed and qualified.

Sec. 4. A County or group of Counties wishing to establish a Sanatorium as indicated in Section One shall through the Board or Boards of County Commissioners appropriate one-half the necessary funds in apportioned amounts as hereafter provided for the establishment, construction and equipment of the same and may issue bonds therefor in the manner provided by law for the issuance by Counties of bonds for other purposes. The State Treasurer shall pay out of the funds hereafter provided under this act one-half the cost of the erection and equipment of each such Sanatorium including cost of site, which payment shall be made in the manner provided by law for the payment of expense incurred by the State Board of Control in the erection and equipment of public buildings; provided, that the amount contributed by the state towards the cost of the erection and equipment of each of such sanatorium including cost of site shall not exceed Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00). Whenever any such Sanatorium has been erected and equipped said County Sanatorium Commission shall have full charge and control of the maintenance of the same, but may confer with the State Board of Control with reference thereto or respecting the purchase of supplies therefor whenever it desires so to do, and said State Board of Control shall aid in the securing of favorable contracts for the purchase of supplies when so called upon. Said County Sanatorium Commission shall determine by resolution each year prior to July 1st., the amount of money necessary for the maintenance of such Sanatorium during the following year and a certified copy of such resolution shall be forthwith forwarded to the Board or Boards of County Commissioners, and such Board or Boards may in their discretion at the regular meeting in July include the properly approved and apportioned amount in the annual levy of County taxes. In no case shall the amount of such levy in any one year exceed one mill on the dollar of assessed valuation. For the maintenance of each free patient treated in the Sanatorium, the sum of Five Dollars ($5.00) per week shall be paid to said County or group of Counties by the State Treasurer out of funds appropriated under this act, which payments shall be made monthly upon warrants of the State Auditor, drawn upon the State Treasury, provided that the President and Executive Secretary of the Advisory Commission of the Minnesota Sanatorium for Consumptives certify that the Institution has been properly conducted. In case two or more Counties unite in a decision to establish a Sanatorium, the County Sanatorium Commission shall apportion by resolution one-half of the estimated total cost of site, erection and equipment and the estimated total cost of maintenance for the ensuing year between or among said Counties, and designate the amount to be raised by each County, which said apportionment, shall be based approximately upon the respective population of said Counties as determined by the last previous Federal or State Census. When so apportioned said Commission shall forward to the Board of County Commissioners of each County a certified copy of such resolution, and each County Board shall then proceed to pay if it has funds available for that purpose or to make a tax levy, for the amount apportioned to its County. All moneys collected or received for such Sanatorium purposes except cost of site, erection and equipment shall be deposited in the Treasury of said County or Counties to the credit of the Tuberculosis Sanatorium funds, and shall not be used for any other purpose and shall be paid out in a manner provided by law for other County expenses by the proper officers of said County or Counties upon the properly authenticated vouchers of the County Sanatorium Commission signed by the President and Secretary thereof and all moneys collected or received to be used toward the payment of the cost of site, erection and equipment of such Sanatorium shall be sent by each County Treasurer to the State Treasurer to be placed to the credit of said Sanatorium and shall be paid out in the manner as in this Section provided for other payments towards cost of site, erection and equipment of said Sanatorium.

Sec. 5. Such County Sanatorium Commission shall file monthly on or before the fifteenth (15th) of each month with the State Auditor reports of all its financial transactions for the preceding month and the Public Examiner shall examine all the books and accounts of said County Sanatorium Commission pertaining to its financial transaction at least twice a year and make report thereof to the Governor.

Sec. 6. The County Sanatorium Commission shall fix the amount to be charged for the care, treatment and maintenance of each patient.

When a patient is unable to pay said charges and has no kindred legally liable therefor from whom payment can be secured, said patient may be admitted without charge or a patient by whom or for whom continued payments cannot be made may become a free patient. Any individual, resident of the State, residing outside of a County or Counties maintaining a Tuberculosis Sanatorium, may apply for treatment in any Sanatorium established under this act, or any city, village, town or County may so apply on behalf of any of its charges, and such patient may be cared for therein upon payment of a weekly sum to be fixed by the County Sanatorium Commission, provided that the Advisory Commission of the Minnesota Sanatorium for Consumptives shall approve of the admission of such patient and the sum so fixed.

Sec. 7. Any resident of a County or Counties maintaining a Tuberculosis Sanatorium, who is afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis, whether in the incipient or advanced stage, is eligible for care in such Sanatorium and may apply for admission thereto, or anyone may apply on behalf of any such individual and the Superintendent shall when conditions so warrant admit said person to such Sanatorium for care and treatment, it being the intention that applications for residents of a County or Counties where a Sanatorium is located shall have precedence over applications for nonresidents, but preference shall always be given to patients in the most advanced stages of the disease. The Superintendent of each County Sanatorium shall keep lists of applications (resident and non-resident) numbered respectively in the order in which they are received. When the conditions warrant the admission of another patient, the Superintendent shall give to the applicant who is first upon the resident list, or if there be no resident list then to the applicant who is first upon the non-resident list, an order for examination, directed to one of the County's Examiners of the State Sanatorium to determine that said applicant is afflicted with tuberculosis. The fee for each examination by an examining physician shall be Three Dollars ($3.00) payable out of the funds of the Sanatorium for which the examination is made.

Sec. 8. The County Sanatorium Commission is empowered to accept as a trust any gift, donation or funds from any source, whether subject to the special provisions of the donors or not, and such gifts, donations or funds, shall be placed to the credit of the Tuberculosis Sanatorium fund in the Treasury of the County in which the Sanatorium is located, and shall be disbursed as provided for under Section 4.

Sec. 9. The Advisory Commission of the Minnesota Sanatorium for Consumptives is authorized to employ in connection with the carrying out of the purposes of this act, an Executive Secretary, and such other assistants and office help as may be necessary. It shall fix their compensation, which together with the necessary office and traveling expenses, not to exceed Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00) per annum, shall be paid by the State Treasurer out of funds appropriated under this act by the warrant of the State Auditor.

Sec. 10. Any County which has hitherto established, built and equipped or let the contract for building a Sanatorium under the provisions of Chapter 347, Laws of 1909, may by resolution of its County Commissioners make application to come under the provisions of this act and when the institution and the manner in which it is conducted meet with the approval of the Advisory Commission of the Minnesota Sanatorium for Consumptives the State Auditor shall draw his warrants upon the State Treasurer in favor of such County in the sum equal to Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) for each bed provided for a patient in such Sanatorium at the time such application is made and the State Treasurer shall pay such warrant out of the funds in the State Treasury provided for in this Act.

Sec. 11. Any County or group of Counties that has heretofore under Chapter 347, General Laws of 1909, levied a tax or otherwise provided for the establishment of a Sanatorium which has not been built and equipped may by resolution of the proper Board or Boards of County Commissioners come under the provisions of this act and receive the State aid herein provided for a County or Counties that may hereafter comply with the provisions hereof by depositing in the State Treasury for the credit of its County Sanatorium one-half of the estimated cost of the site, erection and equipment thereof and the County Treasurer or Treasurers upon the adoption of such resolution shall forthwith forward such amounts to the State Treasurer.

Sec. 12. In all Counties of this State now or hereafter having a Board of Control of Hospital and Charitable funds, the members of such Board of Control shall constitute such Commission, and shall perform the duties prescribed by this act, as part of their duties as members of such Board of Control and without additional compensation. In such counties, the Superintendent shall not be the Secretary of said Board or Commission, but the Secretary of such Board of Control shall perform the duties imposed by this act upon the Secretary of the County Sanatorium Commission without additional compensation.

Sec. 13. Wherever in this act the words "Sanatorium," "County Sanatorium" or "County Sanatorium Commission" are used, the same shall apply to a Sanatorium or Commission whether the Sanatorium in question is one for a County or a group of Counties. Each member of a County Sanatorium Commission shall before entering upon his duties take the oath provided by law and give a bond to be approved by the Board of County Commissioners of the County wherein such member resides in the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) to the State of Minnesota, conditioned as provided for in Chapter 107, General Laws of 1909, which said bond shall be filed with the Board of County Commissioners of such County.

Sec. 14. AN ACT to establish a Minimum Wage Commission, and to provide for the determination and establishment of minimum wages for women and minors.
Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. There is hereby established a commission to be known as the Minimum Wage Commission. It shall consist of three persons, one of whom shall be the Commissioner of Labor who shall be the chairman of the Commission, the Governor shall appoint two others, one of whom shall be an employer of women, and the third shall be a woman, who shall act as secretary of the commission. The first appointments shall be made within sixty days after the passage of this act for a term ending Jan. 1, 1915. Beginning with the year 1915 the appointments shall be for two years from the first day of January and until their successors qualify. Any vacancy that may occur shall be filled in like manner for the unexpired portion of the term.

Sec. 2. The Commission may at its discretion investigate the wages paid to women and minors in any occupation in the state. At the request of not less than one hundred persons engaged in any occupation in which women and minors are employed, the Commission shall forthwith make such investigation as herein provided.

Sec. 3. Every employer of women and minors shall keep a register of the names and addresses of and wages paid to all women and minors employed by him, together with number of hours that they are employed per day or per week; and every such employer shall on request permit the Commission or any of its members or agents to inspect such register.

Sec. 4. The commission shall specify times to hold public hearings at which employers, employees, or other interested persons may appear and give testimony as to wages, profits and other pertinent conditions of the occupation or industry. The Commission or any member thereof shall have power to subpoena witnesses, to administer oaths, and to compel the production of books, papers, and other evidence. Witnesses subpoenaed by the Commission may be allowed such compensation for travel and attendance as the Commission may deem reasonable, to an amount not exceeding the usual mileage and per diem allowed by our courts in civil cases.
Sec. 5. If after investigation of any occupation the Commission is of opinion that the wages paid to one-sixth or more of the women or minors employed therein are less than living wages, the Commission shall forthwith proceed to establish legal minimum rates of wages for said occupation, as hereinafter described and provided.

Sec. 6. The Commission shall determine the minimum wages sufficient for living wages for women and minors of ordinary ability, and also the minimum wages sufficient for living wages for learners and apprentices. The commission shall then issue an order, to be effective thirty days thereafter, making the wages thus determined the minimum wages in said occupation throughout the state, or within any area of the state if differences in the cost of living warrant this restriction. A copy of said order shall be mailed, so far as practicable, to each employer affected; and each such employer shall be required to post such a reasonable number of copies as the Commission may determine in each building or other work-place in which affected workers are employed. The original order shall be filed with the Commissioner of labor.

Sec. 7. The Commission may at its discretion establish in any occupation an advisory board which shall serve without pay, consisting of not less than three nor more than ten persons representing employers, and an equal number of persons representing the workers in said occupation, and of one or more disinterested persons appointed by the Commission to represent the public; but the one of the representatives of the public shall not exceed the number of representatives of either of the other parties. At least one-fifth of the members of any advisory board shall be composed of women, and at least one of the representatives of the public shall be a woman. The Commission shall make rules and regulations governing the selection of members and the modes of procedure of the advisory boards, and shall exercise exclusive jurisdiction over all questions arising with reference to the validity of the procedure and determination of said boards. Provided: that the selection of members representing employers and employes shall be so far as practicable thru election by employers and employees respectively.

Sec. 8. Each advisory board shall have the same power as the Commission to subpoena witnesses, administer oaths, and compel the production of books, papers, and other evidence. Witnesses subpoenaed by an advisory board shall be allowed the same compensation as when subpoenaed by the commission. Each advisory board shall recommend to the Commission an estimate of the minimum wages, whether by time rate or by price rate, sufficient for living wages for women and minors of ordinary ability, and an estimate of the minimum wages sufficient for living wages for learners and apprentices. A majority of the entire membership of an advisory board shall be necessary and sufficient to recommend wage estimates to the Commission.

Sec. 9. Upon receipt of such estimates of wages from an advisory board, the Commission shall review the same, and if it approves them shall make them the minimum wages in said occupation, as provided in Section 6. Such wages shall be regarded as determined by the Commission itself and the order of the Commission putting them into effect shall have the same force and authority as though the wages were determined without the assistance of an advisory board.
Sec. 10. All rates of wages ordered by the Commission shall remain in force until new rates are determined and established by the Commission. At the request of approximately one-fourth of the employers or employees in an occupation, the Commission must reconsider the rates already established therein and may, if it sees fit, order new rates of minimum wages for said occupation. The Commission may likewise reconsider old rates and order new minimum rates on its own initiative.

Sec. 11. For any occupation in which a minimum time rate of wages only has been ordered the Commission may issue to a woman physically defective a special license authorizing her employment at a wage less than the general minimum ordered in said occupation: and the Commissioner may fix a special wage for such person. Provided: that the number of such persons shall not exceed one-tenth of the whole number of workers in any establishment.

Sec. 12. Every employer in any occupation is hereby prohibited from employing any worker at less than the living wage or minimum wage as defined in this Act and determined in an order of the Commission: and it shall be unlawful for any employer to employ any worker at less than said living or minimum wage.

Sec. 13. It shall likewise be unlawful for any employer to discharge or in any manner discriminate against any employee because such employee has testified, or is about to testify, or because such employer believes that said employee is about to testify, in any investigation or proceeding relative to the enforcement of this act.

Sec. 14. Any worker who receives less than the minimum wage ordered by the Commission shall be entitled to recover in civil action the full amount due as measured by said order of the Commission, together with costs and attorney's fees to be fixed by the court, notwithstanding any agreement to work for a lesser wage.

Sec. 15. The Commission shall enforce the provisions of this act, and determine all questions arising thereunder, except as otherwise herein provided.

Sec. 16. The Commission shall biennially make a report of its work to the governor and the state legislature, and such reports shall be printed and distributed as in the case of other executive documents.
Sec. 17. The members of the Commission shall be reimbursed for traveling and other necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties on the Commission. The woman member shall receive a salary of eighteen hundred dollars annually for her work as secretary. Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. Whoever shall erect, establish, continue, maintain, use, own or lease any building, erection or place used for the purpose of lewdness, assignation or prostitution is guilty of a nuisance, and the building, erection or place, or the ground itself, in or upon which such lewdness, assignation or prostitution is conducted, permitted or carried on, continued or exists, and the furniture, fixtures, musical instruments, and movable property used in conducting or maintaining such public nuisance, are also declared a nuisance and shall be enjoined and abated as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 2. Whenever a nuisance is kept, maintained or exists, as defined in this act, the county attorney or any citizen of the county may maintain an action in equity in the name of the State of Minnesota, upon the relation of such county attorney or citizen, to perpetually enjoin said nuisance, the person or persons conducting or maintaining the same from further conducting or maintaining the same and the owner or agent of the building or ground upon which said nuisance exists from further permitting such building or ground or both to be so used. The defendants shall be served therein as in other actions and in such action the court, or judge in vacation, shall, upon the presentation of a verified complaint therefor alleging that the nuisance complained of exists, allow a temporary writ of injunction without bond, if the existence of such nuisance shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court or judge by evidence in the form of affidavits, depositions, oral testimony or otherwise as the complainant may elect, unless the court or judge by previous order, shall have directed the form and manner in which such evidence shall be presented, in which case it shall be so presented. Where a temporary injunction is prayed for, the court, on the application of plaintiff, may issue an ex parte restraining order, restraining the defendants and all other persons from removing or in any manner interfering with the furniture, fixtues, musical instruments and movable property used in conducting the alleged nuisance, until the decision of the court or judge granting or refusing such temporary injunction and until the further order of the court thereon. The restraining order may be served by handing to and leaving a copy of said order with any person in charge of said property or residing in the premises or apartment wherein the same is situated, or by posting a copy thereof in a conspicuous place at or upon one or more of the principal doors or entrances to such premises or apartment where such nuisance is alleged to be maintained, or by both such delivery and posting. The officer serving such restraining order shall forthwith make a return into court and inventory of the personal property situated in and used in conducting or maintaining such nuisance. Any violation of such restraining order shall be a contempt of court, and where such order is so posted mutilation or removal thereof, while the same remains in force, shall be a contempt of court; provided, such posted order contains thereon or therein a notice to that effect. Three days' notice in writing shall be given the defendants of the hearing of the application for temporary injunction, and if then continued at the instance of defendant, the temporary writ as prayed shall be granted as a matter of course. Each defendant so notified, shall serve upon the complainant or his attorney a verified answer on or before the date fixed in said notice for said hearing, and such answer shall be filed with the Clerk of the District Court of the County wherein such cause is triable, but the Court may allow additional time for so answering, providing such extension of time shall not prevent the issuing of said temporary writ as prayed for. The allegations of the answer shall be deemed to be traversed without further pleading. When an injunction has been granted, it shall be binding on the defendants throughout the judicial district in which it was issued, and any violation of the provisions of the injunction herein provided shall be a contempt as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 3. The action when brought shall be noticed for and triable at the first term of the Court the same as other actions triable in the District court of such County, and in such action evidence of the general reputation of the place shall be admissible for the purpose of proving the existence of said nuisance and shall be prima facie evidence of such nuisance and of knowledge thereof and of acquiescence and participation therein on the part of the owners, lessors, lessees, users and all those in possession of or having charge of, as agent or otherwise, or having any interest in any form of property used in conducting or maintaining said nuisance. If the complaint is filed by a citizen, it shall not be dismissed except upon a sworn statement made by the complainant and his attorney, setting forth the reasons why the action should be dismissed, and the dismissal approved by the county attorney in writing or in open court. If the court is of the opinion that the action ought not to be dismissed, he may direct the county attorney to prosecute said action to judgment at the expense of he County, and if the action is continued more than one term of court, any citizen of the county or the county attorney may be substituted for the complaining party and prosecute said action to judgment. If the action is brought by a citizen and the court finds there was no reasonable grounds or cause for said action, the cost may be taxed to such citizen.

Sec. 4. In case of the violation of any injunction granted under the provisions of this act, or of a restraining order or the commission of any contempt of court in proceedings under this act, the court, or in vacation, a judge thereof, may summarily try and punish the offender. The proceedings shall be commenced by filing with the clerk of the court a complaint under oath, setting out and alleging facts constituting such violation, upon which the court or judge shall cause a warrant to issue, under which the defendant shall be arrested. The trial may be had upon affidavits or either party may demand the production and oral examination of the witnesses. A party found guilty of contempt under the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than three nor more than six months or by both fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 5. If the existence of the nuisance be admitted or established in an action as provided in this act, or in a criminal proceeding in the District Court, an order of abatement shall be entered as a part of the judgment in the case, which order shall direct the removal from the building or place of all fixtures, furniture, musical instruments or movable property used in conducting the nuisance, and shall direct the sale of such thereof as belong to the defendants notified or appearing, in the manner provided for the sale of chattels under execution, and shall direct the effectual closing of the building or place against its use for any purpose, and so keeping it closed for a period of one year, unless sooner released. Owners of unsold personal property so seized must appear and claim same within ten days after such order of abatement is made, and prove innocence, to the satisfaction of the court, of any knowledge of said use thereof and that with reasonable care and diligence they could not have known thereof. Every defendant in the action shall be presumed to have had knowledge of the general reputation of the said place. If such innocence be so established, such unsold personal property shall be delivered to the owner, otherwise it shall be sold as hereinbefore provided. If any person shall break and enter or use a building, erection or place so directed to be closed, he shall be punished as for contempt as provided in the preceding section. For removing and selling the movable property, the officer shall be entitled to charge and receive the same fees as he would for levying upon and selling like property on execution, and for closing the premises and keeping them closed a reasonable sum shall be allowed by the court.

Sec. 2. In case the existence of such nuisance is established in a criminal proceeding in a court not having equitable jurisdiction, it shall be the duty of the County Attorney to proceed promptly under this act to enforce the provisions and penalties thereof, and the finding of the defendant guilty in such criminal proceeding, unless reversed or set aside, shall be conclusive as against such defendant as to the existence of the nuisance. All moneys collected under this act shall be paid to the County Treasurer. The proceeds of the sale of the personal property, as provided in the preceding section, shall be applied in payment of the costs of the action and abatement or so much of such proceeds as may be necessary, except as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 7. If the owner of the premises in which said nuisance has been maintained appears and pays all costs of the proceeding, and files a bond with sureties to be approved by the Court in the full value of the property, to be ascertained by the court, or in vacation by the judge thereof, conditioned that he will immediately abate said nuisance and prevent the same from being established or kept therein within a period of one year thereafter, the court, or in vacation the judge, if satisfied of his good faith, may order the premises closed or sought to be closed under the order of abatement, to be delivered to said owner, and said order of abatement canceled so far as the same may relate to said real property. The release of the property under the provisions of this section shall not release it from any judgment, lien, penalty or liability to which it may be subject by law.

Sec. 8. Whenever a permanent injunction issues against any person for maintaining a nuisance as herein defined, or against any owner or agent of the building kept or used for the purpose prohibited by this act, there shall be imposed upon said building and the ground upon which the same is located and against the person or persons maintaining said nuisance, and the owner or agent of said premises, a penalty of three hundred dollars. The imposing of said penalty shall be made by the court as a part of the proceeding, and the clerk of said court shall make and certify a return of the imposition of said penalty forthwith to the County Auditor, who shall enter the same as a tax upon the property and against the persons upon which or whom the lien was imposed as and when other taxes are entered, and the same shall be and remain a lien on the land upon which lien was imposed until fully paid; Provided that any such lien imposed while the tax books are in the hands of the auditor shall be immediately entered therein. The payment of said penalty shall not relieve the persons or property from any other penalties provided by law. The provisions of the law relating to the collection of taxes in this State, the delinquency thereof and sale of property for taxes shall govern in the collection of the penalty herein prescribed in so far as the same are applicable, and the said penalty collected shall be applied in payment of any deficiency in the costs of the action and abatement on behalf of the State to the extent of such deficiency after the application thereto of the proceeds of the sale of personal property as hereinbefore provided, and the remainder of said penalty together with the unexpended portion of the proceeds of the sale of personal property shall be distributed in the same manner as fines collected for the keeping of houses of ill fame, excepting that ten per cent of the amount of the whole penalty collected and of the whole proceeds of the sale of said personal property as provided in this act shall pe paid by the treasurer to the attorney representing the state in the injunction action, at the time of final judgment.

Sec. 9. When such nuisance has been found to exist under any proceeding in the District Court or as in this act provided, and the owner or agent of such building or ground whereon the same has been found to exist, was not a party to such proceeding, nor appeared therein, the said penalty of Three Hundred Dollars shall, nevertheless, be imposed against the persons served or appearing and against the property as in this act set forth. But before such penalty shall be enforced against such property, the owner or agent thereof shall have appeared therein or shall be served with summons therein, and the provisions of sections 4111 and 4112 of the Revised Laws of Minnesota, 1905, shall apply to service in proceedings under this act. The person in whose name the real estate affected by the action stands on the books of the County Auditor for purposes of taxation shall be presumed to be the owner thereof, and in case of unknown persons having or claiming any ownership, right, title or interest in property affected by the action, such may be made parties to the action by designating them in the summons and complaint as "all other persons unknown claiming any ownersip, right, title or interest in the property affected by the action," and service thereon may be had by publishing such summons in the manner prescribed in said Section 4111. Any person having or claiming such ownership, right, title or interest, and any owner or agent in behalf of himself and such owner may make, serve and file his answer therein within twenty days after such service and have trial of his rights in the premises by the court; and if said cause has already proceeded to trial or to findings and judgment, the Court shall by order fix the time and place of such further trial and shall modify, add to or confirm such findings and judgment as the case may require. Other parties to said action shall not be affected thereby.

Sec. 10. Should any provision or item of this act be held to be unconstitutional, such fact shall not be held to invalidate the other provisions and items thereof.

This act shall take effect and be in force from and after May 31st next following the passage thereof.

Approved April 26, 1913.

This section shall not apply where an appeal is taken as aforesaid.

Sec. 18.—In all cases where any order of the State Fire Marshal or Chief Assistant Fire Marshal, or any deputy fire marshal, shall require the repair, removal, tearing down or destruction of any building or structure, the same shall be served upon the owner of such building or structure, and if the same be occupied by a tenant or lessee, then in addition to the service upon such owner, said order shall also be served upon such lessee or tenant as the case may be.

In the case of a mutual company the dividends paid or credited to members in this state shall be construed to be return premiums. The money so received into the state treasury shall be set aside as a special fund and is hereby appropriated for the maintenance of such office of state fire marshal and the expenses incident thereto. The state shall not be liable in any manner for the salary of said fire marshal, his chief assistant, deputies, clerks and other employes or for the maintenance of the office of fire marshal or any expenses incident thereto, and the same shall be payable only from the special fund provided for in this section.

Sec. 27. The county attorney of any county, upon request of the state fire marshal, his deputies or assistants, shall assist such officers upon an investigation of any fire which, in their opinion, is of suspicious origin.

Sec. 28. It shall be the duty of the state fire marshal, his deputies and assistants to require teachers of public and private schools and educational institutions to have one fire drill each month and to keep all doors and exits unlocked during school hours.

Sec. 29.—All penalties, fees or forfeitures collected under the provisions of this act shall be paid into the treasury of the state for the benefit of the state fire marshal fund.

Sec. 30. It is hereby declared that this act is necessary for the public safety, health, peace and welfare, is remedial in nature, and shall be construed liberally, and this act shall not be declared unconstitutional and void for the reason that any section or provision thereof may be in contravention of the constitution.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota

Section 1. That Section seventeen (17) of chapter two hundred thirty (230) of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1905, as amended by section six (6) of chapter four hundred sixty-nine (469) of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1909, as amended by section thirteen (13) of chapter three hundred eighty-four (384) of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1911 be and the same hereby is amended so that the same shall read as follows:

Section 17. It shall be the duty of the engineer, on being notified by the contractor that his job is completed, to inspect the same, and if he finds it complete according to the contract, plans and specifications, he shall report that fact to the county board and give to the contractor a certificate stating that said section or sections (by number) or other jobs of construction, are completed according to the contract, plans and specifications, as set forth in the report of said engineer;

PROVIDED, That when the work for which such certificate is to be issued, affects more than one county, proportionate certificates shall be issued to each county; whereupon, if approved by the county board of the county or counties, as the case may be, and upon the presentation and surrender of said certificate with such approval endorsed thereon, to the auditor of the proper county or counties, said auditor shall draw a warrant on the county treasurer of his county for the proportionate amount found to be due from such county on said contract, according to such preliminary certificate, as herein provided; and that said warrant shall be paid out of the general ditch fund to be provided by the county board as hereinafter specified.

Said warrant shall become due and payable out of said fund at once, and if there shall be no cash in said fund to pay said warrant when the same is presented the county treasurer shall endorse said warrant "not paid for want of funds," and date and sign such endorsement, and the amount of said warrant shall draw interest at the rate of six (6) per cent per annum until called in by the treasurer or auditor of said county and paid.

At any time during the progress of the work of construction the engineer may issue preliminary certificates for work done and approved or for material or supplies furnished and delivered along the line of said proposed ditch, or otherwise delivered according to the contract therefor and to be used in the construction or installment of tile or other enclosed drains or for bridges or culverts along the line of and as a part of the said proposed ditch system; which preliminary certificate shall contain the station number or numbers of the work covered by such certificate, the actual yardage of the excavation certified, and the total value thereof according to the contract of construction, or in case the same is for material furnished, then an estimate of the total value of such material according to contract. Such certificate shall further show the percentage of such total value of the work or material to be paid by the county or counties, and if the proportion has been fixed by the district court, such certificate shall further show the proportion of such total value to be paid by the respective counties. Said certificate shall be executed in duplicate by the said engineer, or in such number as may be necessary and as many thereof marked "duplicate" shall be delivered to the contractor as there are counties affected, and such engineer shall further file one thereof, with the county auditor of each county affected; provided that except as hereafter provided no engineer in drainage proceedings shall by preliminary certificate certify or recommend for payment and no county auditor shall cause to be paid a sum exceeding seventy-five per cent (75%) of the total value of the work done and approved or exceeding fifty per cent (50%) of the total value of material or supplies furnished or delivered as such total value is shown by such preliminary certificate.

Except that in case the total estimated cost of construction of any drainage ditch shall exceed the sum of $30,000.00 and the excavation work thereof shall be fifty per cent (50%) or more completed, and the contract of construction shall not be in default, the engineer may after the said excavation is 50% or more complete, issue such preliminary certificate and recommend for payment and the County Auditor shall cause to be paid Eighty-five per cent (85%) of the total value of such work done and approved.

Thereupon the said county auditor shall forthwith issue his warrant for such amount to be so paid, by such county, which said warrant shall be payable as hereinbefore provided for payment of warrant issued after full completion of contract of construction.

In case where the total estimated cost of construction of any such drainage ditch shall exceed the sum of $30,000.00 and where fifty per cent (50%) of the total amount of said excavation as shown by the engineers report is complete and where the contract is not in default, the engineer may issue a further priliminary certificate setting forth the total value of previous construction work theretofore certified as complete by the engineer, the total amount of warrants issued to such construction contractors for such work, the total balance of sums retained by the county or counties involved, from preliminary estimates theretofore made, and the total percentage of the yardage of excavation theretofore finished and certified by engineer and the proportion of the cost of construction to be paid by the respective counties, if more than one. Such further preliminary certificate shall be executed, delivered and filed by the engineer as other preliminary certificates provided for in this section and upon presentation thereof to the county auditor, such auditor shall thereupon forthwith issue to the contractors presenting the same his warrants for such county's proportionate share of 75% of the balance of such sums retained by the county or counties involved from preliminary estimates theretofore made as set forth in such further preliminary certificates provided for in this paragraph, provided that in case of ditch proceedings wherein the contract of construction has been entered into prior to the passage of this act, before the issuing and delivering of the said warrant to such contractors there shall be filed with the said county auditor the assent thereto in writing of the surety on such contractor's bond, such assent to provide that such payment upon such further preliminary certificate shall not in any manner effect or reduce the liability of such surety upon such contractor's bond.

The provisions of this Section shall apply to all public ditch proceedings heretofore or hereafter instituted under any law of this State, except State and Township Ditches.

Provided, that no certificate or certificates of partial completion or of furnishing of material shall be furnished or delivered by the engineer unless the said certificate or certificates shall be accompanied by the engineer's written certificate that no loss will result from such partial payment. Provided further, that the county or counties paying a preliminary estimate of the engineer on material furnished or delivered shall have a lien on the said material to the amount of all payments made thereon by such county or counties.

Provided, that the said certificate or certificates of the engineer in the matter of any county or judicial ditch proceedings or any other estimate or certificate required under any of the drainage laws of this state to be made by him, shall not constitute prima facie, or other evidence of the truth of the contents thereof, or of the completion of any ditch or any part thereof by the contractor or otherwise, or of the fulfillment of the contract or any part thereof unless and until said certificate is approved by resolution of the county board.

It shall also be the duty of the engineer to inspect the laying of tile, excavation and all other work of construction from time to time, as provided for in the specifications and provisions in his report and as provided for in the contract for construction, and every thirty days during the progress of the work to report in writing to the county board or to the judge of the district court as the case may be, as to all work completed since the last prior report, and his services for making such inspection shall be paid for at the rate and in the same way as his services in making his original survey and report.

CHAPTER 578—H. F. No. 814.

AN ACT to amend Section seven (7) of Chapter three hundred and eighty-four (384) of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1911 relating to drainage.
Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. That Section 7 of Chapter 384 of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1911 be, and the same hereby is, amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 15. The bond and contract shall be attached to each other, and the contract shall contain the specific description of the work to be done, either expressly or by reference to plans and specifications, and refer to the number of the section or sections as provided for in the preceding section and shall provide that the work shall be done and completed as provided for in the report of the engineer, and subject to his approval and that of the auditor or auditors, as the case may be.

Such contract shall be drawn to the satisfaction of the engineer and the county attorney. Every such contract and bond shall embrace all the provisions provided by law for the giving of bond by contractors for public works and improvements and for the better security of the contracting county or counties and of the parties performing labor and furnishing material in and about the performance of such contracts and shall provide that time shall be of the essence of the contract, in that if there should be any failure to perform the work according to the terms of said contract within the time limited therein, originally or by extension, the contractors shall forfeit and pay to the county in which the portion of the work in default shall be located, a certain sum, to be named therein; and which shall be fixed by the county auditor, or auditors, as the case may be, for each day that such failure shall continue. No extension of the time shall be granted unless applied for in writing to the auditor, or auditors, as the case may be, stating to his or their satisfaction good and sufficient reasons therefor, nor shall any extension affect the right to enforce such forfeiture, if any, as shall occur after the time originally limited and before such extension, or occurring after the limit of the extension. The bond shall expressly provide that the bondsman shall be liable for all damages resulting from any such failure, whether the work be resold or not, and that any person showing himself injured by such failure may maintain an action upon such bond in his own name and that such actions may be successive in favor of all persons so injured. Such contractor shall be considered a public officer and such bond an official bond within the meaning of the statutory provisions construing such official bonds of public officers as security to all persons and providing for action on such bonds by any injured party in the district court.

Provided, that at the end of each year of each session's work, after giving such contractor's bond, and prior to the completion and acceptance of such job of construction the contractor may make verified application to the county board in case of a county ditch, or in case of a judicial ditch, to the judge of the district court of the county where the proceedings were instituted, setting forth approximately the total yardage of excavation completed and total amount of other work completed, the contract price thereof and the value of the work theretofore certified as complete by the engineer, and the amount of money received by contractor, and further setting forth the amount then owing or unpaid by said contractor for labor or material already furnished in the matter of the completion of such contract, and asking an order reducing the amount of the contractor's bond.

Provided, that whenever tiling is used in the construction of any ditch or drain or any part thereof and the petition for said drain so requires, or at any time previous to the commencement of advertising for the sale of the job or jobs for the construction of the same upon a request of a majority of the petitioners in writing therefor, filed with the county auditor of the proper county, such contract shall require the contractor of the whole tile work or the contractor of any part thereof, as the case may be, to guarantee all of such tile work done by any such contractor for a period of three years after the completion of any such contract against any fault or negligence on the part of any such contractor and any failure during said period of any part of said tile work constructed by any such contractor to accomplish the purpose of drainage for which it was intended, shall be prima facie evidence that the same is due to the fault or negligence of said contractor. Notice of such request shall be given by the county auditor in the advertisement for sale of such job or jobs.

The said contractor shall give a good and sufficient bond for the performance of such undertaking and contract. The acceptance of such tile ditch by the engineer or county board shall not relieve or exempt said contractor or his bondsmen from the liability herein imposed on said contractor for said three year period.

Upon receiving such application the said judge of the district court or the said county board, as the case may be, shall proceed to hear, consider and determine the said application upon such notice as shall be directed by such judge or by such county board respectively; and if upon such hearing, it is determined that no loss will result thereby, the said judge or said county board may by order reduce the penalty of such bond to such a sum as shall be deemed advisable by such judge or such County board, as the case may be, but such reduction shall in no case exceed by more than twenty-five per cent the amount already paid to the contractor and such reduction shall not affect the validity or the enforcement, or in any manner otherwise affect the remaining amount of the penalty of such bond.
Approved April 28, 1913.

CHAPTER 582—H. F. No. 1230.

AN ACT providing for the adoption and use in the several counties in this state of the so-called Garbo Election System; authorizing counties to contract for the procuring of the right to use such system at general and primary election and the purchase of the patented ballots and devices used in connection with such system; requiring the governor, attorney general and secretary of state to make rules and regulations for the use thereof and providing that such rules and regulations shall supersede provisions of law inconsistent therewith.

Whereas, one N. F. Garbo, is or claims to be the patentee and owner of the patent rights of certain devices or system, the primary purpose of which is to facilitate the counting of election ballots, which system consists of a "filing frame" so called, and a particular form of ballot so shaped, and as to primary election ballots so creased, as to permit of the same being filed on the filing frame, and readily counted and canvassed when so filed, and

WHEREAS, the said ballots may be made to conform approximately to the form [illegible] prescribed by law for the ballots to be used at general elections, and

WHEREAS the use of such Election System can be adapted to use under the laws now in force regulating the holding of general and primary elections in this state, except that the form of the primary ballot now in use is not so adapted to said election system, and

WHEREAS it is the intention to adopt and use such election system at all primary and general elections within such counties as shall adopt such system provided the use of the same can be contracted for and the necessary patented devices can be purchased and procured from some person authorized to manufacture and vend such patented devices; Therefore,
Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota:

Section 1. The County Board of any County may by resolution provide for and adopt the use of said Garbo system at any primary or general election to be held therein, provided such resolution must be adopted at least six months before any primary or general election at which such system is to be used and a copy of such resolution so adopting such system shall be transmitted to the Secretary of State immediately upon its adoption.

In case any county adopts and provides for the use of said Garbo system at any primary or general election, it is hereby authorized and empowered to enter into a contract with the owner of the patent rights upon and covering the devices constituting the said system for the use thereof in such county at the primary and general election therein and for the purchase of such patent ballots, filing frames and other patent devices used therewith. Such contract, if entered into, shall provide for the future acquisition by the county of such additional patented devices necessary for the full and complete use of such system as may from time to time be needed, as well as such additional patented devices, and further improvements to said system, as may be necessary or desirable to fully protect the present and future rights of the county in adopting and using such system.

Sec. 2. In case any county adopts such system for use at any primary and general election therein and contracts for and secures the right to use said system at any such election, the form of the partisan primary election ballot used in any such county at any primary election therein whereat such system is to be used shall be substantially as follows:

Each voter shall be entitled to mark his said partisan primary election ballot for one first choice and for one second choice candidates for each office. To cast a first choice vote, he shall place a cross mark (x) in the first choice column after, and to the right of the name of the candidates for whom he wishes to cast his first choice vote, and between the same horizontal lines within which appears the name of such candidate, and to cast a second choice vote he shall place a cross mark (x) between the same horizontal lines, in the "second choice" column at the head of which is printed the name of the candidate for whom he desires to cast his second choice vote.

A second choice cross mark placed in a second choice column, except when placed in the column under the voter's first choice candidate, shall be counted as a second choice vote for the candidate under whose name it is placed.

If, on the canvass of the ballots, the judges of election discover that a voter has made his second choice mark between two horizontal lines either above or below the horizontal space, in which he made his first choice cross mark, the judges shall draw a circle around said second choice cross mark, and shall make a new cross mark between the same horizontal lines containing the first choice cross mark, and under the name of the candidate in whose column the original mark was made by the voter; provided, that in case the second choice cross mark not between the proper horizontal lines, is under the name and in the column of the candidate for whom the first choice vote was cast, the judge shall draw a circle around such second choice mark, but shall not transfer it or make a new mark.

If a voter places two or more cross marks in the first choice column after the names of two or more candidates, the judges shall draw a circle around each of said marks and none of them shall be counted.

If a voter places two or more cross marks in the second choice columns under the names of more than one candidate, the judges shall draw a circle around each of said marks and none of them shall be counted.

If a voter places more than one cross mark in any one second choice column under the name of any one candidate, the judges shall draw a circle around each of such marks, except such one as is between the same horizontal lines at the voter's first choice, and if none of such cross-marks be between the same horizontal lines, a circle shall be drawn around each of them and a cross mark placed between the same horizontal lines, within which appears the first choice cross-marks, and in the same second choice column, provided, that if the name at the head of the second choice column in which such one or more cross marks appear is the same as the name of the candidate for whom the voter cast a first choice vote, the judges shall draw a circle around each of such second choice marks. The judges, in canvassing and counting the ballots shall not count or include as a vote any cross mark around which a circle has been drawn as hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 3. In case any county or counties adopt such system and contract for and secures the right to use said election system at elections therein, the Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State shall formulate and publish such rules and regulations concerning the printing of ballots to be used therewith, the form and creasing thereof, the counting and canvassing of such ballots, and the making of returns thereof, the use of the "filing frame" and other patented devices used in connection with such Election System, as may be necessary or desirable to effectuate the purposes of this act and the use of such system. Such rules and regulations shall conform as nearly as possible to the provisions of law now in force regulating such matters, with only such changes as are necessary as safeguard and render useable said Election System and the ballots and patented devices used therewith, at general and primary elections, and shall not be inconsistent with this act. If a contract is entered into as aforesaid, such rules and regulations shall be formulated and filed with the Secretary of State, and shall be signed by at least two of the members of said Commission, and shall thereafter and thereupon supersede any provision of law now in force inconsistent therewith. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to print, publish and distribute such rules and regulations within the counties adopting said system, to such persons and in such manner, as is now provided by law for the printing and distribution of the election laws of this state.

Sec. 4. In any county which adopts and uses such system the ballot to be used therein at any primary or general election at which such system is used, shall be so printed and perpared that whenever two or more persons are to be elected to the same office, the names of all candidates of the several political parties for such office shall be so alternated on the ballots printed and distributed that they shall appear thereon substantially an equal number of times at the top, at the bottom and in each intermediate place, if any, on the list or group in which they belong. All officers charged with the preparation and distribution of such ballots shall cause the printer's forms to be transposed and the blocks of ballots to be so made up as to carry out the intent thereof; Provided, that nothing in this section shall apply to the office of presidential elector, and provided, further, that on all ballots distributed to, and used in any given election district, the names of all candidates on all ballots distributed to, and used in, such election district shall appear thereon in the same order.

Sec. 5. In counties which shall adopt and use such system, only one ballot box shall be used in any given election district, which box shall be of such size and dimensions as shall be prescribed by the rules and regulations formulated by said Commission; Provided, that in any district where the number of voters thereof is so great as to require it, more than one box may be used.

The judges of election shall deposit all ballots in such boxes in the presence of the voter without folding the face downward in such a manner that no person can see the markings thereon made by the voter, provided, that when ballots are larger than the dimensions of the ballot box the judges of election may fold them to a convenient size before depositing them in the ballot box.

Sec. 6. If after a County has voted to adopt said system no contract therefor is entered into or the use of said system therein is enjoined or for any reason the use thereof is prevented, then and in such case the provisions of law now in force regulating the matters referred to herein shall apply and be observed by all public officials, election officers and persons.

Sec. 7. The use of such election system, if contracted for, shall not be obligatory in any city which now has or which may hereafter authorize and provide for the use of voting machines therein, but such city may use such system in connection with voting machines.
Approved April 28, 1913.

Any amendment proposed by initiative petion and, in its original or in an amended form, submitted to the electors by the legislature or by a further petition, shall become a part of the constitution, if approved by a majority of the electors voting at said election, or by four-sevenths of the electors voting on the proposed amendment; provided not less than three-sevenths of the electors voting at said election voted for the proposed amendment. This section shall be construed as a means in addition to Section one, Article fourteen of the State Constitution for amending the same.

"b. STATUTORY INITIATIVE. When at any time prior to the commencement of any session of the legislature, there shall have been filed with the secretary of state a petition proposing a law, signed by two percentum of the electors of the state, the secretary of state shall transmit the same to the legislature not later than ten days after the commenceemnt of the session. No law proposed by initiative petition and approved by the electors shall be subject to the veto of the governor. The authority of the people to enact laws, as provided in this subdivision, shall extend only to laws authorized by the provisions of the constitution.

"c. THE REFERENDUM. If within ninety days after the final adjournment of any session of the legislature, a referendum petition, signed by six per centum of the electors of the state, shall be filed with the secretary of state against any law, or any part of a law, passed by the legislature at such session, such law, or such part of a law, shall be submitted to the electors at the next general or special state-wide election, occurring not less than ninety days after the filing of said petition. If a majority of the vote cast thereon be in the negative, such law, or such part of a law, shall thereby be repealed. Provided, that if a referendum petition is signed by fifteen per centum of the electors of the state, the law or part of a law, against which such petition is filed shall be suspended pending the referendum vote thereon.

Any law providing for a tax levy or appropriating money for the current expenses of the state government or state institutions, any act of the legislature submitting a constitutional amendment or other question to the electors of the state, or any emergency law necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, shall go into effect immediately upon its passage and approval by the governor, and such laws, except emergency laws, shall not be subject to a referendum vote. All other laws shall go into effect ninety days after the adjournment of the legislature. A bill proposing an emergency law shall contain a preamble briefly setting forth the facts constituting the emergency. No law or amendment to the constitution initiated and approved by the electors as herein provided, shall be held unconstitutional or void on account of the insufficiency of any initiative petition; nor shall the repeal of any law submitted by referendum petition be held invalid for such insufficiency.

All initiative laws and constitutional amendments shall be so submitted to the electors as to permit an affirmative or negative vote upon each measure submitted. If conflicting proposed laws, or conflicting proposed amendments to the constitution be approved at the same election, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall prevail as to conflicting provisions.

"The style of all legislative measures and amendments to the constitution initiated by the people under this section shall be: 'Be it enacted by the People of the State of Minnesota.'

Mr. Seebach offers the following joint resolution:

"Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove, from our midst a former governor of Minnesota, Gen. Lucius F. Hubbard, who departed this life at the home of his son in Minneapolis, on the evening of Wednesday, Feb. 5th, 1913;

"And whereas, the people of Minnesota, though the senators and representatives in legislature assembled, recognize in the death of Gen. Hubbard, the passing away of a distinguished soldier, whose services on behalf of the Union during the terrible crucial period of American history, and more especially in the leadership of members of the Fifth Minnesota regiment at the battle of Corinth, will ever remain glorious to historians; whose career as a public official made brighter by four years of progressive work as governor; and later, once again as a private citizen, believing in and upholding the dignity of the laws of a great state;

Therefore, as a mark of esteem for the services rendered to his country, and to his state,

Be it resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, that a committee of seven senators and ten representatives be appointed by the presiding officers of either branch of the legislature for the purpose of representing the state of Minnesota, at the funeral services over the remains of the departed, and we further recommend that on the afternoon of the day of the funeral all public business be suspended.

Which was unanimously adopted in both branches of the Legislature.

WHEREAS, said committees have made their reports to the Legislatures of their respective States, reporting their failure to agree in said matters, and their failure to determine such boundary line, and have recommended to the Legislature of each State the appointment of committees to confer, and, if possible, agree on the passage of uniform and reciprocal laws, by the two States, relating to and controlling the taking of fish in said boundary waters, thereby settling the practical controversy between said States as to said waters;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring, that there be and is hereby created a Joint Committee, consisting of three (3) Representatives, to be chosen by the Speaker of the House and three (3) Senators, to be chosen by the President of the Senate—to meet and confer with a committee of the Legislature of the State of Wisconsin, if one be appointed, relative to uniform and reciprocal laws to be enacted by the law-making bodies of said two States, regulating, licensing and controlling the taking of fish in the boundary waters between the said States, being the Mississippi River, Lake Pepin and Lake St. Croix; and that such Committee make its report to this Legislature at this session.

WHEREAS, it has been the policy of the state of Minnesota to sell its school and other state lands on advantageous terms to purchasers by giving extensions of time for payment up to forty years, and by reducing the rate of interest to four per cent when the unpaid principal remains for ten years, and by such policy has aided in the development of the state and furnished the school and other trust funds with long time investments;

WHEREAS, bills have been introduced in Congress under the terms of which the national forest reserve will be turned over to the various states, and

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Minnesota House of Representatives, the Senate concurring, protest against the proposed action on the part of Congress, the effect of which would be to transfer the control of the National Forest Reserve from the Federal government to the individual states. This Legislature further deplores the fact that such legislation has ever been proposed at this session of Congress, since the people of the United States have repeatedly signified their approval of the splendid system under which the National Forest Reserves are now administered. This Legislature urges that the Minnesota Delegation in Congress exercise its strongest efforts to defeat this proposed legislation.

BE IT FURTHHER RESOLVED, that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded by the Chief Clerk of the House to each of our United States Senators and to each of the members in the House of Representatives, from this state.

JOINT RESOLUTION No. 7—H. F. 563.

Messrs. Harrison and Vollmer offer the following resolution:

Whereas, the Congress of the United States, by two several and separate acts, passed in the years 1894 and 1899, authorized and directed two separate surveys, and examinations of three proposed routes for a canal connecting Lake Superior with the Mississippi River, one of said routes being from Lake Superior to the Mississippi River via the St. Louis River, one via the Rum River and one via the Brule and St. Croix Rivers; and

WHEREAS, after an actual examination and survey of said several proposed routes, the United States Government engineers did report in the year 1894 that the most feasible route for said canal is the route from Allouez Bay on Lake Superior via the Brule and St. Croix Rivers to the Mississippi River, and recommended said route; and

WHEREAS, in the year 1899 the United States Government engineers did again report that a canal from Lake Superior to the Mississippi River via the Brule and St. Croix Rivers was entirely feasible. That in the first of said reports of said government engineers it was estimated that said canal could be constructed seven feet deep, eighty feet in width at the water surface and fifty-nine feet in width at the bottom thereof, for the sum of Seven Million Fifty Thousand Dollars; and in the second of said reports it was estimated that said canal could be built eighty feet in width at the water line, fity-nine feet in width at the bottom and five feet deep, for the sum of Six Million Twelve Thousand Five Hundred Dollars; and

WHEREAS, the project of constructing said canal has not been authorized by Congress because of reports of said engineers to the effect that the construction of said canal was not warranted owing to existing railroad competition and the cost of said canal as compared with the benefits to be derived from the construction thereof; and

WHEREAS, it conclusively appears from the surveys and examinations of the route made by the government engineers, that it is entirely feasible and practicable to construct and operate said canal along the route specified from Allouez Bay on Lake Superior via the Brule and St. Croix Rivers to the Mississippi at the junction of the St. Croix and Mississippi Rivers, and the only objections which apparently prevent Congress from authorizing said project are the existence of railway competition and the doubt expressed by said engineers as to the amount of commerce which would be carried upon said canal; and

WHEREAS, no survey or examination appears to have been made or authorized by the United States Government of said route to ascertain whether the same could be constructed and operated at a depth of ten feet, nor as to whether a canalization of the Mississippi River by the construction of a dam below the junction of the St. Croix and Mississipi Rivers would be practical which would in fact extend said waterway so as to connect the cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul with the cities of Duluth, Minnesota, and Superior, Wisconsin, by means of said canal and the canalization of said Mississippi River; and

WHEREAS, millions of consumers and producers of the Northwest and the Mississippi Valley are vitally interested in the construction of said canal and the improvement of said Mississippi River so as to form a complete and continuous inland waterway from the Mississippi Valley and the Twin Cities to the Atlantic seaport via the Great Lakes, thus enabling all of the products of the eastern states and the states bordering on the Great Lakes, to be shipped by water to all points in the Northwest and the Mississippi Valley and the agricultural and other products of the Northwest to be shipped by water to the markets of the world; and

WHEREAS, at all of the hearings held upon the question of the commercial necessity of said canal and waterway a great mass of producers and consumers interested have had no adequate opportunity to be effectively heard and there is no lawfully constituted authority, official or commission of this State authorized or empowered to ascertain and present the facts or collect data and statistics relating to commerce bearing upon this important subject; and

WHEREAS, the State of Wisconsin and the people of said State are also greatly interested in the construction of said canal and waterway;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the House of Representatives of the State of Minnesota, the Senate concurring, that the construction of said canal by the National government is of the greatest importance to this State, the State of Wisconsin, the Mississippi Valley and the Nation; that its construction will be a great addition to existing facilities of commerce; that it would constitute a natural, adequate and automatic means of reducing transportation rates on all commodities between the Mississippi Valley, the Great Northwest, the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Seaports, and that it would tend to reduce rates upon coal, iron, steel, manufactured articles, grain and other agricultural products and would greatly benefit the consumers and producers of the East and the West and reduce the cost of the necessities of life.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the Governor of this State, the Drainage Engineer of this State, the Chairman of the Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners be and they are hereby appointed a commission, of which the Governor shall be chairman, which shall be known as the Lake Superior and Mississippi River Canal Commission, and said commission is hereby granted power and authority, and is hereby directed to investigate and ascertain all of the facts with reference to the practicability and cost of construction and operation of said canal, utility thereof and the character and amount of commerce which would probably be carried or affected by said canal, and the probable effect of the construction and operation thereof upon transportation rates and upon the consumers and producers of the Northwest, and especially the States of Minnesota and Wisconsin, provided however that the expenses of such commission in carrying out the provisions hereof shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2500.00). Said Commission is hereby directed to lay before the United States engineers, and any other federal commission board or authority having jurisdiction of any question relating to the construction of said canal by the United States Government, all of the facts, conclusions, statistics, data, information and views ascertained and gathered by said commission bearing upon the advisability and practicability of the construction of said canal by the federal government, and to make or cause to be made any and all arguments deemed necessary by said commission in favor of said canal, and to use their best efforts to further the project of the construction thereof, and to report to the legislature at the Session of 1915 all of their acts and doings in the premises.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that said commission is also authorized and directed to confer and act with any commission designated or appointed by the State of Wisconsin, or any other State interested in the construction of said canal, and to act with any such commission in any and all of the matters relating to constructing said canal.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the State of Wisconsin is hereby requested and invited to constitute and appoint a like commission for the purpose of consulting and co-operating with said commission hereby appointed for the purpose of furthering the project of constructing said canal.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that the Senators and Representatives in Congress of the United States for the State of Minnesota are hereby requested to urge upon Congress the adoption of an act authorizing the final survey of said canal at a depth of ten feet, together with the extension of said canal by means of the canalization of the Mississippi River to the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and to urge upon Congress the final construction of said canal by the United States Government.

RESOLVED FURTHER, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States and to each of the Senators and Representatives in Congress from this State, and that a like copy be transmitted by the Governor of this State to the Governor of Wisconsin and to the President of the Senate and Speaker of the Assembly of the State of Wisconsin.

Approved March 29, 1913.

JOINT RESOLUTION No. 8—S. F. No. 869.

A joint resolution of the Legislature of the State of Minnesota petitioning the Secretary of War of the United States to cause a complete detail survey to be made of the Red River of the North, from Breckenridge, Minnesota, to the International Boundary Line, with a view to its improvement by the construction of locks and dams.

WHEREAS, An Act passed by the Sixty-second Congress of the United States at its Second Session, H. R. 21477, making appropriations for the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors, and for other purposes, directs the Secretary of War of the United States to cause a preliminary examination to be made of the Red River of the North from Wahpeton, North Dakota, and Breckenridge, Minnesota, to the International Boundary Line, with a view to its improvement by the construction of locks and dams or otherwise, and authorizes him to order complete detailed surveys and estimates to be made if the improvement be deemed advisable, and

WHEREAS, The Secretary of War has not yet made allotment for such a complete survey, and,

WHEREAS, if navigation on said Red River of the North could be assured by the maintenance of a uniform stage of water during the open season, it would enable the farmers resident in the country tributary to the river to market their produce with a shorter haul by wagon and less expense, thereby increasing the value of all the tributary territory, and,

WHEREAS, In the Fall of the year the farmers need every possible means for marketing their grain with the least delay and expense, and,

WHEREAS, The transportation facilities of the Red River, instead of increasing with the development of the region, have been practically destroyed by the uncertainty as to an assured navigable stage of water that has followed upon the agricultural development of the region, and,

WHEREAS, The Canadian Government has during the past year finished a detailed survey of the entire length of the Red River from the International Boundary to Lake Winnipeg, and has already built the first of the contemplated improvements, namely, the St. Andrews Lock and Dam, which gives a permanent stage of water along thirty miles of the valley, and has determined to build the next lock and dam immediately, and,

WHEREAS, This survey was made on the understanding and expectation that similar work would be done on the portion of the river on this side of the International Boundary, and,

WHEREAS, The Legislature of the State of Minnesota deems it advisable and in the interests of the State that the Red River of the North be improved by the construction of locks and dams or otherwise, so that it will be always navigable during the open season, and,

WHEREAS, The Legislature of the State of Minnesota favors the plan of improvement by locks and dams as the only feasible plan whereby a constant stage of water can be established with sufficient depth so that navigation will be assured with certainty.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Senate of the State of Minnesota, the House of Representatives concurring, that the Legislature of the State of Minnesota hereby petitions the Secretary of War of the United States that he cause a complete detailed survey to be made as hereinabove mentioned and that he order an allotment of sufficient funds for the work of such complete survey as contemplated and authorized in said act of Congress known as H. R. 21477.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the aforesaid petition shall be signed by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives and attested by the Chief Clerk of each House and a certified copy thereof duly authenticated shall be sent by the Secretary of State to the Secretary of War of the United States.

WHEREAS: The existence within the confines of the State of Minnesota of Indian Reservations with a population so heavily infected with dangerous communicable diseases is a distinct menace to the public health of the citizens of Minnesota by reason of the rapid development and opening to settlement of these Reservations; and,

WHEREAS: Certain specific recommendations for the correction of this condition have been made in a report submitted by the Surgeon-General of the U. S. Public Health Service to Congress in February, 1913; and,

WHEREAS: It is believed that the Red Lake Reservation located in the State of Minnesota presents a suitable field for the application of these remedies, in order to demonstrate their effectiveness;

JOINT RESOLUTION No. 12—H. F. No. 1065.

A joint resolution relating to a committee to be appointed for the purpose of investigating matters relating to fire prevention and rates charged for fire insurance in this state.

Whereas, The fire losses in the State of Minnesota, for the past thirty-nine years, as reported by fire insurance companies to the Department of Insurance, aggregate approximately $77,000,000.00, and

Whereas, During the past thirty-nine years all fire insurance companies doing business in Minnesota, except township mutual companies, have collected premiums aggregating $189,000,000.00 and returned to policyholders within our state, in payment of losses, an amount aggregating $77,000,000.00, or approximately [illegible] per cent of the premiums collected, and

Whereas, There is a gross discrimination practiced between our citizens by fire insurance companies in the rates of premium charged, which results to the advantage of the rich and to the disadvantage of the poor, and

Whereas, The State of Minnesota has not given any state official the power to make fire insurance rates, and

Whereas, Such rates are now being made for most companies by an independent rating bureau, to-wit: General Inspection Company, and

Whereas, It is believed that insurance companies or their agents on their behalf have agreements to maintain the rates made by said General Inspection Company, and

Whereas, There is no appeal from the rates fixed by such inspection company, and there is no state official properly empowered to act for and on behalf of the insured, [illegible]

Now, therefore, Be it enacted by the Senate and the House of Representatives that a [illegible] Commission consisting of two members of the Senate to be appointed by the Lieutenant Governor and two members of the House to be appointed by the Speaker, together with the Commissioner of Insurance be created and designated as the Minnesota Fire Prevention and Insurance Rating Committee. It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Insurance and his employes, upon his direction, to make all examinations and investigations required by the Committee, employ such stenographers and assistants as the Commissioner may deem necessary. Any member of the committee may administer oaths to any person appearing before it. It shall be the duty of the Attorney General, or one of his assistants appointed thereto by him, to advise the Committee and its members, and to assist the Committee in making such examinations as may be deemed expedient.

Said committee shall furnish a report of its findings to the Governor on or before December 31st, 1914. The purpose of the creation of this Committee is primarily—

First—to devise ways and means for reducing our fire losses;

Second—to prevent discrimination in fire insurance rates, and

Third—in all possible ways to devise ways and means for giving the people of the state the greatest amount of fire insurance protection at the least possible cost to the assured.

It shall be the first duty of such Committee to investigate the causes for our enormous fire losses, and to suggest remedies for the relief of our people as hereinafter provided.

It shall also be the duty of such Committee to make a thorough investigation and examination into the methods of transacting business by all insurance companies, associations and insurers, of every kind, transacting the business of fire insurance, including all agencies whatever employed in the transaction of said business; to investigate into their expenses, the rates charged, and the manner of making the same; questions of discrimination between classes of property of insurers; all contracts for commissions or compensation of agents and any discrimination thereunder; and, generally, to make any and all inquiry in regard to the transaction of the business of fire insurance, and the rates and cost of such insurance, and the expenses incident to such business; and the promotion of better protection against fire, and the reduction of fire losses. The mention of any particular lines of inquiry herein shall not limit in any measure the field of investigation which said Committee is empowered to enter.

Provided, however, that if the appropriation provided for by a bill relating to the same subject is not made, this resolution shall be of no force or effect.

Approved April 24, 1913.

SMALL CHILD'S GARDEN.

The Main Thing Is to Have Strong, Hardy, Free Blooming Flowers.

Many mothers are now planning to have a little garden for John and Mary, because this summer they will be big enough to profit by it. Many mothers are also ruefully remembering the crash of hopes last summer—so far as the children's gardening was concerned—and are wondering whether it will be worth while to try it again. They remember seeds dug up or drained off with excessive watering, flower plants ruthlessly jerked up and weeds left standing, dried and parched little beds, or tangles of triumphant jimson, dandelions and knot grass. Or perhaps it may recall anxious little workers and sorry disappointment over poor, spindly flowerless plants. We have had all sorts of experiences in our family, and I feel as though a succession of summers had drilled into me exactly what is what for a small child's garden.

The main thing is to have a very limited variety of seeds and those of the strong, hardy, free blooming sort. A child of 3, 4 or 5 years can have a satisfactory garden of three sorts of seeds, so that he can learn the leaves of three plants and then weed out everything else.

One summer I remember three particularly successful and simple attempts. One boy planted his plot with mixed zinnias, surrounded by one row of radishes and one row of lettuce. The lettuce and radishes occupied his attention to begin with, and when he had eaten them, his zinnias took the whole space and bloomed gorgeously until frost. The next boy did the same thing, using poppies instead of zinnias. The Free Lance, bound to be different as ever, hauled stones in his little cart till he had a fair sized heap, and planted a package of mixed morning glories in a row encircling the base. All summer long his pink, blue and purple morning glories were the admiration of the family.

Children love flowers, but they do not love disappointment, and the way to make contented little gardeners—even of children who perhaps have but little affinity with the soil—is to limit the varieties of seeds you give them, and to have those varieties all bright, free bloomers.

FANTAISIES MADE OF TULLE.

Feather Variations of All Sorts Are Posed at Strange Angles.

(Kansas City Star.)

The new materials for dresses are largely drawn on in the composition of hats. Heavy corded silks and moires, linens in "zagzig" weaves, and shantungs printed in old-fashioned colored designs embracing tiny flowers and miniature fruits. A hat of soft black straw is trimmed with a white tulle fantasie, held by a bunch of three tiny apples, dull green, brilliant red and rich yellow, made from the glowing iridescent breast feathers of a bird.

There are quantities of fantasies made from tulle, black, white and colored, as sharply assertive as aigrettes and paradise plumes, which, however, remain the prevailing trimming. But there are feather variations of all sorts posed in the most original fashion the fancy is capable of. A single feather rises straight from the front or droops low from the back. A long ostrich feather curls about the crown, or a bunch of short ones cluster at one side, the weight of them appearing to pull the hat over the ear.

On a Carlier hat, potshaped, a single Mephistopheles feather waves its curling tip from one side. Its stem is held by a series of three tiny bows of narrow black ribbon, connected by narrow lines. On another hat narrow black ribbon tied in a knowing bow secures a half wreath of small gay flowers.

SOUTH AFRICAN ELEPHANT'S DOOM

The Demand for Ivory Is So Great That He Will Soon Be Extinct.

TARGET FOR ALL HUNTERS

(London Correspondence Philadelphia Ledger.)

It is the ambition of most big game hunters to bag a good "tusker"—an elephant with exceptionally big "teeth," to use the sporting term; but that ambition is seldom realized nowadays, for elephants, particularly those of record age and size, are becoming scarcer every day. Indeed, it is stated that the African elephant, from whom the finest ivory is obtained, is doomed. It has practically vanished from South Africa, and is being slowly exterminated in other parts of the country. This extermination has been brought about by the great demand for ivory nowadays.

Only a few years since a single large firm of billiard table makers used in a month as many as ninety-five pairs of tusks. Thus to supply this single firm not fewer than 1,140 elephants suffered death annually. And the demand for tusks may be gathered from the fact that about 300 tons are sold in London alone during the year.

Some Great Tusks.

The consequence is that the chance of a big game hunter coming across such an elephant as that shot by Major Powell-Cotton in the Congo State eight year ago, whose tusks weighed 372 pounds, is very remote. These were the finest pair of elephant's teeth ever secured by a white sportsman, although they are not the heaviest on record. The heaviest pair of tusks ever secured are to be seen in a museum in the United States. One of the tusks measured ten feet four inches along the outer curve and scales 235 pounds, and the other, which is an inch or two less, weighs 225 pounds, giving a total of 460 pounds.

The second of these tusks is eclipsed by one to be seen in the British Museum collection. It measures ten feet two and one-half inches, and weighs 226 pounds. One of the longest tusks on record was that in the possession of the late Mr. Rowland Ward at one time. It measured eleven feet five and one-half inches over the curve and scaled 150 pounds. Its fellow measured eleven feet in length and weighed 143 pounds. The pair now enrich the American National Collection.

Over Nine Feet.

Sir Edmund Loder is the possessor of a very fine single tusk, which measures nine feet five inches and weighs 148 pounds. In 1911 W. W. Greener, the Haymarket gunner, had in his window a wonderfully even pair of teeth, which scaled just over 184 pounds, and a widest circumference of twenty-six inches, and an extreme length of eight feet. They made a very fine second to Major Powell-Cotton's splendid pair.

A remarkable tusk in the possession of Mr. Graham Pownall, which came from Uganda, measures eight feet five inches, has a circumference of twenty-three inches and scales 175 pounds. These instances will give some idea of the magnificent ivory produced in the elephant in Equatorial Africa. It might be mentioned that the average weight of elephant tusks is about fifty pounds apiece.

A DERELICT THE SAILOR'S HOPE

Every Mariner Hopes He May Some Day Pick Up a Craft in Distress.

(James G. McCurdy in Wide World.)

Salvage is one of those overworked words with half a dozen meanings. In a marine sense it is indiscriminately applied to the act of saving a vessel from the perils of the sea, to the claim entered, and to the final monetary award. On land it is a term which, by common usage, has come to embrace the recovery of goods, of whatever nature, that have been placed in jeopardy.

One thing is certain—there are but few words that awaken keener anticipation in the minds of those who traffic upon the deep than the magic term "salvage" when applied to the rescue of vessels floating helpless or abandoned upon the waters. In sea parlance the term has much the same significance as the word "treasure trove" has ashore.

There are but few mariners who put to sea without the hope that they may some day be fortunate enough to pick up a valuable craft in distress, and share in the resultant salvage award.

Salvage is interesting from a legal standpoint, from the fact that it is probably the only case in law where a person may become liable to a claim upon him for services rendered to his property without his consent, expressed or implied. It also takes priority over all other claims. The amount is determined by the admiralty court, and is dependent upon the peril involved, the nature of the service, and the value of the property salved.

A curious point of law, long observed, has but little weight today in determining salvage awards. This ruling was that as long as any domesticated animal, such as a dog, cat or pig, remained alive on a derelict the craft was not called abandoned, and the salvage award was materially affected by the circumstance.

The origin of this ruling is obscure, but the view probably taken in such a case was that, if the weather conditions had ben exceptionally severe after the abandonment of a vessel, all life would have perished before the arrival of the salvors.

Seeking for a disabled vessel, when its location is not definitely known, is much like the proverbial "hunting for a needle in a haystack." Within recent years as many of the fat salvage prizes along the North Pacific coast have gone to tramp steamers that happened along at the opportune moment as have fallen to the numerous tugboats that spend much of their time cruising off shore.

Of the causes that place a vessel in such a predicament that it becomes an object of salvage, first and foremost, of course, must be placed the force of wind and wave. No matter how large the vessel, it can never afford to bid defiance to the elements, for without warning something may happen to send it to the bottom or leave it floating a helpless derelict upon the face of the waters.

RESTORE LIFE BY HYPODERMIC

(Current Opinion.)

Death is by no means the sudden change which our minds, laden with metaphysical tradition, imagine. We talk of something—the soul—flying away from the body. It is seemingly all over. But it may not be, concedes the official bulletin of the French Academy of Medicine. Doctor Carrell has shown that every function of life save consciousness may be kept up. This authority sees nothing extravagant in the idea that medical science may some day go a step farther. It may restore consciousness even after it has been pronounced to be extinct—provided fundamental chemical transformations have not supervened. For a period as long as a decade French physicians have said it is possible to restore the action of the heart after "death" by means of hypodermic injections. Even in so-called sudden death there is a period which in French medical literature is called "psychic twilight."

The case most in point, bearing upon the whole subject, is that of a late noted French duke. He was a conspicuous figure in the old legitimist club life of the French capital. He died recently at 10 o'clock at night. His younger son would be of age at midnight. For the sake of the two hours—the younger son being still an infant in the eyes of the law—it seemed as if the whole of the duke's estate must be tied up in endless litigation. But the family lawyers—they were at the bedside—pinned their faith in the new discoveries regarding death. They made manifest to the physicans the tremendous legal consequences of the duke's death before midnight.

Hypodermic injections were resorted to. The heart began to beat again, the temperature of the body went up, breathing was restored. In fact the body came back to "life," and in this state it was kept until a quarter of an hour after midnight. A magistrate had been called to the house to see to the interests of the "infant ward." He witnessed the revival from seemingg death to life.

WIRELESS PHONE A SUCCESS.

Professor Vanni at Rome Talked to Tripoli With Ease.

(Chicago Tribune.)

Paris — Prof. Vanni of the Rome Wireless institute, who telephoned by wireless from Rome to Tripoli, visited Paris recently. In an interview he gave the details of how he was able to send a telephone message across the Mediterranean sea, a distance of nearly 700 miles.

Prof. Vanni said in his experiments he uses a liquid microphone, the idea of which was given him by Chichester Bell, Alexander Graham Bell's brother. With this and Moretti generators the members of the Tripoli wireless station heard him with perfect distinctness, and those who knew him personally at once recognized his voice.

He also told how, as an interesting experiment, he placed the horn of a talking machine near the liquid microphone, and then tunes and songs played by the instrument were heard clearly.

Prof. Vanni said he is following up these results with further experiments. He is confident he will soon be able to telephone by wireless from Rome to Paris. Although the distance between the two capitals is only 150 miles more than to Berlin, the Hertz waves, he says, find it a good deal more difficult to pass such obstacles as mountains, hills and forests than to cross the sea.

BOYS AND RYE BREAD.

(New York Evening Post.)

The Boy Scouts of America may find occasion to thank their stars that there is a new understanding of "discipline," if they will take the trouble to read some of the stories told of the military cadet corps of Russia, as it was in the first half of the last century. Boys were brought in when six years old by fathers who were for the most part military men with the military idea of the disciplinary force in hardships, and boys from 10 years old upward had to fall in line for inspection from visiting generals. On the night before such a visitor was expected the boys put their white tights on wet and slept in them. That was to make the tights fit tighter on parade. When Alexander II. was crowned the first cadet corps fell in after a five-mile march. They were not allowed to go to bed over night; or even to lie down. They could only sit on prepared pieces of leather.

Back in the fifties one of the colonels developed a theory that the corps boys ate too much rye bread. It was the only thing that had been allowed them without stint, and the colonel's decision that it hurt their health was dealt with strategically by the boys. An order went forth by the grape vine route that interlinks boy and boy that on a certain night, as soon as the dormitory watchmen were asleep in their chairs, every one was to find his way to the larders and eat bread until he could hold no more. By some miracle the performance went through without a hitch. Next morning there was not a crumb of bread to be found anywhere.

Of course, the only explanation was that the boys had eaten it, and a very little arithmetic showed that each boy had eaten about four pounds. Best of all, from the boys' point of view, not a boy was made the least sick. Pragmatism as such had not come into existence in those days, but the proof of the pudding even then was in the eating, and after that the fussiest colonel could not say that rye bread was "bad for the boys."

"DEACON" WHITE DIED POOR.

(New York Tribune.)

It became known yesterday that Stephen V. White of Brooklyn, who won and lost several fortunes in Wall street, and who was known to everybody in the street as "Deacon" White, had died a poor man. One of the members of his family said yesterday that Mr. White owned no realty when he died. No will of Mr. White has been filed in the surrogate's court in Brooklyn, and it was said yesterday that he left none, having had no estate to dispose of.

Mr. White, who was 81 years old, died on last January 18 at the Standish Arms, Columbia Heights, Brooklyn. Because of ill health he had been out of the stock market for about seven years. Mr. White failed in business three times, but he recovered each time and paid his dbts in full. His lalst failure followed an attempt to "corner" the corn market in 1891. Standing to make about $3,000,000, before he could unload and realize the price dropped and he was carried under. After that he did not figure in any great operation in Wall street.

WHAT SANTA DID.

(Lippincott's.)

'Twas the night before Christmas, and Jacob and Gretchen
Lay snug in their bed in the Dornhoefer kitchen.
Not a sound save the song that the gay cricket sings,
And a faint, sleepy murmur, "'Top kickin' my shins,"
Could be heard in the Dornhoefer kitchen that night,
But there by the fire, in the moon's silver light,
In a short, straggling row lay four queer little shoes,
Left there for the jolly Kris Kringle to use.
Then suddenly Gretchen sat up with a start
And rubbed Jacob's eyes (you can't tell them apart,
Those Dornhoefer twins, in the brightest day-light,
So how could poor Gretchen be sure in the night?)
And they laughed as they thought of the words Santa'd use,
For they'd hidden a mouse-trap in each of their shoes.
Well, Santa Claus came, and the mouse-trap went slam,
And Santa said something that sounded like "sham,"
And the Moon said she saw just the strangest of things—
'Twas Santa Claus spanking the Dornhoefer twins.

SELLING BOOKS AT AUCTION

Not All of the Salesmen Have the Same Method of Passing Out Stock.

TRAGEDY OF LITERATURE

Authors' Choicest Gems Disposed of Under Red Flags and Glaring Posters.

The book auctioneer weighed a volume critically in his hand as he turned to the title page. In a moment he had fixed the title and author's name firmly in his mind, noted the number of pages and illustrations and stepped briskly forward to the edge of the platform.

The room was filled with a mixed crowd attracted from the sidewalk by the red flags and flaring posters. The literary tragedy thus staged is enacted daily in scores of book salesthroughout the country.

"Now gentlemen"—the man of books forced his voice to its highest key—"I never handled a finer line of books in my life than we have here today. I know a literary audience when I see one. Well, today you will have the opportunity of a lifetime, believe me.

"I will begin the sale by offering you a high-class literary article, the works of the great writer—er—er—Balzac. Now, let me tell you who Balzac was. He was a Frenchman, and he wrote a great many of the best sellers of—of that period. Why, gentlemen, he thought nothing of writing a $10,000 book. Think of it! I now show you his complete works in three volumes.

To the Red Tie.

"One dollar and a half do I hear? One moment, gentlemen.

"Look what we have here,—three volumes, count them. Who will offer two dollars. Two dollars? Yes? Thank you. Now two and a half, a half, half, half, half. My motto is quick sales and small profits. Who'll give a half? Here's a bargain. You'll never regret—half, half? Yes, I get you over there in the corner. Going at two and a half, half, half. Thank you. The gentleman with the red necktie gets the complete set.

"I will now offer you another really high grade book. Just the book you have been waiting for, I'm sure. It's by a writer named Browning, and is entitled, as you see, the 'Ring and the Book.' And this reminds me of a little story which with your kind permission, I will relate to you."

The auctioneer's voice had fallen to an ingratiating, conversational tone.

"A lady once entered a large department store and inquired of the first aisle man she met if she could procure Browning in the emporium. He told her she could not. He explained that they sold bluing, blacking and whiting and took orders for pinking, but they had no Browning. Well, now, gentlemen, we are better off than that store. We have Browning, all right, and how much am I bid for him?"

Human Boasts the Price.

Under the spell of this irresistible humor the volume was started at 50 cents, run to 75 cents, and, after, spirited fractional advances, knocked down for 87 cents.

"Now, here we have a real select little book"—the auctioneer again spoke with vehemence which shook the windows—"it's bound in leather, you see, an ornament for your table. It is written by Thomas, let me see, O-T-W-A-Y. It seems to be a book of plays—Yes, its a book of plays—and, as you can see at a glance, a real select thing."

It was. The ancient leather binding had the unmistakable dignity of age. The leaves of rich vellum had taken on a delicate shade of brown, which was absolutely convincing—a book to handle reverently.

"Look at this leather," shouted the auctioneer, "a little shopworn, perhaps, but still a very serviceable book. How much?

Look at the Paper.

"Not a bid, gentlemen? Why, gentlemen, look what I'm offering you. Look at the grade of paper they have put into it.

"I open it at random. Here we have something written about, let me see, 'Venice Preserved.' You have all heard of the beautiful city of Venice, where people go about the streets in boats.

"What do I hear? Five cents? No, gentlemen, I cannot sacrifice this book for 5 cents. I will purchase it myself for my own private library. Here, Jimmy, put this book aside for me. Shades of the 'tender Otway!'"

"Now, the best thing about a book sale, you'll all agree with me, is speed." The salesman spoke with extreme rapidity. "Now here is a lot of classy little books which I am going to run off in a hurry. Each volume goes to the first bidder. They were A1 holiday sellers only last year, but you all know how the fashions change, so this year they go cheap.

Where Size Counts.

"What am I offered for this one, a fine novel, colored illustrations, more than 300 pages of entertaining reading. Ten cents? It's yours.

"Here's another, almost as big. How much? Five? Take it. Now another. Five? It's yours. Here's a pile of 'em, each and every one goes to the first bidder.

"Here is just the article you have been waiting for gentlemen"—the auctioneer cleared his throat for a more vehement effort—"this fine big book. Here it is. It seems to be a collection of plays and the author's name is E-U-R-I-Pides. Now, gentlemen, you must all agree with me that there is nothing more interesting than a good play. When you come home tired at night after a hard day's work what would you rather do than anything else? Enjoy a good play, of course. By purchasing this volume you can read a number of plays in your own homes. Now here is a full line of plays by this author. What am I bid?"

We struggled forward to catch a glimpse of the lost masterpieces of Euripides, restraining an impulse to begin the bidding at a million.

Thirty-cent Sacrilege.

"Thirty cents, do I hear? Now, gentlemen," the auctioneer pleaded, "does this look like thirty cents? Why, see the size of the book—more than 500 pages. Fifty, did you say?" Let us close our ears to the sacrilege.

"Gentlemen," he resumed, "I am anxious to find just the literary article you are looking for. Will some one suggest an author or a subject which meets with your approval? It will save time for both of us. Only last week I was disposing of a fine line of gents' furnishings and the sales dragged until I took this method and asked the boys to help me out. Well, now, my friends, what shall it be next?

"Something to read, I hear some one say. I get you. We have had too much of the highbrow stuff, eh? Well then, here is one of the best sellers, a most up-to-date novel. You couldn't ask more than that now, could you? You literary gentlemen can't overlook a thing like that. A really popular novel, with an elegant colored picture on the cover. The book's as good as new. How much? Will somebody start it at a quarter, only twenty-five cents? What, no bids? Well, we can't let things drag here.

"I tell you what I'll do for you. I'll throw in a couple of books and start the lot at a quarter. Anything to get things going.

"See here, I pick up two attractive volumes at random. Here is a book, almost a new book you see, on fishing. Every one likes to fish or to read about fishing, I'm sure. It's a fine pastime. The book is written by a man named Wilson. And here's a neat little volume. I'll throw this in, too. It's a book of, let me see, a book of essays, short ones, looks like very interesting reading, written by Emerson. The three for a quarter."

Emerson, "Three-for-quarter."

The astounding trinity was disposed of for twenty-five cents.

The piles of books slowly disappeared, the auctioneer's eloquence flowed on uninterrupted. He cajoled his audience, flattered them, scolded them. With the assistance of the storm which raged outside he managed to hold his audience for hours.

His supreme effort was reserved for the end of the sale. The last book lay before him, a portly volume. The orator drew himself up to his full height, and, with an eloquent gesture, began his peroration in a voice several sizes too large for the room. When every eye was fixed upon him, he grabbed the volume before him and raised it above his head with both arms.

"Gentlemen," he began impressively, "I will close this sale by giving you an opportunity to bid for this book. Gentlemen," his voice fell to a whisper, "this volume contains the complete works of Shakespeare." The voices rose in a shout.

Shakespeare "Boiled Down."

"Shakespeare, I say. The biggest writer of any time. In one volume! He has written more than is put in this volume, I believe, but here his works have been boiled down, and the best of his writings and sayings placed in this convenient form. As I once heard a gentleman say, no library is complete without this writer.

"I am sure, every gentleman in the room will be glad to bid upon this valuable book. Why, gentlemen, let me tell you. This writer started in life a poor boy and he died worth $1,000,000. Think of it! Now, how much am I bid?"

With the end of the sale actually in sight the highly critical audience began to shuffle its way toward the door. It was clearly a question of quick sales or no profits at all.

"One moment, gentlemen! One moment!" shouted the auctioneer. "Look at this bargain. Don't lose this opportunity. I will start the book at 25 cents. Only a quarter. One moment more, gentlemen. This is giving it away.

"Twenty-five, five, five, five! Going, going, going—

"Gone!"

One Hat From Every Woman for Endowment Fund Wanted.

(New York Post.)

A Texas senator wants to punish women who insist upon wearing hats in public gatherings (and they need punishing) by a penalty provision that will prevent their buying a new hat for three years. Now, it is an easy matter for a man to introduce a bill with a hat forfeiture clause, but his action has been antedated by a woman's suggestion that all the women who are going to buy new hats shall stick to their old ones for one season and turn in the salvage to the endowment fund of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Figuring the federation membership at 800,000, and estimating that at least half the members would have at least one new hat a year, it can be seen that a tidy sum of $400,000 could be rolled up by this free will offering, if every hat were figured at only $1. But as the hats that some women would give up would approximate $100, the average is figured at $4, and a total endowment fund of $1,600,000 is dangled before the eyes of the club women as the reward of their sacrifice.

The suggestion is backed by a sound and logical showing that if approximately half a million women over the country are wearing unfashionable hats, unfashionable hats will be fashionable hats. "If there are enough people backing a custom it goes, doesn't it?" asks the proponent and then she shows that she is capable of applying the acid test by adding, "I who write this am going to try it and see. Who's afraid? Who can be frightened by a monster made of wire and bits of straw, feathers and chiffon that you could read Holy Writ through a half mile away. You are not! I know you are not!"

TOMB OF JONAH.

(Christian Herald.)

The site of Nineveh is almost perfectly level. But adjoining the western wall are two huge mounds concealing the palaces of the greatest kings of Assyria. The lower or southern mound is occupied by a mosque and a village of considerable size.

Its name is Nebi Yunus, or the Prophet Jonah, for in the mosque is the tomb in which Jonah is said to have been buried. The age of the tomb is uncertain, yet probably dates from long after the Hebrew prophet's time. However, the place is now sacred, so sacred that pilgrims visit it from afar.

Its name is Nebi Yunus, or the of the village to the mosque, and to the amazement of the natives I dismounted and entered the mosque yard. A crowd of excited men quickly surrounded me. To a priest I explained that I had come to see the grave of Jonah, and with a motion of the hand I made it understood that he would be rewarded. Removing my shoes I followed the priest through a dark passageway.

There he pointed to a wall and said the tomb was just beyond. I wished to enter the prayer room from which the tomb itself might be seen, but the place was considered far too sacred for my profane feet. However the few Christians who have been permitted to see the tomb may look only through a small window into a dark chamber in which a cloth covered mound is scarcely discernible. It is said that no Moslem even will enter the inner shrine.

THE LOST CHANCE.

A Hint to the Hesitant.
(Judge.)

She stood beneath the mistletoe,
When I came in the room.
The vision set my heart aglow
And drove away my gloom.
But I—alas!—I paused to stare,
Enraptured at the glance;
And it was then, and it was there,
I lost my only chance.

For as I stood another came,
A speedier than I.
He hied him straightway to his game,
E'en as the eagles fly;
And, oh, the kisses and the smacks,
So merry and so gay!
He took 'em singly and in stacks,
In cumulate array!

A hungrier wight I never saw
In all this life of pain;
He gobbled up a thousand score,
And then began again,
And when I left at break of day—
Oh, bitter, bitter pill—
I very much regret to say,
The cuss was at it still!

Not Explanatory.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

A famous London doctor says half of the great poets were insane. Probably the other half were merely crazy. But there is nothing in the statement that offers any explanation of the modern increase in insanity.

LESSONS TAUGHT BY TORNADO

AVOID PROJECTING OUTLINES

(Chicago Tribune.)

A square house is beter than one with hump roof projections. Avoid projections of outline. A flat roof is better than a stub roof. The latter causes much stress on the leeward wall. Large-sized framing timbers, the old-fashioned mortise and tenon sills well anchored to foundation, roof well anchored to frame, nails long and numerous (not wire nails), small panes of glass, all are desirable.

A brick house will resist a tornado if built with cement mortar and good bonding and thick walls. Poor cement will cause loss of leeward wall. Poor bonding with backing, whether of tile or brick, will cause the face layer to drop off. Tile, well cemented, is good if well bonded into face work.

With poorly built houses it is dangerous to go to the cellar. The ruins of house will bury those in cellar, gas pipes will leak, causing suffocation or fire. A cyclone cellar annex to a cellar should have an exterior outlet. With poor brickwork it is dangerous to go to the cellar. Attics should be avoided.

A well-built frame house may be carried off bodily without serious harm to the occupants whether in the house or in the cellar. Houses may be turned over or even upside down, and still go through the tornado without being broken up.

Get Close to Ground.

There is some danger from flying objects, but less near the ground than a few feet higher. A ditch or hole in the ground is a good place for safety.

The chief causes of damage are the gale in advance of the tornado proper, the rapidly rotating circumference of air filled with debris, and the vacuum of the interior. There is a blowing over or carrying up—a pounding from the circumference, and a suction by the interior vacuum. The pounding drives much glass into interior woodwork and furniture. The vacuum sucks many objects out of most rooms, but in many cases furniture, beds, even jars of preserves with tops off were left undisturbed, with the outer wall gone.

The first floor leeward rooms are generally the safest, if one keeps well away from the outer walls. The suction is generally less from these rooms.

If roof boarding is left somewhat open, portions only of the roof covering may be removed by the exploding inside air in place of the whole roof being removed. Confined air in trunks or closets may cause these to burst open with removal of contents. Leave windows and doors open on leeward side of house.

An Uncomfortable Exit.

Glass in windows is generally broken in or out, except for a ragged edge about an inch or less in width around the sash, making an uncomfortable form for exit of occupants of the room when the suction comes.

In a steel building the filler walls are promptly knocked in or blown out. A skyscraper would be badly damaged, and apparently a very unsafe form of building. Low steel garages were badly wrecked, as to filler walls intermediate of the steel posts, and occupants killed or injured. In general any buildings involving the use of mortar should be avoided unless it is known that the mortar and bonding are good. The three buildings in Omaha where the large loss of life happened were of poor brickwork or filled walls.

Small Percentages Killed.

Frame houses received much shelter from large brick structures to the windward. Many one-story houses tumked in between higher ones, either frame or brick, were almost uninjured. Such local shelter seemed to have much more value than any range or hill, as the Omaha tornado moved with much indifference over hills or in hollows.

The low pressure of the vacuum had a marked effect on persons troubled with heart or respiratory maladies. One person described the heart action as resembling in sensation what an alarm clock in action resembles in sound.

Most persons, noting the powerful action of tornadoes in driving material through trees and walls, and in twisting objects, have assumed that a tornado means destruction of everything in its path. Its aproach was supposed to be so rapid that none could avoid it by flight, even laterally to its path. In Omaha fewer than one in twelve of those in the tornado's path were injured, fewer than one in seventy-five were killed. If all the buildings in the storm path had been of good construction, probably not one in a hundred would have been injured, or one in a thousand killed.

GO SLOW AFTER AGE OF 55.

Mortality Among Men Has Increased in Last Half Century.

(London Mail.)

On the question of why we grow old, discussed in connection with the in inquiry being carried out by Dr. Andrewes, pathologist to St. Bartholomew's hospital, on arterial decay, a doctor says:

"It is very important for men to recognize that the danger period is from the age of 50 or 55 onwards. Up to 50 the arteries respond fairly well to the stress of ordinary life, but about that age a man must ease off decidedly or he will find himself going quickly downhill. This warning applies not only to physical but also to mental work.

"There are some exceptionally sound men of more than 55 who can do a day's hunting or shooting or work their brain at high pressure for eight or ten hours a day without apparent hurt, and there are also men who can eat and drink as freely at this age as when in full vigor. Probably they shorten their lives by a few years. The vast majority of men certainly cannot act in this way without bad consequences.

"At 50 a man should begin to go slow in every way; he should dress more leisurely, eat less, reduce his ordinary work by 25 per cent and never, in any circumstances, make an extraordinary effort, physical or mental."

Dr. Andewe's inquiry has been made because of the disquieting fact that the mortality among men of more than 55 has increased in the last half century. At all ages less than 45 there has been a vast improvement.

HEN TURNS ON THE GAS.

Aged Couple Killed by Pet Bird Kept in the House.

(New York Herald.)

A leghorn hen of which Herman F. Muller, a retired mill foreman of Passaic, and his wife had made a household pet in their advanced age, was responsible for their deaths in the home they owned at No. 36 Semel avenue at Garfield, a Passaic suburb. Their bodies were found in a bedroom when police, summoned by a son, Aldin Muller, forced an entrance to the residence yesterday.

Death had been due to asphyxiation by gas, according to the county physician, Samuel Armstrong, although there was no odor of gas in the house when the bodies were discovered. Evidently the couple had been dead for several days and the gas which was supplied by a 25-cent meter, had been shut off automatically, that which had escaped having filtered through crevices in the doors and windows.

The body of Mrs. Muller lay in bed and that of her husband on the floor near a door leading to a hall, indicating that he had been overcome while attempting to escape from the room. The gas which killed the couple had poured from a jet a few feet above a gas range in the kitchen, adjoining the bedroom.

The police suggested the theory of suicide, but the son of the couple strongly protested. He said that his father, who was 66 years old, and his mother, who was 57, were in comfortable financial circumstances, and in good health.

As he discussed the case with policemen in the kitchen the leghorn hen stalked from a closet.

"What's that hen doing in the house?" asked a policeman.

"Just a pet of my parents," said the young man. "They kept her in the house for company."

As they spoke the hen flapped her wings and jumped to the top of the gas range. From there, she jumped to the bracket of the gas jet and clutched the open stop of the jet with her talons.

"That's her favorite perch," exclaimed the son. "Why, say!" he exclaimed. "That must be how——"

The police agreed with him that the hen had turned on the gas and caused the death of the couple.

DRESS AND MODESTY.

(Kansas City Star.)

The variations in what modesty permits and requires constitute an interesting study. The Heroes of South Africa insist that women keep their heads covered. As to what else they wear they aren't so particular. A German explorer found that a Herero lady didn't mind posing for a photograph with nothing much on except the head cloth. But she was terribly shocked at the idea of removing that.

It is the style among the Yakuts to wear nothing above the waist. But they consider bare feet immodest. Missionaries in China have written home asking that churches that send them boxes omit picture books showing persons barefooted. In China the exposure of the foot is decollete.

On the Uganda railroad, near Lake Victoria, under the equator, Sir Harry Johnson found a tribe who considered clothing quite superfluous. The members wore ornaments, but nothing else. But they were regarded as "the most moral people in Uganda." Near them lived a tribe, the Baganda, who were exceedingly particular as to their clothing. But they had an unsavory reputation as to morals.

In civilized nations, of course, dress that is considered proper for evening wear at parties would be regarded as extremely immodest for street use. Conventional usage permits the wearing of costumes for bathing that would not be tolerated off the beach. The same differences appear accentuated in other parts of the world.

In Japan, for instance, until recent years, hot baths were taken by everybody in public. What no one could help, everybody was expected to ignore. But Japanese women who would bathe in public with no embarrassment were shocked at the dress which European women wore at evening parties.

It may be noticed that while we are shocked at the idea of promiscuous bathing by the Japanese our ancestors did the same thing well into modern times. Church councils were repeatedly condemning the practice, but it did not disappear from Europe until 300 or 400 years ago.

MIRACLES CAUSED BY SHOCK.

(Tit-Bits.)

The recent case of Miss Lily Curl of Ashford, Kent, who, after being deaf and dumb for twenty-one years, is slowly recovering both hearing and speech—the shock of the tragic end of her brother, who drowned himself in the Stour, being regarded as responsible for the miraculous recovery—is by no means an isolated example of shock succeeding where doctors have failed.

Some time ago the narrow escape of a boy from drowning, off North Shields Fish quay, had a remarkable sequel. While efforts were being made to restore the apparently drowned boy to consciousness by means of artificial respiration, a man named Thomas Cummings, who had been deprived of speech two years earlier, as the result of the accident, pushed through the crowd merely out of curiosity. As soon as he saw the prostrate boy, although not in any way related to him, the sight gave him such a shock that his speech suddenly returned, and he fell to the ground in a state of collapse. Upon recovering he continued to speak freely, and has suffered no further impediment since.

One of the most amazing cases was that of Walter Speck, a resident of Gloucester, who eight years ago lost his power of speech through the shock occasioned by the death of his father.

Being a football enthusiast, he one day witnessed a Gloucester versus Cheltenham match, and when the city team scored Speck, in his excitement, forgot that he had been deprived of his voice, and attempted to cheer with the rest of the crowd. To his amazement and that of his friends his shout was heard above that of any of those standing near. Since then Speck has been able to converse as well as ever, and there is no likelihood of his speech failing him.

One of the medical journals tells how the fear of an accident was once the means of restoring speech to a dumb man. Mr. J. Moore of Gosport had been dumb for years, when, on returning home one evening, his bicycle skidded. In his alarm he shouted, and was so startled and surprised at hearing his voice that he called out again and again, until he was convinced that his long lost voice had come back to him.

John Drew's Distinction.

(Lippincott's Magazine.)

Joseph Jefferson and Wilton Lackaye were in the same company one season. It was the custom of Mr. Jefferson to respond to curtain calls and make a speech to the audience. He enjoyed it and the audience enjoyed it also. Mr. Lackaye, however, always contended that an actor should not step out of his part in this manner.

One night after Mr. Jefferson had made his speech and was going to his dressing room he met Lackaye.

"Well, Wilton," said Jefferson, "how did I do tonight?"

"Oh," replied Lackaye, "the same old story. You went out before the audience and made the usual blunder."

"Blunder!" exclaimed Jefferson, "What did I do or say that you would call a blunder?"

"Why," said Lackaye, "you said, 'As I look into your faces I feel that I should like to shake hands with each and every one.'"

"Well, what's wrong with that?" asked Jefferson.

ELBA IS NO LONELY PLACE

FARMS AND IRON MINES

(Consular Report.)

The Island of Elba, the principal island in the Tyrrhenian archipelago, located between Corsica and the coast of Tuscany, has an area of 86 square miles, a coast extension of 71 miles and a population of 44,382, according to the census of 1911. It is separated from the mainland of Italy by the Strait of Piombino, ten miles wide. Administratively it belongs to the Tuscan Province of Leghorn. The soil is ferruginous, generally fertile, and the climate mild, varying from 40 to 90 degrees F. The vine, the orange, the lemon, the olive and the mulberry flourish. Wines famous for their content of iron; wheat, Indian corn, vegetables and melons are the chief agricultural products. Sheep, goats, swine and asses are found in large numbers, but few horses and horned beasts. Goat's milk and butter are served at the hotels of Elba. The sea yields a great variety of fish, of which the tunny is the most valuable, which is now sent to Florence, where it is canned. The principal industries, besides agricultural and viticulture are ore mining, the production of pig iron and of steel and the quarrying of granite.

Imports Are Few.

The island supplies nearly all the needs of the inhabitants, the direct imports from countries other than Italy in 1910, except coal, being as follows: Building material, 72 tons; machinery, 355 tons; cereals, 4 tons; iron and steel goods, 47 tons; all other articles, 80 tons. Nearly all of the building materials, machinery and iron and steel goods imported went to the local concern mining ore and making iron and steel.

There are no wholesale houses in Elba, the retailers being supplied chiefly from Leghorn and Genoa. German and Italian manufactures lead, and American hardware, cutlery, machine tools, and phonographs are found on sale. A large bakery and macaroni factory has just been completed, equipped with the newest electrical appliances and machinery. This plant has a daily capacity of five tons of "paste." The daily consumption of paste is estimated at ten tons, and, with the native vegetables, it forms the principal article of the people's food.

The principal ports are Portoferraio on the north coast, with about 8,000 inhabitants, and Portolongone. The harbor of Portoferraio is one of the best on the Mediterranean, being a vast, deep inland bay, capable of holding one-half of the navies of the world, and this harbor and Portolongone offer safe anchorage to the largest vessels all the year round. Rio Marina, Marciana Marina, and Campo, are open roadsteads, where ships may load and unload from and to lighters nearly every day in the year. Elba is reached from Rome or Leghorn by train to Piombino, and thence by daily packet boat across the strait and twice a week from Leghorn by comfortable steamers. There are no railways on the island, and the few wagon roads are not very good. Traffic is carried on by water, the principal towns being located on the shores.

Imports Are Few.

The island of Elba is visited by many botanists and ornithologists from all over the world. Here are found unlimited species of plants, herbs and wild flowers, some of which are not met with in any ohter part of Europe, and many of which, according to the botanist, would not be expected to grow in that latitude or in the altitudes of the Elban mountains where they are found. The ornithologist finds a rich field here for his labors. Many of the migratory birds traveling between points south of the equator and the Arctic ocean settle on Elba temporarily in their passages north and south. In the Museum Demidoff, close to the villa once occupied by Napoleon Bonaparte, three miles from Portoferraio, many specimens of rare birds are on exhibition.

Iron-Ore Important Product.

The iron and steel industries of Italy depend almost entirely on the supply of iron ores on the island of Elba, the supply from Sardinia and other points in Italy, principally from Lombardy, being inconsiderable.

The iron mines on the Island of Elba are the property of the Italian state. They are worked at present under a lease granted by the government to Elba Societa Anonima di Miniere e di Alti Forni, and this lease expires in 1923. The royalty is $1.50 per metric ton. The principal mines now worked on this island are at Rio Marina, Rio Elba, Virginia, Terra Nera and Calamita. Under the terms of the lease the lessee can not take out more than 500,000 metric tons per year, but by concessions made after its execution this has been increased to 600,000 tons. The ore is of the red hematic variety, and the best ores yield 58 per cent and the poorest 44 per cent of metallic iron. The remaining deposits on the island are estimated at 18,000,000 tons, and at the present rate of consumption they will be exhausted in thirty-six years. The richest mines are at Rio Marina and at Rio Elba. The ores are mined by surface workings at a cost of about $1 per ton, exclusive of the royalty. All of the ores are in close proximity to the sea, and their transport to the furnaces at Portoferraio, on the island of Elba, costs 15 cents a ton.

The World.

(Detroit Free Press.)

And mean men are in it by scores.
The selfish and greedy, ne'er think of the needy,
The rich to the poor bar their doors.
The vicious are thriving, the wicked surviving,
While only the good seem to die.
But just lift your face up, and dig in and brace up,
For you can succeed if you try.

Of course, it's a bad world, of course, it's a glad world,
It's just what you want it to be.
It's just how you take it, or just how you make it,
It's just what you're looking to see.
It's a bully designed world, the best you can find world,
Until you shall journey on high;
So grin at the test of it, work—make the best of it,
For you can succeed if you try.

Just start in to make it that way.
Be glad of your labor and think of your neighbor,
Forget all that's gloomy today.
Forget all the meanness, the vice and uncleanness,
Make your world a joy to the eye,
So just lift your face up and dig in and brace up,
For you can succeed if you try.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

"Yes, I know he's wild. But I am going to marry him to reform him."

"Well, its an interesting experiment. Been tried by millions of girls, and now and then one succeeds."

P. O. Mykleby and A. H. Thornton, farmers residing out east, were parties to an action, or two actions, that came up for final consideration in Justice Buse's court Tuesday. Each man had sworn out a warrant for the arrest of the other on an assault and battery charge. The men had engaged in a fierce fistic encounter and each bore marks of the fray. The men are neighbors, Cattle belonging to Mykleby had gone on the land of Thornton and Mr. Thornton was about to to take up the stock when Mr. Mykleby appeared and objected. There were a few words and then the men went at each other "hammer and tongs." That it was no cheap imitation of a fight but the real thing no one who heard the testimony or saw the men can doubt. Both were badly bruised. Justice Buse found both guilty of the charge brought against him, imposed a small, fine and costs in each case and put both men under bonds to keep the peace.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

George Larson and Ole Krastue two young fellows living near Oklee, indulged excessively in intoxicants and got into considerable trouble. They drove to Brooks and while there Krostue bumped into Mr. Perras the blind man well known here, and without provocation struck Mr. Perras in the face fracturing his nose. The young men were placed under arrest and broght to this city. After they had sobered up they expressed much regret for their conduct. Since Krastue had made a settlement with Mr. Perras by the payment of a cash consideration for the doctor's bill and damages, Judge Buse allowed the boys to plead guilty to the charge of drunkeness and fined them each one dollar and costs. The celebration cost Larson 813.50 and Krastue $118.60. And they both announced that they are on the water-wagon after this.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

A bunch of eight Thief River girls came down on the flyer Wednesday evening, remaining here until the north bound flyer yesterday morning. This respite, however, had not been premediated on the part of the girls, as they had only planned a little charivari on a couple who were married in Thief River that day, and when searching for the newly-weds in the train to whom they intended to administer a liberal dose of rice, etc., they tarried too long and were carried beyond their station. They enjoyed the trip, however, but all their good intentions were sadly shattered as the young couple who were to be their prey in the battle with rice and old shoes, were no where to be found.

Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra

That one of the really great American Orchestras should visit the city of Thief River Falls, reflects great credit upon its enterprising citizens and should receive a very liberal patronage.

The afternoon matinee will be a full concert so that out of town music lovers who may wish to hear this great organization can return home in day light, and it is to be hoped that automobile owners in near by towns will come with their friends.

Remember that it is very unlikely that we will be visited again by such a musical organization, very soon.

Warning!

Fire is the most dreaded of the elements. To the settler whose home is separated from human aid by miles of trackless forest, fire holds a double dread. Soon, now with the disappearance of the winter moistness will the demon hold a threatening claw toward the home of the northwoodsman. The following warning, given in the second annual report of the state forester, William T. Cox, is particularly timely at this season:

"The number of acres burned over by forest fires in 1912 was 17,676 and the damage done was $22,644 91.

"There is no longer any question about the desirability of disposing of logging slash as a precaution against serious forest fires. Already the danger of the woods has been considerably reduced as a result of disposing of last winter's slash. There still remains large areas of old slashings made previous to 1911, but these are gradually rotting and settling and will become less dangerous each year.

"Disposal of the slash resulting from the construction of wagon roads, drainage ditches and new railroad right-of-ways seems to be regarded as a small matter; but in the aggregate these different works give rise to an enormous amount of slash, which, because of its location along lines of travel, is particularly dangerous.

"One of the chief causes of fire during the past season, as in previous years, has been carelessness on the part of settlers burning slashings on their clearings. It has required a great deal of educational work on the part of the Ranger to develop in the settler a keener appreciation of the danger accompanying the burning of his slashings and the damage to the standing timber on his own claim when it is subjected to even a creeping fire. Unquestionably the settlers are coming to believe more fully in fire prevention. In some localities they have even formed volunteer fire brigades in order to suppress fires quickly and systematically. A realization of the possible injury to the property and even lives of their neighbors and consequent damage suits, is also a strong factor in doing away with the former attitude of carelessness with fire on the part of the settlers."

ESTRANGEMENT IS POSSIBLE OUTCOME

WAR TALK IS BRANDED AS VERY RIDICULOUS BY JAPS, HOWEVER.

EXPECT JUSTICE FROM U. S.

Conceded That Failure Probably Means Complications—Tension Over Situation in Washington.

Tokio, May 20.—Faith in the American people to see that justice is done the Japanese is the dominating note in the discussion of the California alien land ownership legislation.

Denounce War Talk.

War talk is denounced as ridiculous and only calculated to embarrass the two governments, which are laboring for a peaceful settlement by diplomacy.

It is conceded, however, that failure on the part of the Americans to respond to the Japanese appeal for a discontinuance of the alleged discrimination would be liable to lead to some estrangement. The Japanese public generally is convinced that the land bill is a racial and not an economic measure, and hence a blow to national pride, and the people feel that the world must be taught the necessity of equal treatment for the whites and non-whites.

The Tokio newspapers are loud in their praise of President Wilson's zeal in his endeavors to preserve the traditional friendship, and they recognize the difficulties which confront the president of the United States in the confusing conflict between the state and federal rights.

Firm Attitude Urged.

The Nichi Nichi is of the opinion that the question as to whether the Washington government can procure for the Japanese equal rights depends upon the strength of Japanese diplomacy, and urges the government to take a firm attitude.

A joint celebration of the Japanese and American peace societies was attended by 1,000 Japanese. Speeches were made by Count Okuma, former minister of foreign affairs; Baron Yoshiro Sakatani, mayor of Tokio, and Tsunejiro Miyaoka, who was councillor of the Japanese embassy at Washington in 1906. All the speakers endeavored to clarify the situation and decried Jingoism.

Wait for Johnson to Sign Bill.

Washington. — Tension over the Japanese situation continues to excite anxious attention in official and diplomatic quarters, but there are no specific developments at the White House, the state department or the Japanese embassy.

Nine of the 30 days Governor Johnson has, under the California constitution, to sign the alien land bill have now elapsed and the impression is beginning to gain ground here that the governor will avail himself of the full measure of time, even though he has declared his purpose to approve the Webb bill.

No Recent Communications.

Secretary Bryan has not communicated with the governor since the receipt of his telegraphic message setting out his reasons for upholding the action of the legislature, but is simply waiting for the final act of signature before making reply to the Japanese note protesting against the legislation.

Whether the Japanese embassy will continue to await the expiration of the full 30-day period of grace before making fresh representations on this subject to the state department, depends entirely upon the judgment of the foreign office in Tokio, for from this point forward all of the proceedings in the negotiations will be "ad referendum."

While the Japanese viewpoint has not been made known from any official source, yet it is believed here that they consider the first clause of the law as the one contravening the spirit, if not the letter, of the treaty. This first clause allows aliens "eligible to citizenship" to hold lands. As the Japanese are not, under the present naturalization laws, eligible to citizenship, this clause specifically debars them from land ownership.

1,000 SETTLERS A DAY

WESTERN CANADA MAKING REMARKABLE PROGRESS.

Settlers from the United Kingdom and other countries of Europe landed in Winnipeg last week at the rate of one thousand a day. The predicted boom in the populating of the prairie provinces this spring has materialized, as it did last year, and today the busiest city in America is probably the Manitoba metropolis.

The sturdy nations of Europe are all contributing to the rapid growth of Canada West. Two of the largest contingents reaching Winnipeg last week were from Germany and Scandinavia.

The British Isles are sending out larger contingents than ever before. The old land newspapers are filled with accounts of send-offs and farewells being given to popular townsfolk on the eve of departure for Canada.

Numerous editorials record the sentiments, bordering on despair, of the Britons who see their towns and villages desolated by the desertion of favorite sons and daughters. We can sympathize with those left behind while felicitating the young people who have their own way to make in the world, on their new opportunities in the country of mammoth crops.

Scotland lost 5,000 of her best blood and brawn in a single week this month. No wonder the young, aspiring Scots take so quickly to Canada. They have been reading of the triumphs and wonder working of Scottish pioneers in the Dominion ever since they were "bairns." A great part of Canada's success was wrought by Canadians from Caledonia, and the young Caledonians of today are eager to demonstrate that they can do as well out west as their forebears.

In addition to those from the old countries, the United States still keeps up in a strenuous manner, and is sending its thousands into that new country of the north. They take up the free homesteads of 160 acres on which they live for six months of each year for three years, and then get a deed or patent for a farm that is worth anywhere from $15 to $20 per acre, or, they may purchase lands at from $15 to $18 per acre that will yield with proper care in cultivation, excellent returns for the time, work and money expended.—Advertisement.

Not a Bad Case.

Dictating to Women.

Women, according to an edict in the Chinese government, are to wear European hats, but otherwise retain their customary dress, with certain modifications. It is prophesied that there will be revolt at the edict, because women in China as elsewhere, have grown weary of having men undertake to decide for them in matters of dress, matters of food, matters of morals and matters of government.

German Princes' Wanderjahr.

The prince of Wales might possibly enjoy his German trip still better if he could view the country in the unconventional way followed by the German crown prince and his brothers. Like all the Hohenzollerns, the kaiser's sons were taught trades, and their father also allowed them to taste the delights of the "wanderjahr," which still forms part of the education of most German artisans.

In the case of the young princes the year was split up over several successive summer holidays, which they spent tramping through Germany, knapsack on back, and sleeping at roadside inns. They traveled without a servant, accompanied only by their military governor, Col. von Falkenheyn, and were scarcely ever recognized.

HER "BEST FRIEND"

A Woman Thus Speaks of Postum.

We usually consider our best friends those who treat us best.

Some persons think coffee a real friend, but watch it carefully awhile and observe that it is one of the meanest of all enemies, for it stabs one while professing friendship.

Coffee contains a poisonous drug—caffeine—which injures the delicate nervous system and frequently sets up disease in one or more organs of the body, if its use is persisted in.

"I had heart palpitation and nervousness for four years and the doctor told me the trouble was caused by coffee. He advised me to leave it off, but I thought I could not," writes a Wis. lady.

"On the advice of a friend I tried Postum and it so satisfied me I did not care for coffee after a few days' trial of Postum.

"As weeks went by and I continued to use Postum my weight increased from 98 to 118 pounds, and the heart trouble left me. I have used it a year now and am stronger than I ever was. I can hustle up stairs without any heart palpitation, and I am free from nervousness.

"My children are very fond of Postum and it agrees with them. My sister liked it when she drank it at my house; now she has Postum at home and has become very fond of it. You may use my name if you wish, as I am not ashamed of praising my best friend—Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum now comes in new concentrated form called Instant Postum. It is regular Postum, so processed at the factory that only the soluble portions are retained.

A spoonful of Instant Postum with hot water, and sugar and cream to taste, produce instantly a delicious beverage.

Mankato.—An energetic movement has been started in this city, having for its object the erection of a county sanatorium for the care of those afflicted with tuberculosis.

Duluth.—There is a likelihod of only a little grain leaving the American Head of the Lakes before July. There is little demand in the east, and shippers are not chartering boats.

Anoka.—An anti-saloon league has been organized here with thirty members. The officers are: W. H. La Plant, president; Leeds Cutter, secretary; C. L. Johnson, treasurer.

Winona.—Walter McKinnon, who has been in Winona several days in the interest of the Lake to River Road association, which is working for a highway from Chicago to the twin cities, went from here to Rochester last evening, and from there will go to the twin cities. He plans to spend a good part of the summer in Minneapolis in promotion of this work.

Litchfield.—The annual meeting of school officers and teachers in the rural schools was held here. An excellent program was had. Professor Samuel Quigley of the state university talked on "School Discipline," and Professor D. F. Swenson on "Things Worth While." Diplomas were presented to a class of eighty-seven eighth grade graduates by State Superintendent C. G. Schultz.

East Grand Forks.—Acting under the decision of the Minnesota supreme court, which set aside assessments that had been levied against property in the city for paving benefits, the East Grand Forks council last night reassessed such benefits, working under a new law, which places that task in the hands of the council proper, rather than in the hands of a special assessment commission.

Moorhead.—The revised plans and specifications for the government building to be erected in this city have arrived at the local office. Bids will be opened June 23. With the additions allowed by the last congress, the total appropriations amount to $65,000. It is stated that not more than the foundation and basement walls will be constructed this year, the superstructure to be consructed and completed next year.

Wabasha.—Fire was discovered Wednesday in the storeroom of the Big Jo mill at the rear of a three-story brick building containing the Western Union Telegraph office and Krutt's barber shop, in the heart of the business section. The fire had gained much headway in a pile of empty flour bags and but for prompt work heavy loss would have resulted. The building belongs to R. E. Jones and the loss is insured.

Stillwater. — William West, a convict from St. Louis county who has served seven years, or a ten-year term less the good time allowance after having pleaded guilty to larceny, appeared in district court here on a writ of habeas corpus. West was sentenced an additional five years for burglary, but contends he is serving two sentences for one crime and that he is entitled to his freedom at this time. Erick Dahlberg has been indicted by the grand jury on a charge of assault.

Minneapolis.—Cornelius Gunderson, teamster, 2173 University avenue, St. Paul, was struck by an automobile driven by W. H. Kamman, 740 Marshall avenue, at University avenue and Vandalia street early Sunday and died two hours later at the Cobb hospital. Gunderson is said to have run in front of the car, which was going slowly, according to witnesses. He was about 40 years old and unmarried. His relatives are all supposed to be in Sweden. Coroner D. C. Jones said that Mr. Kamman was not to blame.

Winona.—Two deaths of pioneer residents occurred in Winona last week. Charles Horton, aged 78, lumberman and bank president, died of heart failure. He had been in excellent health until Wednesday, when he was taken with a cold. He came to Minnesota in 1858 and has been identified with the lumber business since 1860, when he founded the Empire Lumber company of this city. He was president of the First National bank of this city. Mrs. John R. Marfield of Minneapolis was one of his daughters. Dr. Charles P. Bunson, 83 years old, at one time a physician to the Russian court and army, died of apoplexy. He had been here since 1864.

Mankato.—Field laborers are arriving to work in the sugar beet fields. Many come from Nebraska. The acreage of beets this year will be much greater than last. In some localities it will be fully three times as great. The farmers lack time to cultivate beets, and when they wish it the Minnesota Beet Sugar company of Chaska brings in the laborers.

Mankato.—Mankato will soon have a visiting nurse, as the result of the success of "tag day." Two hundred women spent the day and evening disposing of tags, and a total of about $1,430 was realized.

Winona.—A meeting of Sunday school workers of Winona was held and A. M. Locker, president of the State Sunday School association, was present, and plans were taken up for entertaining the State Sunday school convention here on April 16 to 19, 1914. It was also planned to have the Winona county Sunday school convention held in the fall.

Rochester.—Samuel G. Blythe, political writer, is registered at the Kahler hotel here, with his wife. They came to consult the Doctors Mayo regarding a probable operation upon Mrs. Blythe.

How to Acquire More Self Control.

To acquire more self control and confidence perhaps the best step is to make yourself face disagreeable tasks with courage.

Do not be easily routed when you have determined on a course of action.

Perhaps the most disagreeable thing one meets in the course of a business day is the occasion for tactful yielding what one desires to say, to be agreeable to people who do not appeal to us, to give a pleasant answer when we are more inclined to give a curt one—in brief, to act according to the dictates of conscience on any and every occasion.

RASH SPREAD TO ARMS

759 Roach Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.—"At first I noticed small eruptions on my face. The trouble began as a rash. It looked like red pimples. In a few days they spread to my arms and back. They itched and burned so badly that I scratched them and of course the result was blood and matter. The eruptions festered, broke, opened and dried up, leaving the skin dry and scaly. I spent many sleepless nights, my back, arms and face burning and itching; sleep was purely and simply out of the question. The trouble also caused disfigurement. My clothing irritated the breaking out.

"By this time I had used several well-known remedies without success. The trouble continued. Then I began to use the sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Within seven or eight days I noticed gratifying results. I purchased a full-sized cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in about eighteen or twenty days my cure was complete." (Signed) Miss Katherine McCallister, Apr. 12, 1912.

After Long Suffering

Women Are Constantly Being Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Worth mountains of gold," says one woman. Another says, "I would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all the other medicines for women in the world." Still another writes, "I should like to have the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound thrown on the sky with a searchlight so that all suffering women could read and be convinced that there is a remedy for their ills."

We could fill a newspaper ten times the size of this with such quotations taken from the letters we have received from grateful women whose health has been restored and suffering banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Why has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound accomplished such a universal success? Why has it lived and thrived and kept on doing its glorious work among the sick women of the world for more than 30 years?

Simply and surely because of its sterling worth. The reason no other medicine has ever approached its success is plainly and simply because there is no other medicine so good for women's ills.

Here are two letters that just came to the writer's desk—only two of thousands, but both tell a comforting story to every suffering woman who will read them—and be guided by them.

FROM MRS. D. H. BROWN.

Iola, Kansas.—"During the Change of Life I was sick for two years. Before I took your medicine I could not bear the weight of my clothes and was bloated very badly. I doctored with three doctors but they did me no good. They said nature must have its way. My sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I purchased a bottle. Before it was gone the bloating left me and I was not so sore. I continued taking it until I had taken 12 bottles. Now I am stronger than I have been for years and can do all my work, even the washing. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I cannot praise it enough. If more women would take your medicine there would be more healthy women. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. D. H. Brown, 809 North Walnut Street, Iola, Kan.

MRS. WILLIAMS SAYS:

Elkhart, Ind. —"I suffered for 14 years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanitive Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.—Mrs. Sadie Williams, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Unsympathetic.

A man lost his life in a great flood. He was dead, but in the spirit world he lived over and over again the appalling scenes and incidents through which he had just passed. It seemed to him that he must talk it over with some one.

He therefore approached an elderly man and told him the story of how he died, giving a vivid word picture and making a lurid tale. To his great surprise, the old man showed little interest; in fact, he appeared to be bored. At last, being rather annoyed at such indifference, he asked the reason.

"Don't you know who I am?" asked the other.

"Why, no, I don't," was the answer. "I've only just arrived."

"Well," said the other, "I am Noah."

Time Is Sometimes Kind.

Father Time is not always a hard parent, and, though he tarries for none of his children, often lays his hand lightly upon those who have used him well, making them old men and women inexorably enough, but leaving their hearts and spirits young and in full vigor. With such people the gray head is but the impression of the old fellow's hand in giving them his blessing, and every wrinkle but a notch in the quiet calendar of a well-spent life.—From Barnaby Rudge.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address

FOURSCORE and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to the cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

Heritage of Glory

MEMORIAL DAY is an annual baptism of patriotism that makes the heart throb with pity for the tragic sacrifice of precious lives in the awful strife of 50 years ago. It was a titanic struggle, a harvest of death on blood-soaked battlefields in which grim, determined men in blue and in gray contended for mastery with equal bravery and stubborn courage. North and South, they have left us a heritage of deathless glory, the example of men who knew how to die for the cause they believed to be right. It tested the mettle of a world-conquering race. Out of this gigantic conflict the nation staggered, gasping, exhausted, bleeding, but still one people and under one flag. It gave us Lincoln and Davis, Grant and Lee, Sheridan and Forest to add to the nation's scroll of fame, and it showed a doubting world that the young American republic had bred a race of men inspired by ideals. They sleep well and nobly, the men who did this work.

NATION'S TRIBUTE

Decoration Day in the United States Sprang From Spontaneous Desire to Do Honor to the Heroes Who Had Fallen

LIKE many another modern institution, Memorial day really is of very ancient origin. And like these other celebrations, too, it has received, through the process of time, a new signification.

Every reader knows that Memorial day which for more than 40 years has been religiously celebrated each year in the United States is the expression of a new idea. Yet, a closer view of the celebration and of its ceremonies will show that it merely is an adaptation of a custom that is so old that its origin is lost in the misty past. The custom as we now have it, as is very readily understood and recognized, is new; it did not exist before the Civil war period. And yet, after all, this modern holiday is but the general acceptance of an old idea.

How long ago it has been customary to strew flowers over the graves of the dead may not be asserted with any degree of certainty. From the earliest times of civilization it has been customary to pay tribute to the dead, whether fallen in battle or died in peace. There is something about the custom that is inseparable from the practices of civilization.

Our decoration day, or Memorial day, as it is customary now to call it, was only the result of the spontaneous desire to pay tribute to the thousands of brave men who fell in the great Civil war. There was something extraordinary which called forth this spirit—a something that the present generation may find difficult to thoroughly comprehend and appreciate at its true value.

A four-years' war had kept the nation, both north and south, in a state of commotion and excitement. The whole country, both north and south, had contributed its young men, its youths, and even many of its men of maturer years to the terrible struggle. It is not difficult to understand just what that means. Here was a determined war that had sent to their graves brave men from every part of the country. That meant that in every large town and in many a village there were men who went to the front who never returned; many who did return, only to soon be borne to their graves at home.

The country was affected by the sight, so many men were caught in the enormous bloody strife, in this Moloch's maw, that nearly all who remained could point to the grave of one that had fallen, who was either a relative or a dear friend.

The cost of that struggle to keep the Union has, indeed, been put in dollars, but the real cost, the lives lost on both sides, places the sacrifice in another light, and cannot be estimated, for the sufferers were not only the fallen ones, but those who remained at home and suffered, too.

The south, naturally, was most severely shaken, and suffered the greatest loss, for the scene of the carnage and of the greater part of the destruction of both lives and property lay south of Mason and Dixon's line. Therefore it seems to have been poetic justice that there, in the south, the first steps should be taken to annually pay tribute to her fallen sons, who, it must be remembered, also were brave men, and where there were, too, homes rendered desolate by the loss of sons, fathers, husbands and brothers.

Within a year or two the Union troops had gained possession of the gulf sections of the south, and it may be said that it was in this section that the southern women first turned their attention to decking the graves of their soldiers. The idea may be said to have been spontaneous, and like many another custom, may be said to have been instituted by public opinion in several places at the same time. Certainly it would be a work of much difficulty to decide just where the custom really originated in the south.

Spring visits the south a full month before its first harbingers appear in the north, and as a consequence it became customary to strew flowers over the graves of the fallen soldiers in April, when flowers were fresh and in bloom. For the first few years, and until after the war, the custom was only a custom, and had not been organized into an institution. It had nothing like authority back of it; but it was persisted in with that tender feeling for the departed that by sheer public opinion it became one of the strongest kind of laws, that born of custom.

It requires the authority of the representatives of the people to enact a law making a certain day a legal holiday, but it does not require anything more than custom to get the people to turn out and pay public homage; and they did turn out, carrying their arms filled with flowers to lay on the little mounds in the graveyards and little cemeteries.

But while this was going on in the south there was in the north, which was quite natural, a similar feeling. It, too, grew spontaneously. It did not require much to arouse the enthusiasm of the people to a duty of this kind, and the first marked instance of a large movement to honor the dead who had fallen in battle may be said to have been sounded at Gettysburg, when, on November 19, 1863, the national cemetery there, on the field where thousands had fallen on both sides, was formally dedicated.

That occasion was one of those simple events which few of those present looked upon as anything more than a mere formality, but which have in them the seeds of a great popular movement. There, too, was delivered that address by President Lincoln which, for its concise summing up of an entire epic, which the times of strife were still providing with incidents, remains unequaled in its quiet majesty, its simple language, in the whole range of English literature.

The shouts of joy at the surrender of Lee had scracely been lost on the winds until the news of the assassination of Lincoln spread dismay throughout the nation, south as well as north. The funeral services over the martyred president, and the processions and the lyings-in-state in the cities through which the funeral train was taken, aroused in a new sense the idea of tribute to the fallen. In a certain sense the death of Lincoln at that time may have hastened the sentiment which finally took shape in Decoration day. There immediately were projects for monuments to the great emancipator, and the general tendency was towards the debt owed to the fallen soldier and his best friend.

Splendid Work of Grand Army.

To its members the Grand Army of the Republic is a matter second only to family and friends. They accord it the same loyalty and devotion that they did to the regiments in which they once fought. It stands for their record, for their past, and in that is its strength.

It was organized in Decatur, Ill., in the interests of the surviving representatives of the federal military and naval forces of the Civil war, the families of those dead and such objects as they should deem important to their association. The membership comprises soldiers and sailors of the war, honorably discharged or continuing, and state militia on active duty subject to call during the war. Its purposes are fraternity, the commemoration of events and the assistance of old soldiers and their families. It has been active in establishing homes and memorials and in educating and supporting the orphans of soldiers.

Their Memory Cannot Fade.

The time is not far off when their last reunion will be held and the Grand Army of the Republic will be no more. The mere thought of it brings sadness to the heart. But it should awaken other emotions. It should bring more of sympathy, of tenderness and of consideration for these vanishing heroes who offered the supreme sacrifice that the nation, now so strong and prosperous, this nation that exists for all of us, should not die.

Mean Man Made His Suggestion and Departed in Some Haste From Meeting of Indignant Women.

With tense, eager faces, the great audience of women leaned forward in their seats, eagerly drinking in the noted speaker's every word.

"Mere man," she was saying, "is wont to belittle woman's ability to enter the fields already usurped by him. As a matter of fact, she is capable of filling any post of public or private office now held by man, and, if appointed to it, could even perform man's tasks with greater faithfulness and greater daring.

"Name, if you can, one post for which she cannot fit herself! Name one office to which she would not, could not, give the greatest measure of capability, the highest degree of courage, the—"

"Rat catcher!" he shouted. And then he fled.

An eastern city meat expert has figured out, that what makes the cost of meat so high is that the people eat too much veal. That instead of eating up a calf that only weighs 90 pounds they should let it grow until it will dress 750 pounds. Now all that high cost of living expert has got to do is to hunt up a farmer that will care for that calf for nothing and raise his weight from 90 to 750 pounds and he has got the high cost of meat problem solved.

Why Thunder Sours Milk.

It is universally known that milk turns sour after a thunder storm. This has been attributed to the large quantity of ozone which is liberated by the electricity in the air. The experiments of Professor Trillat in Paris do not confirm that theory. He has established that atmospheric depressions cause putrefying gases—normal quiescent—to rise to the surface of certain substances, and in support of his theory points out that odors of all sorts are more permeating after storms. These atmospheric depressions accelerate the decomposition of gases and tend to liberate them. Hence lactic ferment is produced. Professor Trillat has made many experiments with diverse substances under varying pressures and has observed that when the barometer is lowest (during storms, etc.) the decomposition of gases is most rapid.

Kinglake on Port.

Kinglake, the historian, was polite yet frank. It is related that, upon one occasion, while dining with old Dr. Marsham, the warden of Merton, he was asked to give his opinion of some port wine which was supposed to be remarkably good. "I am no judge of port myself, Kinglake," said Dr. Marsham; "but I know you are, and I should like your opinion."

"Well," said Kinglake, "I have three ways of judging port wine. The first is by the color, the second is by the odor, and the third is by the flavor. Now, the color of your wine, Marsham"—holding it up and looking at it critically—"is good; the odor"—here he held the glass to his nose for a moment, and then added, with some hesitation—"is far from unpleasant; the flavor is"—here he tasted it, and put the wineglass down hastily. "Would you be kind enough to pass me the sherry?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Cure for Degeneration.

Attention is just now rather too much concentrated—with the most humanitarian motives, to be sure—on that kind of social perfection which consists in bringing everybody up to an average. It is time to emphasize also the importance of producing and making the most of the few really great men through whom the world mainly progresses, the pioneers and the prophets of civilization and the arts. Of degeneration we have a morbid and needless fear; the best cure for it is not medical science, but social justice. Break up the slums, take the boys out of gangs and find them clean sport and congenial work. Pull down the rookeries, let in the sun and air, keep human life from festering in rotten places and nature will do the rest. Breeds and races may die out, but there are always new ones being created, and nature is herself the greatest of regenerating forces, destroying the decadent even as she checks the superman before he becomes as the gods.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The "Workin' Stiff."

"He is one of the army of unskilled laborers easily mobilized on any of a variety of industrial frontiers," write Charles Phelps Cushing and Arthur Killick in the issue of Harper's Weekly—"an army estimated now at half a million, content to do the hardest sorts of toil at wages so low that not more than one man in a thousand saves anything." When he gets into trouble the "stiff's" hands are his best credentials. "Look at his hands, sergeant," the magistrate says. "The police court bailiff feels their palms and makes one of two permissible answers, 'Soft as a baby's, yer Honor!' or 'Hard as nails, sir.'"

In the early days of its history the earth is believed to have grown rapidly by the addition of meteoric matter. It is still growing in the same manner, though scarcely to an appreciable extent, for the mass of meteoric matter added yearly is reckoned to the only 20,000 tons.

Get ready to swat the first fly! If you can't get at his solar plexus, hit him between the eyes.

An eastern city meat expert has figured out, that what makes the cost of meat so high is that the people eat too much veal. That instead of eating up a calf that only weighs 90 pounds they should let it grow until it will dress 750 pounds. Now all that high cost of living expert has got to do is to hunt up a farmer that will care for that calf for nothing and raise his weight from 90 to 750 pounds and he has got the high cost of meat problem solved.

Why Thunder Sours Milk.

It is universally known that milk turns sour after a thunder storm. This has been attributed to the large quantity of ozone which is liberated by the electricity in the air. The experiments of Professor Trillat in Paris do not confirm that theory. He has established that atmospheric depressions cause putrefying gases—normal quiescent—to rise to the surface of certain substances, and in support of his theory points out that odors of all sorts are more permeating after storms. These atmospheric depressions accelerate the decomposition of gases and tend to liberate them. Hence lactic ferment is produced. Professor Trillat has made many experiments with diverse substances under varying pressures and has observed that when the barometer is lowest (during storms, etc.) the decomposition of gases is most rapid.

Kinglake on Port.

Kinglake, the historian, was polite yet frank. It is related that, upon one occasion, while dining with old Dr. Marsham, the warden of Merton, he was asked to give his opinion of some port wine which was supposed to be remarkably good. "I am no judge of port myself, Kinglake," said Dr. Marsham; "but I know you are, and I should like your opinion."

"Well," said Kinglake, "I have three ways of judging port wine. The first is by the color, the second is by the odor, and the third is by the flavor. Now, the color of your wine, Marsham"—holding it up and looking at it critically—"is good; the odor"—here he held the glass to his nose for a moment, and then added, with some hesitation—"is far from unpleasant; the flavor is"—here he tasted it, and put the wineglass down hastily. "Would you be kind enough to pass me the sherry?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Cure for Degeneration.

Attention is just now rather too much concentrated—with the most humanitarian motives, to be sure—on that kind of social perfection which consists in bringing everybody up to an average. It is time to emphasize also the importance of producing and making the most of the few really great men through whom the world mainly progresses, the pioneers and the prophets of civilization and the arts. Of degeneration we have a morbid and needless fear; the best cure for it is not medical science, but social justice. Break up the slums, take the boys out of gangs and find them clean sport and congenial work. Pull down the rookeries, let in the sun and air, keep human life from festering in rotten places and nature will do the rest. Breeds and races may die out, but there are always new ones being created, and nature is herself the greatest of regenerating forces, destroying the decadent even as she checks the superman before he becomes as the gods.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The "Workin' Stiff."

"He is one of the army of unskilled laborers easily mobilized on any of a variety of industrial frontiers," write Charles Phelps Cushing and Arthur Killick in the issue of Harper's Weekly—"an army estimated now at half a million, content to do the hardest sorts of toil at wages so low that not more than one man in a thousand saves anything." When he gets into trouble the "stiff's" hands are his best credentials. "Look at his hands, sergeant," the magistrate says. "The police court bailiff feels their palms and makes one of two permissible answers, 'Soft as a baby's, yer Honor!' or 'Hard as nails, sir.'"

In the early days of its history the earth is believed to have grown rapidly by the addition of meteoric matter. It is still growing in the same manner, though scarcely to an appreciable extent, for the mass of meteoric matter added yearly is reckoned to be only 20,000 tons.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS TO MEET ON GETTYSBURG BATTLEFIELD

Huge Reunion of Blue and Gray to Be Held July 1 On Fiftieth Anniversary of Conflict—40,000 Are Expected to Be Entertained by the State of Pennsylvania.

Harrisburg, Pa.—On July 1 the veterans of the Civil War, both Blue and Gray, will meet again on the battlefield at Gettysburg, Pa., after fifty years, but this time it will be in amity and affection.

The state of Pensylvania on May 13, 1909, created a commission to consider and arrange for a proper and fitting recognition and observance, at Gettysburg, of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg; to invite the co-operation of the congress of the United States, and of other states and commonwealth," defined the commission's duties and prerogatives and made an appropriation for preliminary expenses.

Text of Invitation to Veterans.

The invitation is as follows: "Pennsylvania, by its commission formally invites the congress of the United States and her Sister States and Commonwealths to accept this invitation from the commonwealth upon whose soil the battle of Gettysburg was fought, to share in this important anniversary and to help make it an event worthy of its historical significance, and an occasion creditable and impressive to our great and re-united nation," and likewise invites the co-operation and participation of the Grand Army of the Republic and of the United Confederate Veterans.

State Will Act as Host.

Pennsylvania—she providing all entertainment at Gettysburg during July 1, 2, 3 and 4, 1913, for forty thousand (40,000) "honorably discharged veterans of the Civil war," and she and the national government together, as provided by the act of congress of August 26, 1912, by each paying $150,000.00 for the war department with the $300,000.00 total, to create and maintain a great camp around the battlefield, complete in all its provisions of camp and garrison equipment, with all quartermaster, commissary, hospital and other necessary supplies ample for such forty thousand veterans.

Free Transportation To and From Gettysburg.

With each commonwealth, state and territory rests absolutely the determination, as each deems best, to what veterans of the Civil war it will issue free transportation, Pennsylvania's invitation being that to such "honorably discharged veterans of the Civil war" as come to Gettysburg for the above celebration, either upon free transportation or at their own expense, and present proper credentials proving them to be such veterans, she will provide food, shelter and entertainment during that period, but she furnishes free transportation to no one, save only to her own veterans or veterans now resident within her borders, and to them only under legislative direction, which is now pending in her general assembly, the national government furnishing no free transportation at all.

The Trunk Line Passenger association in whose territory Gettysburg is, has granted a one and three-fifths round trip excursion rate, good going June 25 and returning to original starting point by July 15, a twenty-day ticket, good only on same route going and coming and costing two cents per mile, but each state must make its own arrangements with the similar associations covering the territory from that state to Pennsylvania. The railroads at Gettysburg refuse, because of lack of room, to park or accommodate there any cars on side tracks.

To Hold Reunion in Great Tent.

A great tent, seating between ten thousand (10,000) and fifteen thousand (15,000) veterans, will be erected immediately adjoining the camp, and therein will occur the above exercises, excepting the military parade and fireworks, and therein, save for the hours set apart for the above exercises, the veterans may hold all reunions they may desire, the tent being arranged to be subdivided into numerous separate inclosures. All veterans of the Civil war, north and south, are urged to wear their army, corps, division, brigade and society badges, as a means of identification to their comrades in like commands, in the expectation that it will assist in imparting information as to when and where their different organizations meet, and in bringing together comrades who would otherwise, by reason of lapse of time, fail to recognize each other.

Program for Four Days.

The program for the four days' exercises and entertainment is not yet perfected in detail, but the tentative suggestions are:

July 1—Veterans' Day: Appropriate exercises under the joint direction of the Pennsylvania commission, and the commanders-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans.

July 2—Military Day: Under the direction of the chief of staff of the United States army. Special detachments of each arm of the regular service to participate as directed.

July 3—Civic Day: Under the direction of the governor of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, presiding, and participated in by the governors of the several states. Orations, sermon and music.

July 4—National Day: The chief justice of the United States presiding. Forenoon, oration by the president of the United States. High noon, he to lay the cornerstone of a great peace memorial. Evening, fireworks.

40,000 Veterans Expected.

It is expected that 40,000 veterans of the war, not all of them, however, survivors of the Gettysburg battle, will be found encamped upon the field when reveille sounds on the morning of July 1. It will be a different reveille than that which the fife and drum corps of the two great armies sounded fifty years ago. The call to awakening will be a call to a peaceful celebration while the call to the awakening in July, 1863, was a call of armies to conflict and, to thousands of men, a call to death.

For years the veterans have been looking forward to this reunion. It is probable that there will be present many thousands of survivors of the battle.

Many of the states of the Union, north as well as south, have made appropriations to send their veterans to the Gettysburg reunion and to pay all other expenses. The battle of Gettysburg is recognized as the turning point of the war between the states. It has been called time and again one of the decisive battles of the world. Generally it is recognized that Gettysburg decided the great conflict, helped in the decision probably by the fall of Vicksburg on the Mississippi, which took place virtually at the moment that the conflict on the Pennsylvania field was decided in favor of the northern armies.

Large Sum for Entertainment.

The Battle of Gettysburg commission of the state of Pennsylvania has a large sum of money at its disposal for the entertainment of the visiting veterans, and the thousands of persons who will accompany them. Hospitality is to mark the days. Fifty years ago Pennsylvania aided in the work of repelling the visitors from the south. In early July next the same state will have its arms wide open in welcome to the men wearing the gray. Entertainments of various kinds will be offered the visiting veterans, but it is pretty well understood that their deep interest in revisiting the scenes where they fought, Little Round Top, Oak Ridge, Cemetery Hill, Culp's Hill, Rock Creek, the Stone Wall and other places will hold them largely to the pleasures and to the sadnesses of personal reminiscences. Arm in arm with the Union soldiers the Confederate soldiers will retramp the battleground. They will look over the field of Pickett's desperate charge. They will retrace the marching steps of Longstreet's corps. They will go to the place where Meade had his headquarters and to the place from which Lee directed his southern forces in battle.

It is said that this contemplated reunion has induced more interest among the old soldiers of the north and the south than any event which has happened since the day that the war closed. There is today at Gettysburg a great national park, in which is included a cemetery where thousands of soldier dead are buried. The United States government and the legislature of Pennsylvania worked together to make a park of the battlefield and to mark accurately every point in it which has historic interest.

It is expected that much good will come from the reunion of the Blue and the Gray on the battlefield of Gettysburg. Time has healed many wounds. The old soldiers have forgotten their animosities more readily than have the civilians. It is thought that this great coming together in peace of two once conflicting hosts will mark the passing of the last trace of the bitterness of the war between the states of this great Union.

SAID ABOUT WOMEN.

A woman is happy and attains all that she desires when she captivates a man; hence the great object of her life is to master the art of captivating men.—Count Lyon N. Tolstoi.

To tell a mother or her daughter the plain truth, namely, that all her efforts are directed to the one end of catching a husband. Heavens! what an insult that would be.—Count Lyof N. Tolstoi.

Woman is the highest, holiest, most precious gift to man. Her mission and throne is the family.—John Todd.

Did you ever hear of a man's growing lean by the reading of "Romeo and Juliet," or blowing his brains out because Desdemona was maligned?—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Great women belong to history and to self-sacrifice.—Leigh Hunt.

Who does not know the best of woman's fancy?—Edmund Spencer.

The heart of a coquette is like a rose, of which the lovers pluck the leaves, leaving only the thorns for the husband.—Anonymous.

And women are notoriously careless at this point. Notoriously thoughtful of everybody but themselves.

But the great majority of women, it seems to me, have no routine. Their lives are a succession of variations which keep the nerves in a constant flutter.

Other vital things mean so much more to women.

They should mean more, but not so much more.

Irregularity at one's meals, coupled with an overindulgence of esthetic or emotional high living, means sure wreck of the nervous system.

The woman who eats regularly and sleeps regularly is almost guaranteed 75 per cent of her expectation of happiness [illegible]

WOMAN COULD NOT WALK

She Was So Ill—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pentwater, Mich.—"A year ago I was very weak and the doctor said I had a serious displacement. I had backache and bearing down pains so bad that I could not sit in a chair or walk across the floor and I was in severe pain all the time. I felt discouraged as I had taken everything I could think of and was no better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am strong and healthy."—Mrs. ALICE DARLING, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 77, Pentwater, Mich.

Read What Another Woman says:

Peoria, Ill.—"I had such backaches that I could hardly stand on my feet. I would feel like crying out lots of times, and had such a heavy feeling in my right side. I had such terrible dull headaches every day and they would make me feel so drowsy and sleepy all the time, yet I could not sleep at night.

"After I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a week I began to improve. My backache was less and that heavy feeling in my side went away. I continued to take the Compound and am cured.

Such letters prove the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for woman's ills. Why don't you try it?

The Main Question.

"J. Pierpont Morgan," said a clergyman, "hated the dissension that sometimes springs up between high church and low. Apropos of all such religious dissension, he used to tell a story about a wise old colored man, Calhoun Clay.

"'Cal,' a gentleman once inquired, 'what denomination do you belong to? I thing I see you sometimes making for the chapel, but don't you think you'd do better to come to us?'

"'Bress yo' heart, sonny,' chuckled old Calhoun Clay, 'hit's dis-away. Dar's free roads leadin' from here to Nola Chucky. Dar's a straight road, to de right, and dar's a level road to de left. But when Ah goes to Nola Chucky wif a load o' grain, do you think they asks me, "Uncle Cal, what road you come by?" No, suh! What they asks is, "Uncle, is yoh wheat good?"'"

Profiting by Superstition.

After having sat on many juries the observant man is of the opinion that the whole human race is still strongly tarred with the brush of superstition.

"I am confirmed in that belief by the amount of damages invariably voted to plaintiffs, whose injuries smack of superstitious origin," he said. "If a load of bricks should fall from a fifth story window on to the head of a man who happened to be walking under a ladder he would get twice as much damages as if the ladder were not there. The element of bad luck that attaches to a ladder would insensibly influence every juror, and the sum awarded would reflect their prejudices and sympathies."

Mr. Winkle's House to Go.

Two buildings in Birmingham associated with Dickens have been demolished, and a third, Mr. Winkle's house, is being pulled down.

When Mr. Pickwick asked the waiter at the Old Royal where Mr. Winkle lived he replied: "Close by, sir; not above 500 yards, sir. Mr. Winkle is a wharfinger, sir, at the canal, sir." And Mr. Pickwick found in "a quiet, substantial looking street stood an old red brick house with three steps before it, bearing, in fat Roman capitals, the words, 'Mr. Winkle.'"—Pall Mall Gazette.

Fresh Layers.

Customer—I see you have fresh eggs at 35 cents and extra fresh eggs at 40 cents. Is there much difference?

Grocer—Well, ma'am, the extra fresh ones were laid in the early morning when the hens themselves were fresh.

"LIKE MAGIC"

New Food Makes Wonderful Changes.

When a man has suffered from dyspepsia so many years that he can't remember when he had a natural appetite, and then hits on a way out of trouble he may be excused for saying "it acts like magic."

When it is a simple, wholesome food instead of any one of a large number of so called remedies in the form of drugs, he is more than ever likely to feel as though a sort of miracle has been performed.

A Chicago man, in the delight of restored digestion, puts it in this way: "Like magic, fittingly describes the manner in which Grape-Nuts relieved me of poor digestion, coated tongue and loss of appetite, of many years standing.

"I tried about every medicine that was recommended to me, without relief. Then I tried Grape-Nuts on the suggesion of a friend. By the time I had finished the fourth package, my stomach was all right, and for the past two months I have been eating with a relish anything set before me. That is something I had been unable to do previously for years.

"I am stronger than ever and I consider the effects of Grape-Nuts on a weak stomach as something really wonderful. It builds up the entire body as well as the brain and nerves." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

LONG BEACH DEATH LIST REACHES 36

MAY TOTAL MILLION DOLLARS

Grand Jury to Commence Probe—Police Guarding the Ruins—Injured List Indefinite—Thirty-six Lost Their Lives.

Long Beach, Cal., May 27.—Prospective damage suits, aggregating probably $1,000,000 or more and a grand jury investigation engage the attention of the city officials as the most imminent outcome of the disaster Saturday, when 36 persons lost their lives in the collapse of a portion of the municipal pier just after the close of the British "empire day" pageant.

Death List Grows.

The list of dead, which numbered 33 Saturday night, was added to by the death of Mrs. E. C. Bush, 70 years old, of Long Beach, who succumbed to her injuries. Miss Ethel Wyvel, 16, died at her home near Los Angeles. Her mother was among those instantly killed.

The list is expected to be still further increased by the death of Miss Marguerite Reed, aged 14, of Long Beach, whose back was broken, and of William Cooper of Pasadena, one of the two veterans of the Crimean war who were in the van of the empire day parade.

Rectification of errors made in the earlier list of dead brought out the following names:

Miss Frances Harriet Newell, Kenosha, Wis.
Mrs. Mollie Gates, Oak Park, Ill.
Miss Lilly M. Holme, Denver, Colo.
Ernest G. Eales, Los Angeles.
Mrs. Eales, his wife.
Mrs. M. P. McDonald, Compton, Cal.

Eales was the only man killed and his body remained unidentified until late Sunday, as well as that of his wife. Both were dead when taken from the death pier. Mrs. McDonald, an aged woman, died late Sunday.

A Grand Jury Probe.

While City Attorney Stephen Long was occupied with the legal phase of the disaster's aftermath, Mayor I. S. Hatch, members of the city council and of the board of public works conferred with District Attorney John D. Fredericks with reference to the grand jury inquiry which is to be started either on or just before the coroner's inquest. The object of the inquiry is to fix responsibility for the ney two officers were placed on guard over the ruined section of the pier. They were instructed to watch constantly in 12-hour shifts until relieved by the grand jury and allow no tampering with any part of the condition of the pier, a section of which in front of the municipal auditorium went down under a weight of human beings which has been estimated at less than 750 tons.

Police Guard Ruins.

On the order of the district attor structure that collapsed and dropped several hundred of the merrymakers down to a funnel of jagged timbers and boards to the strand within a few feet of the ocean tides. Several broken timbers, which are expected to show the general condition of the pier and thus aid in developing evidence of negligence, if there be any, were taken out of the pier today and locked up under official seal.

The weakness of the pier, which was built eight years ago and never repaired in that particular portion, is believed to have been due to decay caused by the action of salt air on wood and its iron fasteners and supports. However, it was declared that a much stronger structure might have been wrecked under similar circumstances, as the participants in the big parade marched upon the pier keeping step. Military men pointed out that the rhythmic vibration created by the measured tread of thousands of feet caused a tremendous strain upon the supports, which already had been heavily burdened by the crowd thronged about the auditorium doors awaiting admission.

The total number of injured probably will never be known accurately. About 65, however, were seriously hurt, most of them still being in hospitals here and in Los Angeles.

TENDERFEET WIN WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

HILL AND SONS, THE OAT CHAMPIONS, ARE COCKNEYS BORN AND BRED.

City-bred in the world's greatest metropolis and untrained as to things agricultural, were J. C. Hill and his three boys when they settled on homesteads at Lloydminster, in the Province of Saskatchewan (western Canada), eight years ago. Today they are the recognized champion oat growers of the North American continent, having won twice in succession the silver challenge cup, valued at $1,500, at the Fifth National Corn exposition, Columbia, S. C. The Plate, officially known as the Colorado Oat trophy, is emblematic of the grand championship prize for the best bushel of oats exhibited by individual farmers or experiment farms at these expositions.

The Hill entry won this year in the face of the keenest competition, hundreds of exhibits being sent by experienced farmers from all parts of the United States and Canada. The oats were grown on land which was wild prairie less than four years ago.

When Mr. Hill and his three sons, who probably never saw a wider acreage than the hills of Hampstead Heath, or the parks of London, came to Saskatchewan eight years ago, they had little more capital than was required for homestead entry fees. They filed on four homesteads, in the Lloydminster district, which straddles the boundary of Alberta and Saskatchewan. They went to work with a will, ripping the rich brown sod with breaking plows and put in a crop, which yielded fair returns.

They labored early and late and denied themselves paltry pleasures, glad to stand the gaff for a while in rising to their possibilities. They talked with successful farmers and studied crops and conditions and profited by both. The new life on the farm was strange but they never lost heart, handicapped as they were by lack of experience and capital.

The farm house, modern in every respect, compares favorably with any residence in the city. The Hills have substantial bank accounts and their credit is gilt-edge from Edmonton to Winnipeg and beyond.

"There is nothing secret about our methods nor is our plan copyrighted. We first made a thorough study of climatic conditions, soil and seed," said Mr. Hill. "We tended our crops carefully and gradually added live stock, realizing from the beginning that mixed farming would pay larger and more certain returns than straight grain growing. We have demonstrated that fact to our satisfaction and the result is that many of the farmers in the district are following our example."

The land that the Hills work is of the same class as may be found anywhere in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta.—Advertisement.

Tramp Defrauded Lawyers.

Four Ammanford (Carmarthenshire) solicitors were alleged to have been duped by George Sullivan, otherwise Murphy Finnegan, a laborer on tramp, who was recently committed by the magistrates for trial on charges of obtaining money by false pretenses. Representing that he had been knocked down by a motor car, he asked, it was stated, each of the solicitors to act for him in a compensation claim, and they all gave him money when he told them he was penniless.—London Mail.

Wives Like Unto Job!

At a dinner party in New York not long ago the talk turned on the virtue of patience as personified in the patience of Job.

At this a French woman at the table exclaimed with comic pathos:

"Talk about the patience of the late Monsieur Job! Any woman is entitled to a like immortal reputation who has ever had a husband at home with a cold in his head!"

Enthusiastic is women's praise of a passable damsel; yea, they lift up their voice continually, saying, Lo, she hath fine eyes. But when she who dazzleth men's sight approacheth, behold thier tongues are hushed, they whisper one to another in their confusion, confessing her comeliness.

Last Civil War Veteran.

I was informed by the United States pension office that the last soldier of the Civil war will die in 1955. That is the estimate made by those who make a study of vital statistics. If the last veteran survives until that date he will have lived 90 years after the surrender of Lee.

Kronk, who died a couple of years ago in New York state, was the last soldier of the war of 1812, and he lived considerably more than 90 years after peace had been signed. Bakeman, the last soldier of the Revolution, lived for 86 years after the peace of 1783.

Here is hoping that some man who wore the blue or gray may fool the pension office and round out a full century after Appomattox!—Philadelphia Ledger.

Breathing Through the Ears.

"The way to avoid tuberculosis and lung disease is by breathing through the ears," says Dr. John E. Davis, of Virginia university. "Man breathed through his ears before he learned to use his nose. In early days when man was a fish he had gills and inhaled and exhaled through them. Part of these breathing organs still remain, and if cultivated can be put to good use."

He says that if a child is taught to breathe through his ears after proper practice he will be able to open or shut his ears just as a fish works his gills.

We wonder what our scientists and medical men will have to say to this.

Tack Hammer for Surgeon.

It consists of tapping certain portions of the spine for patients suffering with heart, lung, stomach and liver trouble.

The "tack-hammer treatment" was discovered by Dr. Albert Abrams, a nerve specialist of San Francisco.—Philadelphia Dispatch to the New York American.

JONES' RARA AVIS

BY AUGUSTUS GOODRICH SHERWIN.

"Why, Colonel Travers sends five hundreds miles for a plate of strawberries costing a dollar a piece, if he takes the notion," was the way Gregory Jones usually descanted upon the immense wealth of the proprietor of Hilisdale hall. "They say, too, that he has banknotes bound up into books in his library."

Gregory was given to a good deal of exaggeration, but there was a certain basis to his profuse statements. The Travers people lived in grand style. They were pleasant, liberal, and spent a good deal of money with the village storekeepers. There was, therefore, considerable regret when it was known that the hall had been sold for a seminary.

In Hillsdale hall Gregory was very much interested. He was given many an odd task well paid for by the colonel. The matron of that lordly establishment was Mrs. Susan Morton. She was a buxom widow, cheery but all business. Gregory had felt a growing fondness for her for years, and the widow really liked him. However, he had nothing but what he earned, and at times work was slack.

On the day that the hall people moved, Gregory brushed up his best suit and started for the hall with a determined, though anxious face. He expected to find Susan there, and he did—seated on the top step of the porch. The house had been divested of all its furniture and moving vans were visible down the road. Susan had the keys of the house in her hand and looked lonely.

"You've been crying, Susan," observed Gregory, sitting down beside her.

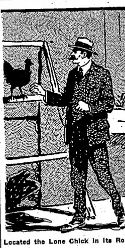
"Yes, I'll admit it," confessed Susan, making room for him. "It grieves me to leave such a kind, liberal family."

"What are you going to do now?" softly insinuated Gregory, edging nearer to her.

"Why, my sister, the milliner, wants me to rest up with her till I find a new place."

"Susan," said Gregory, with longing eyes, "you know my feelings towards you?"

"I do, Gregory," acknowledged Susan, frankly, "and feel honored by them. It is useless to talk about that, though, just now. All I have is the little plat of farm land my mother left me. You will have to wait till you get some steady position."



Located the Lone Chick in Its Roost.

"And then, Susan?" pressed Gregory, anxiously.

"Why, the day you can make a start to stock up the farm I will be glad and willing to go into life partnership with you."

"It's a good, sensible woman you are," declared Gregory, warmly. "I'm going to deserve you, and then I'm going to have you."

"I hope so," returned Susan, with an encouraging smile. "I'm waiting for the agent of the seminary people to give him the keys. Oh, Gregory, would you do a favor for me?"

"You don't need to ask that."

"The colonel sold off all his barn stuff, the chickens among them. There's a poor witless hen the purchasers wouldn't take. They said it was crazy and would annoy the other layers. They've left the homeless thing behind. Won't you take care of it?"

"I will," promised Gregory, "and think of what a kind-hearted woman you are every time I look at it."

Gregory located the lone chick on its roost, found a bag, said good-by to Susan and took his prize home. The keeper of the village general store was just getting ready to put up the shutters for the night when Gregory rushed into the place in high excitement. He carried a covered box in one hand.

"Hello!" hailed the storekeeper, "going to move?"

"Pretty nigh that, Silas," replied Gregory. "See here, I want a little accommodation of you."

"What is it, Gregory?"

"I want to borrow twenty-five dollars. Eh! Don't want to loan it?" queried Gregory, as his friend shook his head dubiously.

"It isn't the money, Gregory. You can have fifty or even a hundred, and welcome to it. I was only thinking that I hope you aren't going to make some foolish investment again, like that oil well you discovered where a kerosene can had tipped over, or the flying machine inventor who nearly killed both of you."

"I'm all right this time," announced Gregory with a chuckle of surety.

The storekeeper proceeded to his old iron box of a safe. Gregory became immersed in reading the glaring poster on the wall of a circus exhibiting fifty miles away. It showed for four days, and this was the last one.

"Just in time," he said to himself. [illegible] from town for a spell. Got to catch the midnight train. So long."

Cheerily Gregory put the money away. Gaily he waved the covered box. It contained the lone hen Susan had asked him to care for.

There was great gossip as to the mysterious departure of Gregory. At the end of two weeks, however, the storekeeper received a draft for his money. That same day Susan was handed a registered parcel by the postman. Inclosed was a neat gold breastpin. On the card were these words: "June is the month of brides, roses, song-birds, sunshine."

A month later, from another city, came a five-pound box of chocolates. Its cover bore the legend, "I make it January—mistletoe, merry sleigh bells."

"I declare," said Susan to her sister, "I can't understand all this extravagance and mystery. I'd rather have Gregory back with nothing than have him away, maybe in all sorts of bother and hard work. Poor fellow! I drove him away, and—" Susan dissolved in tears.

A week later there came a letter. "Dear Sweetheart Susan," it read, "I've ordered that farm outfit and I'm coming home. Get ready to begin that life partnership this fall—beautiful sunsets, harvests and all!"

Susan gave a scream of delight as she opened the door one morning and found Gregory on the doorstep. He was dressed in a neatly-fitting suit; he wore a well-trimmed mustache. Confidence and opulence were suggested by his bearing. Love, too—his loyal eyes told that as he boldly kissed Susan.

"Gregory," was her first word as they were seated on the sofa, "what does it all mean? Did some one leave you a fortune?"

"Better than that," replied Gregory buoyantly—"a chance to earn every dollar I've got. It was the chicken, Susan."

"What chicken?" asked Susan, forgetfully.

"The one you asked me to care for. Susan, that was a wonderful fowl. No more crazy that you or I—only queer."

"How queer, Gregory?"

"Well, it walked backwards. Think of a hen that walked backwards—the only one in the world, a—a—" and Gregory foundered and consulted a circus bill. "A rara avis, that's it. I went straight to the city where a circus was showing. A side show was interested. Not that a chicken that walked backwards was so strong an attraction of itself, but with the tattooed boy and the trick porcupine it made a big draw. Showman gave me twenty-five dollars a week. The chicken just caught the farmers. A rival showman offered me the same and a percentage on admissions. Last week another showman offered me $1,000 cash for the curiosity, so I'm here with the money to stock up that farm. What do you say, Susan?"

"That you are a husband worth waiting for," replied Susan tenderly.

Amusements in Utopia.

After supper they bestow one hour in play; in summer in their gardens; in winter in their common halls, where they dine and sup. There they exercise themselves in music or else in honest and wholesome communication. Dice play and such other foolish and pernicious games they know not. But they use games not much unlike the chess. The one is the battle of numbers, wherein one number stealeth away another. The other is wherein vices fight with virtues as it were in battle array, or a set field. In the which game is very properly shared both the strife and the discord that vices have among themselves, and again their unity and concord against virtue; and also what vices be repugnant to what virtues; with what power and strength they assail them openly; by what wiles and subtlety they assault them secretly; with what help the virtues resist and overcome the puissance of the vices; by what craft they frustrate their purposes, and, finally, by what sleight or means the one getteth the victory. — Sir Thomas More.

Handel in England.

"Handel is not a mere composer in England; he is an institution. What is more, he is a sacred institution. When his 'Messiah' is performed the audience stands up, as if in church, while the 'Hallelujah Chorus' is being sung. It is the nearest sensation to the Elevation of the Host known to English Protestants. Every three years there is a Handel festival, at which his oratorios are performed by 4,000 executants, collected from all the choirs in England. The effect is horrible; and everybody declares it sublime. Many of the songs in these oratorios were taken by Handel from his operas and set to pious words; for example, 'Rend sereno il ciglio madre; non piange pip' has become 'Lord, Remember David; teach him to know thy ways.' If any one in England were to take the song from the oratorio and set it back again to secular words he would probably be prosecuted for blasphemy."—George Bernard Shaw in Ainslee's.

Main Question.

"J. Pierpont Morgan," said a clergyman, "hated the dissension that sometimes springs up between high church and low. Apropos of all such religious dissension, he used to tell a story about a wise old colored man, Calhoun Clay.

"'Cal,' a gentleman once inquired, 'what denomination do you belong to? I think I see you sometimes making for the chapel, but don't you think you'd do better to come to us?'

MINNESOTA PLANS HIGHWAY

Will Cut Auto Distance to Glacier Park—Election of Officers and Organization Effected.

Graceville. — What is the first real step in the construction of the east and west highway to be built from the Twin Cities to Browns Valley, a distance of 205 miles, was taken at the convention of commissioners and commercial club details from the counties of Traverse, Big Stone, Stevens, Swift, Kandiyohi, Meeker, Wright, Hennepin and Ramsey. The meeting was held in Graceville and the permanent organization of the East and West State Highway associations effected.

Representatives from 34 towns along the rest of the great trunk line highway were present. This road, which is to be of macadam, is to be constructed under what is known as the Dunn act, the new state road provision of the last legislature. This act provides that the state and counties will share the expense of construction, thus taking the burden from the individual property owners. These counties now have available a total of about $40,000 which can be used in the construction of links of this highway.

This East and West highway as far as Morris Minn., ultimately will be the short auto highway to Glacier National park, cutting off, it is estimated, about 100 miles from the present route, which follows the Great Northern railway directly north through St. Cloud, Alexandria and Fergus Falls. The East and West Highway parallels the Willmar division of the Great Northern to Morris and then the Brown's Valley branch through Graceville to the state line.

D. N. Taltman of Willmar was elected the first vice president of the Minnesota East and West Highway association at the afternoon session. M. J. O'Brien of Graceville was chosen first vice president; J. W. Wright of Litchfield, second vice president; Frank Thornton, secretary, and W. H. Boland of Waverly, treasurer. The directors are Louis W. Hill of Ramsey county, Asa Paine of Hennepin, Mark M. Wooley of Wright, J. W. Johnson of Meeker, E. C. Welten of Kandiyohi, D. F. McDermott of Swift, Paul Spooner of Stevens, George V. Hickey of Big Stone, H. W. Barrett of Traverse.

RECORDS FOR COW AND HEN

Holstein Gives Weight in Food in Thirteen Days—Hen Lays 220 Eggs in Season.

Minneapolis.—With a Holstein cow that gives her weight in milk and butter fat in thirteen days and a prize hen that has laid eggs seven times her weight in one season, the agricultural college farm stock has established a new record for food-producing animals in the northwest. Tests made at the college farm by the dairy department the last month show that one cow produced 2,002 pounds of milk and 82.45 pounds of butter fat in three weeks. The hen during the season laid 220 eggs, weighing 28.73 pounds or nearly seven times her weight.

Tests were made by Professor Ernest W. Major of the dairy department of the milk given by Lady Oak Sobes DeKob, a prize Holstein cow which weighs approximately 1,300 pounds. The record for the three respective weeks was 623, 677 and 702 pounds of milk and 29.15, 26.05 and 27.25 pounds of butter fat. Food for the cow during the tests was given under the regular food schedule recommended by the dairy department for dairy stock.

The prize hen is of the ordinary variety kept at the college farm, a record being made to determine the actual value of a hen to the farmer under ordinary case. The 200 eggs if sold at 20 cents a dozen, the average price realized for the year by egg producers, would give the hen an earning power of $3.66 annually. According to members of the poultry department a hen can sustain a high productiveness for three years and based on the rate of the above record would earn $11 in three years.

Reform Wave Strikes Duluth.

Duluth.—Duluth has had just one month's experience with the new commission form of government, and in that time some decided changes and reforms have gone into effect, in spite of the fact that the new commissioners have spent the greater part of their time reorganizing their departments and outlining their respective duties. Perhaps the most striking change is in the enforcement of the laws. Commissioner W. A. Hicken, who has the department of public safety, has effected some startling changes. Duluth has always had the reputation of being one of the "widest open towns" in the United States. Within a month all of that has been changed until at the present time it is doubtful if a city in the state has a more rigid enforcement of the law.

Other well known bankers will be on the toastmaster's program at the banquet in the evening.

"J. C. R." May Be Baltimore Man.

Baltimore, Md., May 23.—The publication here of the picture of a mysterious "J. C. R." in the Rochester, (Minn.) state hospital who thinks he is a native of Baltimore, may lead to his identity. William J. Schaefer, an undertaker here, said he was struck by the resemblance of the picture to James Ridgeway, whom he last saw six or seven years ago. Schaeffer said Ridgeway, who had been a painter, told him of his intention of leaving Baltimore and said he might enter the army or the navy or go West.

NO MORE ROTATION OF NAMES

Supreme Court Says Old Primary Law Does Not Apply, Sustaining Judge's Election.

St. Paul.—The old statute requiring the rotation of names of candidates on the election ballot cannot be read into the primary law passed by the special session of the legislature in 1912, according to a decision handed down by the state supreme court.

The case came up from Brown county involving the election of a judge of the Ninth Judicial district, and under the terms of the decision Judge I. M. Olson is declared entitled to the office on a majority of 109 votes.

Contest of the election was made by R. Hellman, a citizen, for M. E. Mathews, who was candidate against Judge Olson. It was charged as a basis for the contest that the auditor of Brown county failed to rotate the names of Olson and Mathews on the ballot. The higher court sustained the verdict of the lower court on the ground that a rotation of names is not mandatory in the primary election law of 1912.

Fergus Falls.—John W. Carl, the Indian attorney who brought his aged mother to Battle Lake in order that she might enjoy the fishing as in the days of her childhood, paid a fine of $81.60 in district court here. Carl came down from the reservation by automobile and he and his party spent a few days at the lake, catching fish in the manner they netted them half a century ago. The people around the lake reported to the game warden and a warrant was sworn out and Carl was sentenced to pay a fine of $20 in justice court here.

"Your habits are good?"

The prominent millionaire looked keenly at the young man who had applied for the hand of his daughter.

"Yes, sir," came the firm reply. "I rarely play bridge after midnight, never gamble in Wall street, and make a point of staying home at least one night a week."

"Have you a good disposition?"

"Fine. I can live with my sister for hours at a time."

"You are in good health?"

"Excellent."

"You love my daughter?"

"Passionately."

"What are your assets?"

The young man handed him a paper on which appeared a list of his properties. The prominent millionaire looked it over carefully.

"You are prepared to corroborate this?"

"Certainly, sir."

The prominent millionaire reached forward and shook hands cordially.

"My dear boy," he said, "I am perfectly satisfied and only hope you will pardon me for being so particular. But you see, I want to be quite sure that when you have married my little girl, after her divorce, you will be able to support her in the same style in which she is now living with her present husband."—Life.

HANDS BURNING, ITCHING

905 Lowell Place, Chicago, Ill.—"The trouble began by my hands burning and itching and I rubbed and scratched them till one day I saw little red sores coming out. My hands were disfigured and swollen, and troubled me so that I could not sleep. They were cracked and when the small sores broke a white matter would come out. I could not do any hard work; if I did the sores would come out worse. For two years nobody could cure my eczema, until one day I thought I would try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used warm water with the Cuticura Soap and after that I put the Cuticura Ointment on my hands twice a day for about five or six months when I was cured." (Signed) Sam Marcus, Nov. 28, 1911.

The doors of a certain new house had shrunk horribly, as is the way of the modern door made of unseasoned wood and left to shrink in use. The builder would not send the joiner to replace them. So the householder tried the ironclad method and wrote:

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas H. Fletcher.

Preserving, a Pleasure —with Parowax

Dip tops of jars and catsup bottles in melted Parowax. Or pour this pure paraffine directly on top of contents of each jelly glass. Result—a perfect, air-tight, mould-proof seal that keeps canned vegetables, catsup, chow-chow, preserves and jellies indefinitely.

No Tins or Tops Needed

It is even simpler than it sounds. It is as cheap as it is easy. No bother with tops that will not fit. Not even paper covers need be used. The direct contact of Parowax with the jelly cannot affect its taste or goodness.

Parowax is tasteless and odorless. It is so thoroughly harmless that it can be chewed like food or gum.

Indispensable in the Laundry

Parowax cleans and whitens clothes in the wash. It imparts a beautiful finish to them in the ironing. And Parowax has a hundred other household uses. No home should be without it.

Your druggist and grocer both keep Parowax. Order it today.

When your home merchant presents you with his bill do not allow the hair on your spine to rise like porcupine quills, and look as though you had been insulted. The chances are he trusted you for the shirt on your back and the groceries to keep your family. Speak kindly to him who has accommodated you, for you know you like prompt pay in others. A man whose temper rises to ninety degrees in the shade when asked for a just account, and feels his dignity has been trampled on, is a good man—not to trust.—Ex.

The aspiration for good government is now the keynote of popular thought. Until recently the party was dominant—its policies, its triumph at the polls. But the part is no longer uppermost in the public mind, which is now occupied with schemes of a more direct control of government process. The danger, as in all such movements, is that of going to far.

In the focus of public attention stands President Wilson. This is because in two months he has accomplisheb more toward giving a bent to things than President Roosevelt, with all the campaign of advertising and adulation that went on, accomplised it seven years.

Mr. Wilson has no reverence for precedent merely because it is precedent. He begins by declining to see office-seekers. He banishes intoxicating drinks from the white house. He permite himself to be intervied and quoted directly. He directs that the proceedings of the cabinet shall be made public so far as possible. He declines to accept theater passes, and refuses to have his arrival at the playhouse turned into theatric spectacle by the playing of patriotic music. He closes the white house on Sundays. He does not let it be known where he will attend church, so that religious services cannot be turned into a show thereby. He shaves himself. He directs his military aide to wear civilian attire, except on state occasions. And he does all these and other things without flourish or bombast.

There is something more in these things than mere political maneuvering. They are the fruit of personal conviction and a wholesome taste for simplicity. There is nothing of the demagogue about Mr. Wilson. We like his plain sincerity, his putting of the interests of the whole people above the interests of the party. No wonder the progressives are regarding him with interest. As Senator La Follette says in his paper, "It is no time for trying to put the Wilson administration in a hole."

This much for the man and his attitude. It will be of greater interest to observe whether Mr. Wilson's economic policies prove as sound as his persodal character.—Minneapolis Journal.

Good Looking Men

The men of Chicago have suddenly acquired an attractive complexion. The reason for this is, that they are now shaving their faces with the new process, called "the Velvet-Edge Safety Razor Blade Sharpener," which gives that velvety smooth skin to the constant shaver.

You men who use Safety razors and want a velvety skin, shaved with the delicate softness so much desired, with a keen cutting edge, send your dull safety razor blades at once to Chicago and have them sharpened by the newest electrical process, which makes the dull blade cut better than the new, and your old blades are returned to you a perfect new blade.

Don't throw away your old safety razor blades, but send them to-day well wrapped, and do not delay it until tomorrow.

Price 30c per dozen for all safety razor blades, which include Gillettes, Ever-Ready Gem, Auto-Strop, Enders, Keen-Kutter, and all other makes. Your blades will be returned to you in a few days, charges prepaid. Send coin or money order. No orders accepted under 30c.

Wrap blades securely in a card board box. Do not send them in an ordinary envelope, the blades may cut through and be lost. Include your name and P. O. address on the package.

Circus

Lovers of the out of ordinary amusements will be interested in the announcement that the Mighty Haag shows are coming Thursday afternoon and evening, June 19, in Thief River Falls, presenting decidely the largest and greatest program of original, unique and thrilling feature act known today to the show world. This vast tent amusement enterprise is alone in a class by itself, without a rival.

Nothing like the imperial performance provided by Ernest Haag was ever before dreamed or dared by the boldest managers.

Whatever your preference, you will find plenty to interest, astonish and edify you; there are thrilling aerial acts during every moment of which of which one expects to see the intrepid performers hurled into eternity, artistic and sensational equestrianism incredible and bewildering athletic and acrobatic numbers, blood chilling jockey, hurdle and chariot races, amazingly venturesome bicyclists, and phenomenal exhibitions by fierce wild beasts. In fact, so numerous and varied are the novelties offered in the rings and upon the elevated stages and upon the mammoth hippodrome track by these shows, lack of space will not permit each of these to be mentioned. The quantity and quality of the features and such as to really stagger comprehension.

It matters not what shows you have seen or how big the Mighty Haag shows have been in years gone by, this season they completely overwhelm all past efforts.

Most Children Have Worms

Many mothers think their children are suffering from indigestion, headache, nervousness, weakness, costiveness, when they are victims of that most common of all children's ailments—worms. Peevish, ill-tempered, fretful children, who toss and grind their teeth, with bad breath and colicky pains, have all the symptoms of having worms, and should be given Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, which expels worms, regulates the bowels, tones up the system, and makes the children well and happy. Kickapoo Worm Killer is guaranteed. All druggists or by mail. Price 25c. Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Imports Are Increasing.

According to the Government's figures the imports of this country are increasing, and the exports are falling off. This may be due merely to the fact that in the face of tariff revision merchants have been reducing their stocks of imported goods to a minimum, for fear the reduction of duties would depress the values of stocks on hand, and that they have reached the stage where they are compelled to stock up. Much as the people of the United States would like to see their country self-supporting, they are obliged to buy some things away from home. However, it is true that more things could be produced at home were there a will to meet demands in certain lines.

With the improvement of transportation facilities we find it easier than it was a few years ago to bring things from the farthest part of the earth. Even grapes are shipped to us from Argentina, apples from Tasmania, and peaches from South America. In like manner our apples from Oregon go to Hamburg, our oranges from California to London and St. Petersburg, our raisins and prunes fight for the markets of Europe with the products of Spain and France.—Advance.

A Sears-Roebuck catalogue appeared at our office last week. It came like Poe's raven, uninvited and unsolicited. The only thing it brought was food for thought. In 1912 the Sears-Roebuck corporation earned $7,000,000, making a surplus of $12,000,000 at the end of that year. That profit was made by underpaid girls, whose sole means of livelihood is the revenue deprived from positions paying little better than starvation wages, and when complaint is made they are advised to employ their evening hours. Over the length and breadth of this wonderful land of the free and home of the brave live men who support such an institution. Lieutenant Governor O'Hara, chairman of the senate white slave investigating committee said that "in Chicago and other Illinois cities girls work ten hours a day and work hard for a pittance of $1.50 a week." Think it over, you people who believe that next to the Bible the Sears-Roebuck catalogue [illegible] first in the list of books [illegible] —Standard [illegible]

Good Looking Men

The men of Chicago have suddenly acquired an attractive complexion. The reason for this is, that they are now shaving their faces with the new process, called "the Velvet-Edge Safety Razor Blade Sharpener," which gives that velvety smooth skin to the constant shaver.

You men who use Safety razors and want a velvety skin, shaved with the delicate softness so much desired, with a keen cutting edge, send your dull safety razor blades at once to Chicago and have them sharpened by the newest electrical process, which makes the dull blade cut better than the new, and your old blades are returned to you a perfect new blade.

Don't throw away your old safety razor blades, but send them to-day well-wrapped, and do not delay it until tomorrow.

Price 30c per dozen for all safety razor blades, which include Gillettes, Ever-Ready Gem, Auto-Strop, Enders, Keen-Kutter, and all other makes. Your blades will be returned to you in a few days, charges prepaid. Send coin or money order. No orders accepted under 30c.

Wrap blades securely in a card board box. Do not send them in an ordinary envelope, the blades may cut through and be lost. Include your name and P. O. address on the package.

ROOSEVELT CASE IS COMPROMISED

TESTIMONY PROVES SOBRIETY

Nominal Damages of Six Cents Award of Court to Roosevelt—Defense Unable to Find Witnesses Who Saw Teddy Drunk.

Marquette, Mich., June 3.—Theodore Roosevelt has won his vindication. He has proved he is not a drunkard.

More than that, he has proved as nearly as a man may do by his intimates of a lifetime that he has never even been slightly under the influence of liquor and that he is as abstemious as a man may be and still drink alcoholic liquid. His libel suit against George A. Newett of Ishpeming ended abruptly.

Charge Is Taken Back.

Newett surrendered and withdrew the charge of his paper that Roosevelt "gets drunk and that not infrequently."

In a statement read in open court, he admitted he had combed the country but had found not one single witness who could testify he had seen Colonel Roosevelt take liquor to excess. To all intents and purposes he threw himself upon Roosevelt's mercy. And then Roosevelt, unwilling to assess upon Newett the heavy damages he could have claimed, arose in court and declared he had achieved his object, disproved the tale that did him such injury in the last campaign and asked the court to direct a verdict in his favor for nominal damages only—which, in Michigan, means 6 cents.

The 6 cents were paid and the colonel will settle his own costs of close to $10,000.

Refuses to Divulge Intent.

Somebody asked the colonel later what he would do with the 6 cents. He threw back his head and laughed a hearty guffaw, but refused to reveal his intent with respect to the nickel and the penny he had accepted.

As a sort of climax to his case, Theodore Roosevelt brought into court Saturday the four men who have been closer to him than anyone that lives, aside from his wife and children, to testify that he had never taken liquor to excess.

Colonel's Closing Witnesses.

W. Emlin Roosevelt, his cousin and lifelong chum; Frank Tyree and James Sloan, the secret service men, who spent all their waking hours with him while he was president and slept at his door at night; William Loeb, Jr., the colonel's private secretary while he was governor and president, all mounted the stand and swore the colonel's use of strong drink comes close to total abstinence.

Tyree, who guarded his door during the ten hotly exciting days of the Chicago national convention last year, swore that in that time no drink but milk entered the colonel's rooms.

W. P. Shaufele of Cleveland, the railroad traffic manager who routed and traveled with the colonel's campaign train in 1912, also testified that Roosevelt tasted no more than a single glass of mildly alcoholic drink on any one occasion.

Depositions by George H. Roosevelt, cousin once removed to the plaintiff; Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews; George B. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas corporation of New York and former secretary to President Roosevelt, and Alexander Graham, newspaper correspondent, were read.

All testified to the colonel's strict sobriety.

Other depositions from Admiral George Dewey, Dr. Edgar A. Mearns and William B. Dulaney, the colonel's barber while he was president, were read at the afternoon session.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

GOOD ROADS DAY SET FOR JUNE 17

GOVERNOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION, WHICH IS INDORSED BY HIGHWAY BOARD.

EXPLAINS NEED OF HIGHWAYS

Commission Supplements the Announcement With a Suggestion That All Roads Be Dragged That Day.

St. Paul.—Governor A. O. Eberhart has issued a proclamation designating June 17 as Good Roads Day and calling upon all citizens of the state to observe the day in some way that will materially assist in the improvement of a public highway.

This is the first Good Roads Day in Minnesota. The state highway commission heartily indorses the governor's efforts for the improvement of the state road. The proclamation is as follows:

An act was passed by the state legislature April 15, 1913, providing that a certain day each year be set apart and devoted to improving the highways throughout the state and to be designated as Good Roads Day.

Therefore I, Adolph O. Eberhart, governor of the state of Minnesota, by authority duly vested in me, do hereby proclaim Tuesday, June 17, as Good Roads Day, to be observed by all citizens of the state, who are hereby called upon in the name of the state to assist in the substantial improvement of our public highways by contributions of labor or money, and I especially call upon the governing bodies of all municipalities for adequate appropriations to make substantial improvements and to make arrangements for receipt of contributions and for the execution of work on the appointed day, and to lend all assistance in their power to further the movement for better roads at that time. The state of Minnesota has 50,000,000 acres of excellent land and 3,500,000 acres of beautiful lakes, which, when made accessible by improved roads, will make of Minnesota the garden spot of the world and the playground of the nation; therefore, I call upon all citizens having the interest of the state at heart, to heed this proclamation and exert extraordinary effort to assist in improving the roads in a permanent, substantial manner.

Supplementing this proclamation, the state highway commission suggests that the councils of all villages observe the day by dragging the roads, by removing all superfluous stones, sod or other materials unsuitable for permanent roadway, by cutting weeds, clearing out the ditches and removing all obstructions.

Commercial clubs and good roads associations are urged by the highway commission to co-operate with the village councils in arranging to carry out this work. Town boards, furthermore, are urged to do similar work on the roads within their jurisdiction.

FAIR DATE IS NOT CHANGED

Representatives From Nine Associations Decide That Fair Date of Circuit Shall Stand.

Hamline.—The Minnesota state fair date for 1914 will not be changed, but will be held in the first week in September. Agitation for a change had been going on for nearly three years.

At the conference at the administration building on the fair grounds, called by the board of managers of the Minnesota state fair, it was decided that such a change cannot be made without determent to all the fairs in the circuit.

Representatives of the Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, South Dakota and Michigan fairs and of the Interstate Livestock Fair association who were present, spent most of Monday discussing the proposed change. President John J. Furlong, of the Minnesota state fair, and five of the board members, besides Secretary J. C. Simpson, were present.

The conference adjourned with the adoption of this resolution:

Whereas, we have considered many nine of the leading state fairs and expositions, appointed for this purpose; have carefully considered the matter of the best schedule of fair dates for 1914, and

Whereas, we have considered many suggested changes from our present schedule without arriving at any change that would be mutually satisfactory, therefore

Be it resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting that no change in the dates of any of the fairs here represented can be made without detriment to all of the fairs in this circuit.

RELICS OF PREHISTORIC AGE.

Holzinger Confirms Importance of Discovery of Elephant's Bones Near Wabasha.

Winona.—Professor J. M. Holzinger of the Winona normal school, gives out the following interview concerning the remains of an elephant recently found on the Budde farm near Wabasha, the article being prepared after a careful inspection of the skeleton.

"Some confusion," he says at the outset, has been caused by the fact that about a year ago an elephant's tooth was taken out of the gravel pit in the railroad right-of-way, a short distance above Wabasha station. That this tooth belonged to a traveling circus elephant of recent years is evidenced by the fact that students from Wabasha recalled that a show elephant had died about a dozen years ago at their home town and had been buried in the railroad right-of-way.

"Now, it happens that, close upon the heels of this incident, the brothers, George and Frank Budde, reported to Dr. Sanderson their finding elephant remains on a farm of Frank, five miles in the country out of Wabasha. Frank Budde's farm is in a secluded little valley tributary to Trout Creek valley, which joins the main valley of the Zumbro and Murfrees.

Revealed by Erosion.

"The valley farms nestled in the side streams to the Zumbro in this vicinity have in the last decade or two been subject to tremendous erosive action at the annual spring freshets. Frank Budde's farm, nearly level, on the most fertile soil, has within one decade been gutted by a ditch nearly twenty feet deep and a mile long, with numerous side gullies. It was from the nearly perpendicular wall of one of these side gullies that a year ago Frank Budde found projecting a piece of tusk over six feet long and fully seven inches in cross section. Fragments of this piece are now in possession of George Budde, residing at Kellogg fully substantiating the statement of the large diameter of the tusk. But the larger part of the tusk has since crumbled into small pieces.

"The Budde brothers have brought to light two well preserved elephant's teeth, nearly perfect. These have a grinding surface of 3.5 by 8 inches, their longest root measures 7.5 inches. They have also laid bare a part of what appears to be the skull. To preserve this will, however, be a difficult task, for the bone has changed to a soft, cheesy consistency. What other parts of the skeleton are preserved under the mantle of glacial stay, it is not possible to foretell. It will require the removing of several tons of material to lay it bare. This seems to be a less serious task, however, than the preserving of the bones after they are secured, unless they are in a better state of preservation than the skull.

State Should Excavate.

The conclusion reached is that while it is difficult to foretell just how much of the skeleton will be found, the spirit of science demands that some institution with sufficient funds available should undertake the task of unearthing this truly prehistoric mammoth."

J. J. Hill Aids Memorial Fund.

Moorhead. — The pedestal for the proposed statue of Iver Aasen, the Norwegian scholar, which is to be erected on the campus of Concordia Lutheran college, has been provided through the generosity of James J. Hill. The local committee found itself short of funds and Mr. Hill was appealed to, as well as the general public. Mr. Reite, secretary of the statue association, was called upon by H. A. Noble, general passenger agent of the Great Northern, and after a short conference, Mr. Noble handled to Mr. Reite a check to cover the pedestal, which is to be of light gray marble from the quarries at Morton, Minn. In addition to Northern Pacific has promised to supply transportation of the pedestal from Morton to Moorhead. The statue is to be unveiled early in the summer.

Train Hits Mourners' Carriage.

Minneapolis, May 31.—A mourners' carriage which contained four near relatives of the late Mrs. Emma Rose was struck by a Soo passenger train while the party was returning from Forest cemetery, St. Paul. Two of the occupants probably will die, while the other two and the driver escaped with injuries that are not thought to be dangerous. The injured are: Mrs. Theresa Johnston, 50 years old, fractured skull—will die; Mrs. A. E. Ross, 29 years old, internal injuries—in a grave condition; A. E. Ross, 32 years old, lacerations on head and face; Miss Beatrice Ross, 21 years old, contusions on head and face; J. Tucker, driver, 38 years old, head and back injured.

New Roads Are Planned.

Marshall.—Senator James T. Elwell of Minneapolis, addressed a good roads meeting held here under the auspices of the Marshall Commercial club. C. E. Nagel of St. Paul, from the state highway commission, spoke on the importance of good bridge construction. The county commissioners of Lyon county will ask for an appropriation of $135,000 for the building of good roads when the state highway commission meets. The commissioners are planning a complete system of highways.

SUICIDE REVEALS ROMANCE

Body Taken From Lake and Identified As Mrs. Florence E. Gebhardt.

Minneapolis, May 29.—The woman who rowed to the deepest part of Lake Como in a small boat late Tuesday and deliberately leaped out of the boat and was drowned was Mrs. Florence E. Gebhardt, well known as a writer for magazines and newspapers under the pen name of "Helen Hale" and the divorced wife of Professor George F. Gebhardt, head of the mechanical department of Armour institute, Chicago.

She was the daughter of Rev. J. A. Adams, editor of the Advance. Her body was taken from the lake and positively identified. Mrs. Gebhardt ended her life after repeated talks with Raymond Burnham, a salesman for the company and old friend of Professor Gebhardt. Burnham in a formal statement issued declared that he and Mrs. Gebhardt were engaged to be married and had only been waiting for the necessary time to follow the woman's divorce from her first husband.

Burnham, in the statement, attributed the suicide to the disordered condition of Mrs. Gebhardt's mind and said she had been extremely nervous and melancholy for some time.

Dead Man's Skull Disinterred.

Triumph.—The body of Gus Weiss, who was supposed to have met his death last October by being struck by a North-Western train, has been disinterred and the head removed by officers from Fairmount, who have taken the head back with them, after burying the remainder of the body again. The skull will be cleaned and the fracture compared with the surface of the stone, tied in a stocking, that was found in Chris Virgens' well. The task of the officers was a gruesome one.

THE LURE OF THE WEST

WESTERN CANADA ATTRACTING THOUSANDS OF SETTLERS.

Writing on the Canadian West, an eastern exchange truthfully says:

"The West still calls with imperative voice. To prairie and mountain, and for the Pacific Coast, Ontario's young men and women are attracted by tens of thousands yearly. The great migration has put an end to the fear, freely expressed not many years ago by those who knew the West from the lakes to the farther coast of Vancouver Island, that Canada would some day break in two because of the predominance of Continental European and American settlers in the West."

This is true. While the immigration from the United States is large, running close to 150,000 a year, that of the British Isles and Continental Europe nearly twice that number, making a total of 400,000 per year, there is a strong influx from Eastern Canada. It is not only into the prairie provinces that these people go, but many of them continue westward, the glory of British Columbia's great trees and great mountains, the excellent agricultural valleys, where can be grown almost all kinds of agriculture and where fruit has already achieved prominence. Then the vast expanse of the plains attract hundreds of thousands, who at once set to work to cultivate their vast holdings. There is still room, and great opportunity in the West. The work of man's hands, even in the cities with their record-breaking building rush, is the smallest part of the great panorama that is spread before the eye on a journey through the country. Nature is still supreme, and man is still the divine pigmy audaciously seeking to impose his will and stamp his mark upon an unconquered half continent.

The feature that most commends itself in Western development today is the "home-making spirit." The West will find happiness in planting trees and making gardens and building schools and colleges and universities, and producing a home environment so that there will be no disposition to regard the country as a temporary place of abode in which everyone is trying to make his pile preparatory to going back East or becoming a lotus-eater beside the Pacific.

The lure of the West is strong. It will be still stronger when the crude new towns and villages of the plains are embowered in trees and vocal with the song of birds.—Advertisement.

HAIR CUT BY A SQUIRREL

Rodent Barber Gets Busy on Thatch of Sleeping Oregon Photographer.

Ernest J. Bloom, a photographer of Hood River, Ore., who has been passing the last two weeks at the ranch of R. E. Scott, secretary of the Commercial club, returned home with a portion of his hair gone.

Mr. Bloom had been working in the garden and making a lawn on the ranch. He was taking a nap after lunch when a squirrel that had been making its home in the house this winter, evidently thinking his long black locks would make an excellent lining for a nest, trimmed off a portion of the hair while he slept.

"The rodent's teeth must have been sharp," says the photographer, "for I could scarcely feel him at work there cutting away the hair. I must have moved in my sleep and in his excitement he evidently pulled some of the hairs out instead of cutting them. This awoke me and I let out a yell that almost frightened the squirrel to death."—Portland Oregonian.

Way With Most of Us.

Mayor Gaynor, at a dinner in New York, discussed the arguments of a very young and very cocksure lawyer.

"This young chap from the country," said the mayor, "would do well to follow—instead of trying to lead—older, wiser, and more experienced men than himself. But—"

The mayor sighed whimsically.

"Heigho!" he said. "Some men never have any respect for gray hairs till after they've acquired a few of their own."

HOW THIS WOMAN FOUND HEALTH

Would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for All Rest of Medicine in the World.

Utica, Ohio.—"I suffered everything from a female weakness after baby came. I had numb spells and was dizzy, had black spots before my eyes, my back ached and I was so weak I could hardly stand up. My face was yellow, even my fingernails were colorless and I had displacement. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am stout, well and healthy. I can do all my own work and can walk to town and back and not get tired. I would not give your Vegetable Compound for all the rest of the medicines in the world. I tried doctor's medicines and they did me no good."—Mrs. MARY EARLEWINE, R.F.D. No.3, Utica, Ohio.

Another Case.

Nebo, Ill.—"I was bothered for ten years with female troubles and the doctors did not help me. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and every month I had to spend a few days in bed. I read so many letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound curing female troubles that I got a bottle of it. It did me more good than anything else I ever took and now it has cured me. I feel better than I have for years and tell everybody what the Compound has done for me. I believe I would not be living to-day but for that."—Mrs. HETTIE GREENSTREET, Nebo, Illinois.

Sometimes children are more observant than they are credited with being. Little Rob's mother, for instance, was telling a visitor how "masterful" another neighbor was in his home life when Rob, unnoticed beside her, put in his little oar. "I don't think Mr. Tate is so awful bossy, mamma," he remarked suddenly. "'Course he does a lot of talking, but he never makes Mrs. Tate do a thing she doesn't wanter, I've noticed that."

A New Metal.

Some remarkable qualities are claimed for steelite, a new metal which is composed of 75 per cent. of cobalt and the remainder of chromium. It may be cast and ground to a fine edge, is impervious to rust and the action of acids and highly flexible. As a lathe tool it will cut steel at the rate of 200 feet a minute, a speed at which steel would ordinarily burn. Certain modifications of this alloy will cut glass and even quartz crystals. Steelite is said to be particularly suitable for watch fittings.

Parliamentary Suspension.

Sir Henry Lucy drops a hint from the "Cross Benches" in the Observer as to the "suspension" of members of the house—and the vagueness of the penalty. Can it be true that members get themselves named and suspended on purpose to achieve a compulsory holiday? Eight pounds a week will make for modest comfort at Brighton or Eastbourne. The member of parliament is paid whether he is in the house or at Margate or in the Clock Tower. Budapest has a more drastic way. If the member is suspended he is fined 16 shillings a day. That teaches him to behave. Now that we pay our representatives we might make payment conditional on their representing us in the proper place.—London Chronicle.

MEMORY IMPROVED.

Since Leaving Off Coffee.

Many persons suffer from poor memory who never suspect coffee has anything to do with it.

The drug—caffeine—in coffee, acts injuriously on the nerves and heart, causing imperfect circulation, too much blood in the brain at one time, too little in another part. This often causes a dullness which makes a good memory nearly impossible.

"I am nearly seventy years old and did not know that coffee was the cause of the stomach and heart trouble I suffered from for many years, until about four years ago," writes a Kansas woman.

"A kind neighbor induced me to quit coffee and try Postum. I had been suffering severely and was greatly reduced in flesh. After using Postum a little while I found myself improving. My heart beats became regular and now I seldom ever notice any symptoms of my old stomach trouble at all. My nerves are steady and my memory decidedly better than while I was using coffee.

"I like the taste of Postum fully as well as coffee."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular (must be boiled).

Instant Postum, doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

THAT GOLDEN HAZE

It Appears on the Distant Horizon to Lead Strugglers to Success.

By AUGUSTUS GOODRICH SHERWIN.

"Miss Ainslee," spoke the stenographer of the editor, coming into the ante-room where two persons sat.

One of them, the lady, arose. The other, a young man who had been silently, speculatively observing her, saw her lip quiver as the messenger from the sanctum beyond handed her a roll which Ronald Dawson well knew to be manuscript—rejected manuscript—for he could read the blighted hope, the sinking soul in the sensitive, delicate face of its recipient.

Everything about her, despite the well-mended glove tips, the made-over last season's hat, the shabby but neatly-fitting shoes, told that she was a lady. She was too serious just now to show out the kindliness that lurked back of her anxious eyes, but intelligence and soulfulness had attracted him, and he could not keep his glance from her, nor repress his earnest pity as she left the room.

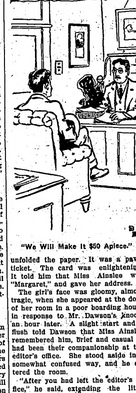
Then his mind reverted to his own affairs, as in a few moments his turn came. The messenger approached Dawson. It was to say:

"No specials this week, Mr. Dawson."

The young man, writer and amateur artist, shrugged his shoulders resignedly and started to leave the room. A somewhat bitter expression crossed his face, as he reflected over the hard and disappointing ways he had elected to follow because there was poetry in his soul, and he could not resist its urgings. Then his foot struck some small object and pushed it along the floor in front of him. Dawson picked it up, to find it to be a small netted purse.

"Why, this must belong to the young lady who was just here," he decided. "It came from just where she sat. Miss Ainslee? I wonder what her address is?"

He opened the purse. It contained a few pieces of silver, a scrap of paper and a folded card. An expression of real pain darkened his brow as he unfolded the paper. It was a pawn ticket. The card was enlightening. It told him that Miss Ainslee was "Margaret," and gave her address.



"We Will Make It $50 Apiece."

The girl's face was gloomy, almost tragic, when she appeared at the door of her room in a poor boarding house in response to Mr. Dawson's knock, an hour later. A slight start and a flush told Dawson that Miss Ainslee remembered him, brief and casual as had been their companionship at the editor's office. She stood aside in a somewhat confused way, and he entered the room.

"After you had left the editor's office," he said, extending the little purse, "I found this."

"Oh, thank you," responded Miss Ainslee, "although it is of little value to give you all this trouble. Will you be seated?"

Dawson glanced about the mean-appearing room, kept neatly, however, for all its sparse furnishment. They looked at one another. Then a smile crossed his face.

"There is not another word for me to say, and no excuse in the world for me to linger," he said in his quaint, impetuous way, "yet I feel as if we need to say something to one another. I am sure it is because we are both, what shall I say—writers? Further than that, it is because we are both—discouraged?"

"Oh, never that!" declared Margaret Ainslee, brightening up. "Of course it is uphill work, but it may not be always so. I have some encouragement. I have some hopes of steady employment. If I could get some series or department work, I could fill in occasional sketches and make quite a modest competence."

Dawson sighed. He could not help it. It was a forlorn life, his hack writing. Still, he felt he must not darken the sublime faith of this fair, struggling girl, who insisted on seeing a golden haze on the distant horizon.

He told her of the wants of various publications as he had gathered them. There was an especial demand for Turkish and Mexican sketches just now. At the end of an hour's chat he left Miss Ainslee better posted than she had ever been as to the uncertain field of literature, and was brighter himself for such sweet companionship.

Dawson did not see his little friend during the next month. He had no excuse for calling upon her, although he would have liked to do so. One day he received a letter from a local magazine, asking him to call.

"You are Mr. Dawson, the writer of this series of stories based on the Mexican revolution?" questioned the editor, moving a heap of manuscript.

Dawson bowed assentingly. His [illegible] not to be daunted this time, it seemed, for the man of fate added:

"We are very much pleased with them, and have concluded to accept them. The number is just right. We will make it fifty dollars apiece."

Fifty dollars apiece—six hundred dollars in all! Dawson's head swam. He could not speak. The splendors of sudden wealth dazzled and dumbed him.

"Your manuscript arrived just in time," went on the editor. "We had another series offered us from—let me see," and its speaker examined another roll of manuscript. "Ah, yes; a Miss Margaret Ainslee. Her stories are exquisite little gems, but yours are somewhat stronger in masculine color, and—"

The editor paused, staring in some wonderment at Dawson. Before the eyes of the latter there rose a sudden pleading picture of a patient, hopeful little woman, waiting on a decision that meant bread or none for her. He was a man, strong to meet the buffets of an unkind fate, but she—it seemed as though those remembered gentle eyes of hers aroused in him all the nobility of his nature.

"I am sorry," he said, simply, "but I have decided to use the sketches elsewhere."

After that, when the old dreams of fame and fortune came to Dawson, he would close his eyes and fancy a bright, happy face glowing over a first substantial check from a publisher.

One afternoon he was on his way home, when a breathless voice calling his name halted him. He turned to face Margaret Ainslee, radiant in new attire, her beautiful face aglow with contentment and peace.

"I have run a whole block to overtake you," she said. "You are to turn right around and go with me," and there was a ring of joy mingled with tears in her dear voice.

"I am to go with you—where?" questioned Dawson, smiling and glad.

"To the editor of the magazine upon whom you imposed such an open fraud. Oh, Mr. Dawson, you did it all for me—for poor me, and I have found it out! And the editor has found great promise in my work. And I have a position under him, and he thinks, as I do, that you are the noblest man in the world, and a coming author. And if you can do as well on Turkey as you did on Mexico, he will order a new series of you, and—and pay you a retainer in advance, if you need it."

The sun was shining brightly, as if only for those two children of the heart. She had caught his hand in the fervor of her delight at finding him. What could come of it but love, and what of such love but radiant, lasting happiness?

GOOD TRICK ALASKANS PLAY

Visitors Admit "Catch" Relieves Them of Necessity of Spending Much Money for Hats.

Senator William Alden Smith was conversing with a couple of prominent Alaskan citizens who had come on here to urge congress to let loose of a little more money for developing that territory. They were picturing Alaska as a modern paradise.

"Oh, I'm in sympathy with what you want," remarked the senator, "but it is a little difficult to enthuse over a country where it's so bloomin' cold that you don't dare go to the door for fear of freezing the front part of your face."

"But supposing the climate were like the winter resorts south of here—Asheville, N. C., and such places?" suggested one of the Alaskans.

"Why, that would be different, of course."

"Very well," suggested the Alaskan, who was doing most of the talking, "we'll walk up here to the ki—the ki—the little place up here in the street where they have all the weather reports, and I'll bet you Sitka is warmer right now than any place around here."

They went and looked, and, sure enough, Sitka was 39 above zero, and both Washington and Asheville were below 37.

"Oh, well," contended Senator Smith, "but Sitka is on the sea coast. I was thinking of the interior."

"That's the catch to it," laughed the Alaskans. "We fool a lot of people on that. Some days we win three or four hats."

Risking One Eye.

The revival services were proceeding very successfully when a woman in the choir loft became so interested that she leaned out too far and fell over the railing. Her dress caught in the chandelier and she hung suspended in midair. The preacher noticed her undignified position and thundered at the congregation: "Whosoever of this congregation turns around shall be struck stone blind." Two men were sitting near the front. Curiosity was getting the better of one. Though he dreaded the clergyman's warning, he turned to his friend and whispered: "I'm going to risk one eye."—Chicago Record-Herald.

After a Little Figuring.

A man with a liking for statistics, and after several months of hard work, has found that there are 1,700 million persons living on this terrestrial globe. Included in his wonderful array of figures is the fact that there are 5,500,000 more men than women. In the United States, according to the last census, there are 47,332,122 men and 44,640,144 women, or a total of males and females of 91,972,266.

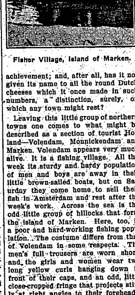
ON THE ZUIDER ZEE

Beautiful and Old "Dead Cities" of Holland.

Once Thriving Town of Enkhuizen Deserted Since Its Harbor Has Silted Up and Its Trade Declined.

Edam, Holland.—No more pleasant spot could be chosen for leisurely holiday rambles than the shores of the Zuider Zee. There to the north, on a little promontory, is the windmill of Hoorn; a charming town with a wealth of fine old buildings, stately homes of well-to-do burghers surviving from the days of Hoorn's remote prosperity, houses with wide windows and elaborate facades. The ancient "Doelhuis," or headquarters of the local shooting guild, may still be distinguished by the carved effigy of St. Sebastian, patron saint of archery, above its door. It is now an hotel, seemingly too spacious for the requirements of the little town; behind it is a tree-shaded open space, where the marksmen might have practised. The beautiful St. Jans Gasthuis—formerly, as its name implies, a hospital, now a most picturesque mediaeval barrack—is Hoorn's most distinctive feature, for, alas! the old Weighhouse has had to undergo drastic restoration.

At no great distance to the north of Hoorn lies the once thriving and important town of Enkhuizen. Of all the so-called "dead cities" of the Zuider Zee, Enkhuizen has been the most greatly diminished and brought low. Since its harbor silted up and its trade declined, whole streets have gradually disappeared; but how charming is what remains! Those empty, silent streets, swept by the salt breezes and bordered by their peaked red-roofed houses, are haunted by ghosts of the past. Here strode gallant John Haring and the bold, rough fellows that were his comrades and here played as a child the painter, Paul Potter, whose famous "Bull" is one of the treasures of The Hague's picture gallery. Like Hoorn, Enkhuizen has preserved in its decline many an interesting building. Yet nothing more picturesque in its decay is to be seen than the little town of Edam, where all the starlings in Holland seem to colect and chatter in spring on the old housetops that overlook the tree-shaded canals. Edam has an indefinable charm, a sense of rest and achievement; and, after all, has it not given its name to all the round Dutch cheeses which it once made in such numbers, a distinction, surely, on which any town might rest?



Fisher Village, Island of Marken.

Leaving this little group of northern towns one comes to what might be described as a section of tourist Holland—Volendam, Monnickendam and Marken. Volendam appears very much alive. It is a fishing village. All the week its sturdy and hardy population of men and boys are away in their little brown-sailed boats, but on Saturday they come home to sell their fish in Amsterdam and rest after the week's work. Across the sea is the odd little group of hillocks that form the island of Marken. Here, too, is a poor and hard-working fishing population. The costume differs from that of Volendam in some respects. The men's full trousers are worn short, and the girls and women wear two long yellow curls hanging down in front of their caps, and an odd, little close-cropped fringe that projects stiffly at right angles to their foreheads.

Of Hinderloopen, the Friesland village, once famous for its art, little survives of interest except its name. Here arose a beautiful and curious scheme of design, characterized principally by a running scroll pattern, in which yellow played a principal part. Every household utensil was elaborately decorated, and the dress of the people was no less unique than their art. Now both have passed away, or survive only in private collections and museums.

Friesland is a land of windy meres and far-stretching peat country; where the lean Friesland sheep and the slim, black Friesland horses graze. Protected from the sweet salt breezes by its mighty dike, lies the little red-roofed town of Harlingen, the northern port, whence steamers sail to Hull. Picturesque and clean like all Dutch towns, it has that glistening, alert air that a seaside town sometimes assumes, as if it were kept fresh and wholesome by the keen salt spray.

The firemen pulled the boy's fishing tackle from the water and found he had caught the body of a man which apparently [illegible]

GOOD ROADS FOLLOW FLOOD

Ohio Catastrophe Promises to Result in Much Better Highways in That Section.

The truth of the old saying, "It's an ill wind that blows no one good," is no less well demonstrated, following the great flood that swept over Ohio and Indiana, than it has been after every disaster the world has seen. In the present case those who advocate the transportation of merchandise by motor trucks instead of by horse and wagon, or rail methods, are the ones who see a great good to come out of the flood, though they were no less sympathetic with its victims or prompt in coming to their relief than any others in the United States.

It is the reconstruction of roads and bridges destroyed by the great sweep of waters that the motor truck advocates are to benefit, according to Vice-President G. W. Bennett of the Garford company of Elyria, O. With the work of rebuilding washed-out roads and bridges completed, Ohio and Indiana will have some of the best truck highways in the country, says Mr. Bennett, basing his statement on information lately received from Garford truck dealers in all parts of the flooded district.

HAIR CAME OUT IN BUNCHES

813 E. Second St., Muncie, Ind.—"My little girl had a bad breaking out on the scalp. It was little white lumps. The pimples would break out as large as a common pinhead all over her head. They would break and run yellow matter. She suffered nearly a year with itching and burning. It was sore and itched all the time. The matter that ran from her head was very thick. I did not comb her hair very often, her head was too sore to comb it, and when I did comb, it came out in bunches. Some nights her head itched so bad she could not sleep.

"I tried several different soaps and ointments, also patent medicine, but nothing could I get to stop it. I began using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment this summer after I sent for the free samples. I used them and they did so much good I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment. I washed her head with Cuticura Soap and rubbed the Cuticura Ointment in the scalp every two weeks. A week after I had washed her head three times you could not tell she ever had a breaking out on her head. Cuticura Soap and Ointment also made the hair grow beautifully." Tanbark as a Fuel.

Perhaps the most important of waste fuels in the United States has been spent tanbark. A rough estimate would indicate that this material generated a few years ago an amount of steam that would have otherwise required the yearly consumption of about 2,000,000 tons of high grade coal. Yet this valuable fuel was at one time considered a mere detriment and an expense to the leather industry. It was disposed of by dumping it into rivers, filling in waste ground and by making roads with it, often necessitating the paying out of large sums for its disposition. This strikingly illustrates a case of how the improvement of a furnace converted a hitherto supposed combustible into a valuable waste fuel of the auto-combustible class, and shows how an enormous waste was converted into an equally great economy.—Engineering Magazine.

FUNERAL HONORS FOR A MARE

Betty Green, a trotting mare destroyed in a fire at Belleville, Ill., was given funeral honors in keeping with her record of 2:10 and with the affectionate regard of her owner, William L. Reichert. The body was drawn to the grave on the Walnut Grove stock farm, by six blooded youngsters, and was lowered by stable boys. The coffin was rose lined. Mr. Reichert pronounced a eulogy after recounting the mare's track achievements.

Perhaps Betty Green's terrible form of death aroused Mr. Reichert's sympathies the more keenly, but the intense love of a great race horse by an owner is a primary sentiment. Maud S. had more friends than any horse in history, being approachable, inquisitive and fond of contact with the many whom Robert Bonner delighted in taking to her paddock.

James R. Keene mourned Sysonby as he would one of his family. This superb runner had the admiration of the east without the popularity of Maud S., a trotter and a record breaker in times when trotting was the consuming passion. Mr. Keene, who never bet on the races, was to have Sysonby's remains preserved, but his only monument is his unique position among American thoroughbreds.

Convicts College Students.

More than fifty convicts are enrolled at the State Agricultural college at Manhattan, taking the various courses offered at the college. They are, so far as is known, the only convict college students in the United States. Few, if any, of the convicts have ever seen the college building, and it will be some time before any of them can see it, but nevertheless they are enrolled students doing regular work.

All the convict college students are inmates of the United States penitentiary here. They do their class work in their cells and mail their lesson papers to the college for correction. Some of the convicts are studying agriculture, some civil engineering, others, mechanics, and some are studying dairying. Nearly all of the students enrolled in the agricultural or dairy courses are men employed on the prison farm or in the dairy.—Leavenworth Dispatch to New York Times.

Absent-Minded? Oh, No!

Two absent-minded college professors were walking together on the street.

"Do you know," said one, "I must have a double. The other day a woman stopped me on the street and asked:

"'Your name is Mr. Kennington, isn't it?'"

"Well, well!" his friend replied, "and was it?"

Its Kind.

"The cream of the general's army was defeated by the foe."

"Ha he! Then it was whipped cream."

It is stated that if one grain of corn could be added to each ear there would be a revenue thus derived to pay for all the agricultural colleges now in operation, and if no seed were planted without being tested, crops would be increased to an amount sufficient to pay the national debt every year.

Without attracting much notice California has adopted an educational qualification for the right of franchise, and merry, merry political doings may follow, in spots. Assembly bill 1135 provides that election judges may force voters to read and pronounce correctly 100 consecutive words of the state constitution before permitting them to vote. Pronouncing those 100 words is a task that might easily stagger even the average election judge.

The farmer actually pays a premium for bad roads. He pays it in time expended in getting to market; in value of drafting animals and the food they eat, and in the extra hand for their care and handling; in increased number of vehicles and wear and tear on them, and in the decreased product of land that has less attention and care. If the country had a system of smooth and hard highways it would blossom like a rose, and prosperity would follow in the wake.

There are but few editors in our state who have not made a vigorous and continuous fight against the city mail order house. This has been done in the interest of the home merchant and without money and without price. If the editors of the land had received regular advertising rates for all they have said against these enemies of the country merchant they could now be wearing diamonds. Now the department store man appreciates advertising space and is willing to take all the average country editor has for sale, and at a good price. What other class of business or professional man would refuse business to help their friends, especially as many of said friends never seem in the least disposed to return the compliment or even appreciate it.

One of our exchanges is responsible for the appearance of the following: A short time since the cow was sad, she scarce could raise her head, bedad. Her hoofs were sore, her tail was limp, her mane and bangs had lost their crimp, and miles she trudged from grass to drink with scarcely enough strength to wink. The owner too, looked blue and glum, and cursed the cattle business some; but since the rain the grass is tall, the cow can raise her head and bawl; her hide is sleek, no bones protude, she prances like a corn fed dude. Her owner, too, digs up the chink, and asks the boys to take a drink. God bless the rain, the gentle rain; it makes a man feel young again. He feels like tossing up his hat and howling like a Democrat.

"No one with any knowledge of conditions in Washington expected the investigation into the "insidious" lobby to reveal the presence of a band of corruptionists. Manufacturers are there, honestly contending for what they believe to be the right to do business upon an even basis with foreign competitors. Here and there amongst them will be found a professional lobbyist. That is all that can be said with truth and no investigation can be expected to reveal anything more. The significance of the whole undertaking does not lie in the prospect of startling revelations. It lies in the change of mental attitude which comes over the people of the United States and their legislatives, all. It is only one generation since a single newspaper supplied not only the money but the greater moral force to fight the Union Pacific lobby. Today the presence in the corridors of the capital building at Washington of a single member of that lobby would be regarded a national scandal.—Minneapolis Tribune.

The Cure for Degeneration.

Attention is just now rather too much concentrated—with the most humanitarian motives, to be sure—on that kind of social perfection which consists in bringing everybody up to an average. It is time to emphasize also the importance of producing and making the most of the few really great men through whom the world mainly progresses, the pioneers and the prophets of civilization and the arts. Of degeneration we have a morbid and needless fear; the best cure for it is not medical science, but social justice. Break up the slums, take the boys out of gangs and find them clean sport and congenial work. Pull down the rookeries, let in the sun and air, keep human life from festering in rotten places and nature will do the rest. Breeds and races may die out, but there are always new ones being created, and nature is herself the greatest of regenerating forces, destroying the decadent even as she checks the superman before he becomes as the gods.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The "Workin' Stiff."

"He is one of the army of unskilled laborers easily mobilized on any of a variety of industrial frontiers," write Charles Phelps Cushing and Arthur Killick in the issue of Harper's Weekly—"an army estimated now at half a million, content to do the hardest sorts of toil at wages so low that not more than one man in a thousand saves anything." When he gets into trouble the "stiff's" hands are his best credentials. "Look at his hands, sergeant," the magistrate says. "The police court bailiff feels their palms and makes one of two permissible answers, 'Soft as a baby's, yer Honor!' or 'Hard as nails, sir.'"

Why Thunder Sours Milk.

It is universally known that milk turns sour after a thunder storm. This has been attributed to the large quantity of ozone which is liberated by the electricity in the air. The experiments of Professor Trillat in Paris do not confirm that theory. He has established that atmospheric depressions cause putrefying gases—normal quiescent—to rise to the surface of certain substances, and in support of his theory points out that odors of all sorts are more permeating after storms. These atmospheric depressions accelerate the decomposition of gases and tend to liberate them. Hence lactic ferment is produced. Professor Trillat has made many experiments with diverse substances under varying pressures and has observed that when the barometer is lowest (during storms, etc.) the decomposition of gases is most rapid.

Kinglake on Port.

Kinglake, the historian, was polite yet frank. It is related that, upon one occasion, while dining with old Dr. Marsham, the warden of Merton, he was asked to give his opinion of some port wine which was supposed to be remarkably good. "I am no judge of port myself, Kinglake," said Dr. Marsham; "but I know you are, and I should like your opinion."

"Well," said Kinglake, "I have three ways of judging port wine. The first is by the color, the second is by the odor, and the third is by the flavor. Now, the color of your wine, Marsham"—holding it up and looking at it critically—"is good; the odor"—here he held the glass to his nose for a moment, and then added, with some hesitation—"is far from unpleasant; the flavor is"—here he tasted it, and put the wineglass down hastily. "Would you be kind enough to pass me the sherry?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

An eastern city meat expert has figured out, that what makes the cost of meat so high is that the people eat too much veal. That instead of eating up a calf that only weighs 90 pounds they should let it grow until it will dress 750 pounds. Now all that high cost of living expert has got to do is to hunt up a farmer that will care for that calf for nothing and raise his weight from 90 to 750 pounds and he has got the high cost of meat problem solved.

In a close and well played game the Plummer Athletes lost to the Thief River Falls Picketts by the score of 10 to 7 on the local diamond last Sunday afternoon before a large and enthusiaitic crowd of baseball fans.

The feature of the game was the pitching of Gilbertson of the local team and with a little steadier support he would undoubtedly have brought home the bacon.

The following gives the line up and the score by innings:

"The Prince of Tonight"

Gorgeous costumes, dazzling spectacular effects, high class music, stunning show girls and dashing broilers form the background of that most popular of musical comedies "The Prince of Tonight" which will be the attraction at the auditorium, Thief River Falls, June 16th and 17th. The cast is headed by Tom Arnold, who is seen in his happiest mood in the title role. The story tells of the adventures of Mr. Arnold as a stranded college youth who falls in love with and is snubbed by a beautiful heiress whom he meets while acting as life saver at "The Breakers," Palm Beach. She coquettes with him and then informs him that minus wealth and position he has no chance at all. But he is befriended by an aged gardener who has learned mysteries of magic from his plants and who turns him into a prince of mythical land for a night. It is understood that if the prince fails to receive a kiss from the right girl before the night is over, he is to die at dawn. The manner in which he escapes the fate threatened him and wins the right girl gives the authors, Adams, Hough and Howard, unusual opportunity link to modern characters with magic and mythical situations. The transformation scenes, the artistic grouping of the host of pretty girls included in the chorus, and the gorgeous stage pictures will prove a revelation. Joseph E. Howard literally surpasses himself in providing the music for "The Prince of Tonight," and the constant introductions of musical numbers offers much to charm the lovers of good music. Among the many song hits are "Her Eyes Are Blue For Yale," "I Dont Want To Marry Your Family," "Tonight Will Never Come Again," "Follow The Rainbow Trail," "I Fell In Love On Monday" and "You're A Dear Old World After All."

Circus

Lovers of the out of ordinary amusements will be interested in the announcement that the Mighty Haag shows are coming Thursday afternoon and evening, June 19, in Thief River Falls, presenting decidely the largest and greatest program of original, unique and thrilling feature act known today to the show world. This vast tent amusement enterprise is alone in a class by itself, without a rival.

Nothing like the imperial performance provided by Ernest Haag was ever before dreamed or dared by the boldest managers.

Whatever your preference, you will find plenty to interest, astonish and edify you; there are thrilling aerial acts during every moment of which of which one expects to see the intrepid performers hurled into eternity, artistic and sensational equestrianism incredible and bewildering athletic and acrobatic numbers, blood chilling jockey, hurdle and chariot races, amazingly venturesome bicyclists, and phenomenal exhibitions by fierce wild beasts. In fact, so numerous and varied are the novelties offered in the rings and upon the elevated stages, and upon the mammoth hippodrome track by these shows, lack of space will not permit each of these to be mentioned. The quantity and quality of the features and such as to really stagger comprehension.

It matters not what shows you have seen or how big the Mighty Haag shows have been in years gone by, this season they completely overwhelm all past efforts.

MILITANT MARTYR DIES OF INJURIES

TRAMPLED BY KING'S HORSE

Suffragette Colors Surround Hospital Cot As She Passes Away—Noted for Daring Feats in Crusade.

London, June 9.—Emily Wilding Davison, the first martyr to the militant efforts of women to obtain the suffrage, died at the Epsom hospital as the result of a fracture of the skull sustained in an attempt to stop the king's horse, Anmer, during the running of the Derby on Wednesday last. Only the matron of the hospital and two nurses were present at the bedside, Miss Davison's relatives having left the building when told that there was no hope of her regaining consciousness.

A few moments before her death, two comrades draped the screen surrounding the cot with the fateful colors of the Women's Social and Political union, which she wore when she made her sensational attempt to interfere with the great classic of the British turf.

Miss Davison had evidently expected to gain the track at Tattenham corner in time to intercept and scatter the field, but was detained a moment by a spectator who tried to restrain her. She reached the track in time to be struck by the king's horse which was running in the track.

The woman turned a complete somersault, coming down across the legs of Jockey Jones, who had been left prone and unconscious after the fall of his mount. She struck on her head and it was believed at first that her thick hair had saved her from more than concussion, but a later examination showed a fracture of the base of the skull. An operation was performed, but the case was hopeless.

Was Daring Militant.

Miss Davison was noted for her daring feats in behalf of militancy. One of her earliest exploits was to barricade herself in a cell, and she was only subdued with the aid of a fire hose. On another occasion she cast herself down a flight of sairs in jail and was severely injured.

She was one of the most persistent invaders of the house of commons, which she gained at one time, by way of the air shaft. Her last exploit before the fatal Epsom incident, was the assaulting of a Baptist clergyman in belief that he was Chancellor Lloyd-George.

An inquest will be held. The funeral will take place in London and members of the Women's Political and Social union will take a prominent part.

WAR IS ALMOST INEVITABLE

London, June 10.—A Vienna dispatch says: "War is almost inevitable between the Balkan allies, according to a Sofia dispatch to the Neue Freie Presse, which declares that the solution of the cabinet crisis must not be looked for before June 12. The Daneff cabinet is expected to effect a reapproachment with the Triple Alliance, and meanwhile a meeting of the premiers is extremely doubtful. Enormous excitement prevails. Servia is allowing the passage of no Bulgarian messages. From today a more drastic 'state of war' will be observed. All houses must close at 9 o'clock at night."

Heeter to Contest Dismissal.

Pittsburg, June 10.—S. L. Heeter, ousted as superintendent of schools last week, after an investigating committee had found him guilty of improper advances toward three women, has left this city for a few days' rest and to hunt a job. Several offers, some relating to school work and others of an entirely different nature, he will investigate while away, but he says he is not planning to settle at any new work until after the summer months. He will contest his dismassal, he says.

Question of Currency Reform.

Washington, June 10.—While the fundamental principles of an administration currency bill have been agreed upon, there are essential differences, it developed yesterday, between Secretary McAdoo and congressional leaders as to new issues of currency. These relate primarily, it is said, to the question whether the government should issue the paper money or whether the proposed reserve association should be authorized to issue notes in place of the present national bank notes.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

GOODHUE COUNTY IS AFTER RAIL HEADS

NEW ATTACK ON ROADS UNDER 2-CENT FARE LAW OF 1907.

JUDGE SAYS IT IS VALID

Charges Grand Jury Clause Declared to Be Invalid According to St. Paul Report, However.

Red Wing.—Judge Anderson of the Goodhue county district court charged the grand jury it might indict the president of every railroad entering the county under a law passed by the legislature of 1907, which made it a felony for railroads to charge more than 2 cents a mile for carrying passengers.

The Penalty.

The law makes it a criminal offense, punishable by a maximum penalty of five years in the penitentiary, a fine of $5,000, or both. The bill was introduced by Senator Schaller, but on account of the railroad rate cases pending at that time and until the present day, no effort was made to enforce it.

The question of the right of the state to make rates and the 2-cent fare law are in litigation, but the law making it a felony to charge more than a given rate has never been attacked. As a matter of fact, it has remained a dead letter on the legislative records.

Clause Declared Invalid.

St. Paul.—The penalty clause of the 1907 passenger rate and freight rate law was declared invalid in the case in which Attorney General E. T. Young was arrested for contempt in attempting to enforce the laws in the state courts after the railroads had secured injunctions against them in the federal courts, Mr. Young explained when, told of Judge Johnson's action.

Mr. Young, then attorney general, was arrested for contempt of court in 1907 for attempting to enforce the two-cent fare and commodity freight laws after he had been enjoined from doing so by the federal courts. The case went to the United States supreme court, which sustained the injunction against the state officers and declared that the penalties in the Minnesota laws were too high. The 1909 legislature then re-enacted the commodity freight rate law without the severe penalty of the 1907 law. Trial of the rate cases in the federal courts began after the injunction restraining the attorney general from enforcing them through the state courts had been sustained and the cases are now pending in the United States supreme court, and a decision is expected soon.

VACCINE FOR RHEUMATISM

First Experiments by Physicians at Fergus Falls State Hospital Successful.

Fergus Falls.—The newly discovered vaccine for rheumatism is being tried out at the state insane hospital in this city, and physicians in charge say the results thus far have been very satisfactory.

The vaccine is developed on the same principle as the typhoid vaccine. Unlike the smallpox vaccine, which makes the patient immune by giving him a mild form of the disease, the typhoid and rheumatism vaccines develop resistent qualities in the patient without harmful effects of any kind. This is due to the fact that the bacteria introduced into the blood in these last named vaccines is sterilized before being injected, which is not the case with the smallpox vaccine. The sterilized bacteria seems to produce the same resistent qualities that are produced by the living bacteria in vaccination for smallpox.

The vaccination for typhoid fever, which was begun last year, is being carried forward on a large scale.

Breeders' Association of the State in Convention for Farmer Pork Producers.

Mankato.—The Minnesota Swine Breeders' association at its meeting at University farm last February adopted the general policy of holding each year one or more live stock meetings outside of the Twin Cities. This action resulted from the general sentiment that the meetings would be more effective in reaching the farmer pork producer if such sessions were held in the country.

Mankato, represented by J. C. Gerlich, secured the first meeting. In order to secure the greatest benefit a practical program was arranged. The program for the two days follows:

Man and Young Girl Elope.

Moorhead.—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Emil Sperry, 22 years of age, and Delia Robinson, about 15 years of age, who are alleged to have eloped from a farm near Averill in this county Saturday night. The girl is a dependent and was out on leave from the state school at Owatonna. Sperry has been clerking in a store at Averill. Saturday night the girl is said to have retired as usual but when called the next morning it was discovered she had disappeared, evidently through a window from which had been removed the screen.

Legislative Commission Decides to Appeal From Decision on Superior-Mississippi Waterway.

St. Paul.—Minnesota will continue her fight for a ship canal to connect Lake Superior with the Mississippi river. This was decided upon at a meeting of the commission appointed by the recent legislature to push the project, in the governor's office.

On May 14 the local board of United States army engineers reported against the feasibility of the project, holding the expense was not warranted, owing to the existence of low railroad rates between St. Paul and Duluth with which a canal could not compete at a profit.

From this decision the commission decided to take an appeal to the general board of the United States engineers at Washington and a formal notification of the action of the commission was ordered transmitted to L. M. Garrison, secretary of war, at Washington. The board of engineers must set a date for a hearing and the entire matter will be reviewed by them before final action is taken.

The Minnesota commission is composed of Governor Eberhart and Judge Ira B. Mills, chairman of the Board of Railroad and Warehouse commissioners. Senator George H. Sullivan of Stillwater has been the moving spirit in pushing the project and introduced the resolution in the Legislature authorizing the appointment of the commission.

If funds are available, a number of witnesses will be sent to Washington should the hearings be had there, to testify as to the commercial value of such a canal.

It has been twenty years since the first proposal was made for this canal. In 1894 army engineers surveyed two routes, one by the way of Rum river and the other by the Brule and St. Croix rivers. They reported favorably on the latter route and estimated the cost of a canal eighty feet wide at $7,500,000. In 1899 another report was made recommending the same course and estimating the cost at $6,012,500. Both reports, however, advised against the construction of the waterway because of the factor of railroad competition.

NORTHERN DEVELOPERS MEET

Approximately 300 Delegates Attend Meeting at Hinckley—Important Doings.

Hinckley.—The Northern Development association, embracing all the counties in the northern part of the state, held a two-day session here last week with a number of excellent spakers present, besides the officers of the organization.

Nearly 300 delegates attended from the various counties.

W. R. Mackenzie, secretary of the organization, accomplished a great deal for the association during his term of office. This was especially evident when the roster of delegates was compared with that at the former meeting of the association, held here two years ago. At that time there were only 40 members present, and the fact that there were nearly eight times that number present last week speaks volumes for the work accomplished by the association's officers in the past two years.

Contrary to the original plan, the movement for a second state fair in northern Minnesota was not pressed on the floor of the convention.

The association called for an entire change in the policy of the state immigration board and commissioners and recommended a public domain department. It also called for an agricultural soil classification and appointed a committee to confer with other state development associations regarding the formation of a state league. Beaudette was selected for the next summer convention.

A convention to consider land clearing in northern Minnesota was set for July 1 at Duluth.

YOUNG BOY HANGS HIMSELF

Body Bumps Against Father of Lad Who Goes to Feed Chickens.

Minneapolis.—When Henry Johnson went out to feed his chickens at his home 315 Thirtieth avenue N., he bumped into the body of his 16-year-old son, Herold Johnson, swinging by a rope from a tree.

Why the son toook his own life has not been learned by his grief-stricken parents. Leaving a party of cousins, who had come to visit him, and who were laughing and singing in the front of the house, the young man had steppped into the back yard and taken his life

South Haven Enterprising.

South Haven.—South Haven's booster week under the auspices of the Commercial club drew large crowds and was pronounced a succcess. Professor Hoecker of the state agricultural scool addressed a large crowd of farmers Tuesday afternoon on dairying. That his talk was appreciated was evidenced by the throng that surrounded him after the meeting, asking questions and seeking special information. Governor Eberhart came Friday.

Determined to Defeat Road.

Rochester.—The farmers of Olmsted county are united in their determination to defeat the proposed building of a state highway from Stewartville to Rochester under the Elwell law.

Prospects Very Favorable.

Luverne.—Prospects were never more favorable in this county for either small grain or corn. The late planting of corn is coming up in fine shape. The ground is thoroughly saturated with moisture.

EXPERIENCE OF MOTHERHOOD

Advice to Expectant Mothers

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

GOOD TIMES IN CANADA

BUSINESS PROSPERING, TRADE INCREASING AND FINANCES IN GOOD SHAPE.

The present tightening up of money must not be looked upon as being in any sense brought about by financial stringency. It is really more a period of stock-taking resorted to by the banks to ascertain the true condition of the finances and trade of the country. Legitimate business enterprises are not affected. Throughout the States there are those who if allowed to continue borrowing, would inevitably be a means towards precipitating something a good deal worse than they feel now. In Canada, the conditions are excellent, and it is safe to say business was never better. The pulse of trade is carefully watched by the Finance Department of the Dominion government, and it is illuminative to read portions of the address of Hon. W. T. White, the Finance Minister, delivered a few days ago before the House of Commons. Mr. White's remarks are in part as follows:

"It falls agreeably to my lot to extend my most hearty congratulations to the House and the country upon the prosperous conditions which it continues to be our good fortune to enjoy. I am happy to announce that the outcome of the last fiscal year, which ended on March 31, will prove even more satisfactory as reflecting by far the highest pitch to which our national prosperity has yet attained. I have every expectation that when the books are closed, it will be found that the total revenue will have reached the splendid total of $168,250,000, or an increase over the year 1911-12 of over $32,000,000. Some indication of the magnificent growth of the Dominion may be gleaned from the fact that this increase in revenue during the period of one year almost equals the entire revenue of the country seventy years ago.

"The augmentation of revenue to which I have referred has not been irregular, spasmodic or intermittent in its nature, but has steadily characterized each month of the entire fiscal year. It was of course mainly derived from Customs receipts, but the other sources of revenue—excise, post office and railways—also gave us very substantial increases."

"That in a period of great financial stringency not only have we not been obliged to resort to the congested markets of the world, but have been able to reduce so substantially ($23,000,000) the debt of the Dominion, must be a matter of gratification, both to the House and to the people of Canada.

"I believe that during this period of exceptional money stringency the credit of the Dominion as reflected in the quotations of its securities has maintained itself among the highest in the world."

Owing to the favorable state of its finances Canada was in a position to pay off a heavy loan in cash without recourse to the issue of bills or securities.—Advertisement.

Peculiar Method of Trading Indulged in by New Guinea Tribe Who Keep to Themselves.

No European has ever been able to meet in their own dwelling-place the Kukuhuhus, a shy, yet ferocious tribe of New Guinea. Other tribes of the country, while they have a great fear of the Kukuhuhus, manage to do a bartering trade with them. They bring salt, earthenware, dried fish, etc., and deposit them in a certain indicated place. They then retire for a few hours, being notified to do so by a curious cry from the distance. The mountain dwellers then descend to view the goods offered for sale. If they want them they put down other goods, such as skins, feathers, and other jungle produce, next to those articles wanted by them. Then they retire in turn, and when the way seems clear the coast dwellers approach again. If the latter are satisfied with what is offered in exchange, they take the goods put down by the mountain people and go away; if not satisfied they retire again as before with empty hands.

RASH ON FACE FOR 2 YEARS

Sioux Falls, S. D.—"My trouble of skin disease started merely as a rash on my face and neck, but it grew and kept getting worse until large scabs would form, fester and break. This was just on the one side of my face, but it soon scattered to the other side. I suffered a great deal, especially at night, on account of its itching and burning. I would scratch it and of course that irritated it very much. This rash was on my face for about two years, sometimes breaking out lots worse and forming larger sores. It kept me from sleeping day or night for a couple of months. My face looked disgraceful and I was almost ashamed to be seen by my friends.

"A friend asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I would bathe my face with hot water and a lot of Cuticura Soap, then I would put on the Cuticura Ointment. In less than two days' time, the soreness and inflammation had almost entirely disappeared, and in four weeks' time you could not see any of the rash. Now my face is without a spot of any kind. I also use them for my scalp and hair. They cured me completely." (Signed) Miss Pansy Hutchins, Feb. 6, 1912.

MAN IN THE MOON

BY GEORGE MUNSON.

"I am sorry, Miss Marston, that you have decided to sever your connection with the observatory," said Professor Blythe, rather sternly. "But at your age I can understand that the isolation of life in these parts is not wholly congenial. In fact, if I may be permitted to say so, I have often wondered that you could endure a year in such a town as Emerald. You wish to get back to the world of men—er—I beg your pardon, Miss Marston, I didn't mean it in that sense."

Despite his five and forty years the Professor fairly quailed before the young woman at the recollection of his faux pas. The Professor was as exact as the charts he drew, and some said that his heart was as dry. But any old bachelor at forty-five is apt to be that way.

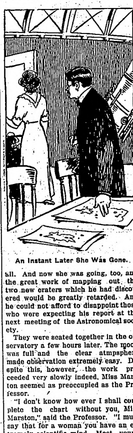
"I mean, Miss Marston, that at your age one naturally desires congenial society."

"It isn't that, Professor," answered the young woman, almost as embarrassed as the savant. "I have enjoyed my time here immensely. But I have decided to go."

"And tonight," said the Professor reluctantly, "must be our last view of the heavens together, then. The legend that locates Paradise in the celestial regions is a singularly fortunate one. One loses, in contemplating the heavens, the sense of the pettiness of earth. I can imagine no greater felicity than watching the stars with a congenial companion."

Then he broke off abruptly, for the second time he had been about to make a "break."

In fact the Professor felt singularly disconcerted at the approaching resignation of his assistant. In the big Arizona observatory he had experienced great difficulty in obtaining a satisfactory asistant. Men had come and gone; but, until Miss Marston answered his last advertisement from Baltimore, he had been unable to make any advance with his work at all. And now she was going, too, and the great work of mapping out the two new craters which he had discovered would be greatly retarded. And he could not afford to disappoint those who were expecting his report at the next meeting of the Astronomical society.



An Instant Later She Was Gone.

They were seated together in the observatory a few hours later. The moon was full and the clear atmpsphere made observation extremely easy. Despite this, however, the work proceeded very slowly indeed. Miss Marston seemed as preoccupied as the Professor.

"I don't know how ever I shall complete the chart without you, Miss Marston," said the Professor. "I must say that for a woman you have an extremely scientific mind. Most young women, looking at the moon, are, I am told, apt to take foolish and romantic notions. For instance, the outline of those areas which we call continents is foolishly compared with the face of a man, who is popularly considered, I understand, to watch over the sickening sentimentalities of lovers. As though the pure and exact science of astronomy could be compared with such idiotic philanderings! Do you not agree with me, Miss Marston?"

"Yes," answered Miss Marston in a low voice.

"Not that I have anything against love," Professor Blythe continued. "It is, I presume, a necessary evil. But it should be faced with equanimity and serenity, like death, not made the subject for senseless comparisons and flights of untrained fancy. Were you ever in love, Miss Marston?"

"I can see that you weren't, and couldn't be," exclaimed Miss Marston, rising suddenly and, speaking with something approaching anger. "Good-night, Professor Blythe."

An instant later she was gone, leaving the Professor quite astonished at her sudden departure.

"Why," he ruminated, "Miss Marston was almost—almost feminine tonight." And this started him upon a new and strange course of cogitation.

"Miss Marston has gone, Professor," said the elderly housekeeper when he descended from his observatory later that evening.

"Gone!" ejaculated the Professor in surprise.

"Gone home to Baltimore by the night train," she answered, looking at him significantly. But the Professor only murmured his surprise, and if he thought about Miss Marston subsequently he kept his reflections to himself.

But the work of mapping out the new craters proved unexpectedly dull. The young fellow who succeeded his employe was utterly incompetent and quickly vanished. The Professor bemoaned his ill luck to Mrs. Higgins. "I'd give anything in the world to get Miss Marston back," he said. "She was the best assistant I ever had."

"Get her!" ejaculated the Professor. "Why, she wanted to go home; she was tired of the work."

Mrs. Higgins smiled sourly and thrust her elderly features within a few inches of the Professor's.

"Do you know why she left?" she asked. "Because people were talking about you and her and thinking you were going to be married. No lady could stand for that."

"Bless my soul! No lady could stand for getting married?" inquired Professor Blythe.

"No, stand for talking about it when it wasn't so. There!" said the housekeeper.

The Professor went away in deep thought.

"Do you think she would come back?" he inquired the next evening. "I mean if—if—"

"Try her," responded Mrs. Higgins, grimly. So that night a letter went off to Baltimore and, ten days later, Miss Marston appeared, resplendent in a new hat and gown.

"Well, I'm ready," she announced. "I feel very guilty to have left you, Professor; that is, before we finished the craters."

They went up into the observatory together. But somehow neither of them could work that evening. And as he sat beside Miss Marston Professor Blythe felt the strangest impulse to keep her there. His right arm, which seemed to have acquired an automatic motion independent of his control, gradually moved out until Professor Blythe found that it was encircling Miss Marston's waist.

"Do you think you could—er—marry me?" he blurted out. "You know, we must work on those craters together."

"Oh, bother the craters!" said Miss Marston. "Alfred, dear, I think I could, only—do you really want me for myself or for the work?"

"For yourself, darling!" exclaimed the Professor with sudden rapture. "When I sit here and look at that old moon, why, he just seems to be watching us and telling us to be as happy as we can, the dear old fellow!"

CROP WATCHERS IN CHINA

Guards in Towers, Who Protect Growing Grain From Depredations by Thieves.

In China the fields are not protected by hedges or fences; the country lies quite open and is everywhere easily accessible. This is not to be interpreted as an indication of the peculiar honesty of the people or of their exceptional respect for their neighbors' property.

As a matter of fact, thieving abounds. Large numbers of the people are very poor, and this class in order to subsist have frequent recourse to stealing. As the time of harvest approaches and the fruits and cereals are ripening orchards and fields are never safe from the unwelcome visitations of predatory bands. The farmer knows this, and hence everybody is obliged to stand guard over everything. Almost every field has its watch tower, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, and these frail tenements are never deserted, night or day, until the harvest has been fully reaped.

In some districts "crop watching societies" exist, whose sole business is to provide professional "crop watchers" where and whenever they may be required. Fields of kaoliang, or giant millet, are watched by a professional "crop watcher." This stalwart plant grows to a height of ten to fifteen feet, and a field of it is a veritable jungle for density and impenetrability. This accounts for the height of the watch tower—a light wooden structure.

The watcher must, if his vigil is to be of any use, be higher than the crops he is looking after. Even so, it is difficult to detect the thieves, they are so effectively hidden by the tall and dense growth of the kaoliang. The object of the thieves is to possess themselves of the millet heads of the plants, and this they can very easily accomplish. All that is necessary is a sharp knife and a quick hand.

Settling an Argument.

The "queer ideas" for which children are famous nearly always are based upon some half-heard, half-understood adult saying or conception. Willie, for example, comes from Boston and does not always find it easy to discover common meeting ground with the Chicago lads of his own age. Not long since Willie had a visitor and his mother, in the course of the afternoon, was horrified to hear sounds of battle coming from the room where the boys were at play. "What on earth is the matter, children?" she cried, rushing in upon them. "We're fightin'" said the Chicago youngster. "We're having an argument," was the Boston boy's gentler version. "But what about?" asked the host's mother. "Aw, 'bout tempests," her disheveled son informed her. "I say it was God made 'em, an' Tommy, here, says it was Shakespeare. So we fit."

Green First.

An Irishman who was too old for active work was offered the position of crossing tender at a small railroad station. He looked dubious as the duties of the office were explained to him and the meaning of the various flags was clearly stated.

"In the case of danger with a train coming, of course, you wave the red flag," said his friend, proceeding with his explanation. A hard old hand grasped his arm.

"Man, dear, it'll never do," said Patrick, shaking his head solemnly. "I could never trust meself to remember to wave a red flag whin there was a green wan handy."—Current Literature.

EQUIPMENT FOR MANY TYPES OF FARMING

Good Old-Fashioned Way Plowing With Oxen.

(By W. J. SPILLMAN, Chief of Farm Management, United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is the intention in this article to discuss the cost of the equipment for the various types of farming. The reader will of course understand that these estimates must be taken merely as estimates. For instance, in the types considered below land has, in all cases, been considered as worth $50 per acre without buildings, fences, etc. The price of land varies enormously in different localities. In using these figures, therefore, the prospective farmer must substitute in them the proper price of land. The farm will nearly always have a dwelling upon it, and it will usually have fences, and frequently a barn that will answer the purposes. These items are usually included under the head of real estate. It will therefore be necessary, in every individual case, to substitute for the real estate items in these figures the actual values obtained by inquiry. The remainder of the items can be depended upon with a fair degree of certainty, as they do not vary so much in different sections. The following is the estimated real estate cost of a sixty-acre dairy farm:

Land, 60 acres at $50	$3,000
Dwelling	750
Barn (for 16 head at $70)	1,140
Fences, $5 per acre	300
Total	$5,190

Usually one can buy land with the above equipment on it by paying cash from one-fourth to one-third of its value and giving a mortgage for the remainder. Hence the necessary capital for a beginner, in order that he may start in and have his farm in full operation within one year, would then be about as follows:

One-third of the value of the real estate	$1,730
12 cows at $50	600
1 bull	75
3 horses at $150	450
Harness	40
Wagon (farm)	70
Wagon (spring)	85
Dairy utensils	200
Implements and machinery, $5 per acre	300
Minor items of equipment	125
2 pigs	6
12 hens	6
1 hen house	50
Working surplus	250
Total	$3,987

The amount of capital thus seen to be necessary in order to start off a dairy farm properly, under the conditions here assumed, is about $4,000 ($3,987); or, if the farmer desires to pay cash, which is always safer, the total capital required is $7,447.

In starting such a farm it is highly important not to buy the cows until one has feed on hand for them. By starting early in the spring the farmer can usually be ready for the cows by September or October.

It is, of course, possible to start in with less equipment than above given, but every item omitted at the beginning simply increases the hardships which the farmer must undergo in getting started.

In the above estimates the real estate is about 70 per cent. of the total capital; the machinery is about 10 per cent.; live stock 15 per cent., and miscellaneous, including minor items of equipment and working surplus, 5 per cent. In four townships of the state of New Hampshire, where Mr. E. H. Thompson of the office of farm management made a careful study of every farm in each of the townships, the distribution of the capital between these items was as follows:

Hollis	95	77	7	14	2
Lyndeboro	43	78	5	14	3
Milford	68	78	5	14	3

It will be seen that our figures agree fairly well with these figures, actually taken from the farm, the principal difference being that the percentage in real estate is larger on the New Hampshire farms than in the estimates above, while the percentage in machinery and miscellaneous is smaller. A slight difference in the price paid for real estate would make these figures agree very closely.

Equipment for a 40-Acre Hay Farm.

Dwelling	750
Barn	500
Fences	150
Real estate	$3,400
One-third of real estate	$1,133
2 horses	300
1 mower	50
1 rake	20
1 two-horse plow	8
1 two-horse harrow	15
1 wheelbarrow seeder	8
1 wagon	70
1 set harness	28
1 baler	300
1 cow	50
2 pigs	6
12 hens	6
1 hen house	50
Minor items of equipment	125
Surplus	250
Total, one-third of real estate down	$2,419
Total, all of real estate down	$4,686

It will be seen from the above that 40 acres devoted almost exclusively to hay can be equipped for considerably less money than a 60-acre dairy farm. The income from the 40-acre hay farm, in those states where hay will sell for as much as $15 a ton on the farm, will also be larger than it will be on the 60-acre dairy farm. But in regions where hay sells for only $8 or $9 a ton an exclusive hay farm is not advisable. I would put $12 to the ton as about the dividing line between hay farming and other types. Of course it will be necessary, in conducting an exclusive hay farm, to use commercial fertilizers liberally.

RAISE CORN CROP FOR ENSILAGE

First Know What Land May Be Depended Upon to Do in Way of Ordinary Production.

(By W. F. M'SPARRAN.)

Inexperienced siloists are inclined to think that a large bulk of green matter is the first thing to be considered in securing a crop of ensilage corn, with the result that from too thick planting or cutting the crop while too immature, their experience in feeding silage is apt to be disappointing.

We are desirous of course, of securing as much weight per acre in our crop, compatible with highest feeding value, but to secure the latter, which is the object in filling the silo, we must draw a sensible limit to mere bulk.

A safe rule, therefore, to follow is to first know about what one's land may be depended upon to do in way of production under ordinary weather conditions. Having this knowledge one's choice of seed should be of a corn that will grow the largest amount of fodder with a good yield of ears, the whole plant being capable of maturing in the neighborhood.

When the crop must be cut to save it from being frost-bitten, while the grains are yet in the thin milk stage it will not make as good silage as the crop being cut to save it from curing.

Careful experiments show that where silage is made from large immature corn it frequently has but little more dry feeding matter than is secured from about half the bulk of corn perfectly developed.

So, mere tonnage does not count in silage. It is better to labor with less in the harvesting and secure more in the feeding.

My practice is to plant a corn that in height of stalk and extent of foliage will produce me a maximum quantity of fodder that will remain green long, and each stalk produce one or more well developed, good sized ears.

It is a waste of time, labor and land to plant corn for ensilage only as thickly as when planting for a curing crop. One may have twice as many stalks as in ordinary crop planting, if on good land, and make perfect silage.

The extreme of too thin planting is nearly as ill advised as the other of too thick. I want from 15 to 25 tons per acre on my land under my farming.

I strive especially for a corn with extension blade system, as in the blades I get protein.

Cause of Wilt.

If you observe a strawberry plant suddenly wilt, you will generally find a nice fat grub at the end of the roots when you dig it up.

Good Breeding Fowls.

Kill Cut Worms.

A half teaspoonful of paris green added to heavily sweetened water or molasses will kill the cut worms, but care should be taken that the fowls cannot get at it.

Watch for Cut Worms.

Keep a close watch for cut worms. Plants that are newly set out may be protected by making a collar of stiff paper and inserting it in the ground about the plants.

Keep the Weeds Down.

Keep the young orchard clear of weeds this season and there will be little damage from mice this winter.

Best Disinfectant.

Take half a day to examine and trim up your colt's feet. Many young horses are injured by letting their feet grow wild.

Saloon Closed by Cat.

"Closed on account of the loss of Scotty's cat 'Nigger.'"

This sign on the door of Scotty's saloon at Ninth and Elm streets, Cincinnati, caused much comment. Two days ago the cat disappeared.

When the cat did not put in an appearance, Scotty hung out a sign draped in green tissue paper and bordered by carnations to tell his customers that he had closed the saloon in mourning for his pet.

Barren Soil.

Apropos of the ravages that time has made in the faces and forms of the veterans of the Civil war, Walter S. Morton, president general of the Union society, said at a dinner in New York:

"A veteran, talking to his great-grandson, a little lad of eight or nine years, remarked:

"'There isn't much grazing there now, is there, sir?'"

Everybody's Doing It.

The premier of Servia once upon a time had a round of official calls to make in the ministry building. His first visit was at eleven o'clock and he had allotted 15 minutes to it.

He called on a certain high official, stood talking to him for what he thought was his 15 minutes, and then proceeded across the hall to the office of another minister.

On the way there he sought to look at his watch. It was gone. He burst into the other minister's office and exclaimed:

"This is too much. Here I come to this place and call on a high official, and when I come out my watch is gone. I will not stand it!"

"Excellency," said the other minister, "pray be calm! I will see what I can do."

Presently the second minister returned and handed the premier his watch.

"What did the thieving rascal say when you made him return my watch?" asked the premier.

"Oh," replied the other minister, "he did not know I took it."

Sick-Room Light.

If there are electric lights in the sick room they will generally be found too brilliant, hurting the eyes of the patient, and not every sick room has the electric lights that can be turned up or down. Make a little green silk bag and fasten it over the incandescent bulb and it will give a good but subdued and harmless light.

THOSE RHEUMATIC TWINGES
Much of the rheumatic pain that comes in damp, changing weather is the work of uric acid crystals.
Needles couldn't cut, tear or hurt any worse when the affected muscle joint is used.
Doan's Kidney Pills quickly help sick kidneys.
"Every Picture Tells a Story"
An Oregon Case
John H. Matthews, 717 East First St., The Dalles, Ore., says: "My back ached so I could hardly stoop or straighten. The kidney secretions became profuse, obliging me to arise many times a night and the passages were very painful. My kidneys became so disordered that I thought I was done for. Doan's Kidney Pills however, went right to the seat of the trouble and for over three years my cure has been permanent."

ALBERTA
160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE
THE PRICE OF BEEF
IS HIGH AND SO IS THE PRICE OF CATTLE.
For years the Province of Alberta (Western Canada) was the Big Ranching Country. Many of these ranches today are immense grain fields and the cattle have given place to the cultivation of wheat, oats, barley and flax; the change has made many thousands of Americans, settled on these plains, wealthy, but it has increased the price of live stock.
There is splendid opportunity now to get a
of 160 acres (and another as a pre-emption) in the newer districts and produce either cattle or grain.
The crops are always good, the climate is excellent, schools and churches are convenient, markets splendid, in either Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta.

The Thief River Falls Times has been changed from a weekly to a semi-weekly; making its appearance every Tuesday and Friday mornings.

The better fight made against the newspaper publicity law has resulted in defeat, as the U. S. Supreme Court on Tuesday handed down a decision sustaining the validity of the law. The decision is the outcome of a test case brought into court by Publishers of the Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin of New York questioning the constitutionality of such a law, and the courts findings will mean that every newspaper will have to publish semi-annual statements of their business.

A matter of interest to teachers planning to attend the training School at the Agricultural School, Crookston, is the fact that the Great Northern has agreed to stop its local trains on the St. Vincent line, at the school spur track, during the six weeks' term, June 18 to July 31. This will be of great service to the summer school students as it will provide a means of transportation to and from the school for those having rooms in Crookston. The train will leave Crookston at 8:30 A. M. and return at 6:25 P. M., making it possible for students to get all the work offered at the session. With this service the school will be able to accomodate a large number of students.

He received $24 as the amount of good he had done the county and state by killing these destructive animals. Mr. Ault found the little wolves, that were about the size of a good big cat, in a bury some five or six feet below the ground. He dug them out and captured them alive. He kept them alive for several days in the hope of being able to kill the parent wolves but this he failed to do so killed the cubs and collected the bounty on them.—Thief River Falls Times.

STRIKE OF MINERS TO BE RENEWED

NEWS OF VOTE COMES AS SENATE INVESTIGATION IS HELD.

OPERATORS TO PRESENT CASE

Numerous Array of Witnesses to Go Before Committee—Guard Who Told of Rifle Fire on Miners' Camp to Face Ordeal.

Charleston, W. Va., June 17.—The case of the coal mine operators of the state of West Virginia is now being presented before the senate mine strike investigating committee. Sunday the attorneys for the operators lined up the scores of witnesses they will produce to show they are not to be blamed for the conditions which threw the Paint Creek and Cabin Creek mining districts into a state of civil war.

Word of Another Strike.

Simultaneously with the opening of this investigation word came to Charleston from various sources that the miners at work in the operations on Paint and Cabin creeks had voted at a mass meeting to renew the strike which for a year has convulsed the coal field.' According to reports reaching Governor Hatfield, meetings at Eskadale and in the mountains above Kayford voted not to return to work.

Representatives of the miners appearing before the senate committee investigating the strike received confirmation of the report that the strike had been renewed.

Would Break Down Story.

Much of the activity of the mine owners' lawyers will be directed toward breaking down the story of Lee Calvin, an ex-mine guard, the star witness for the miners who, on Saturday, told the committee of his experiences on the armoured train, which shot up the camp of the miners at Holly Grove on Paint Creek, just before the last declaration of martial law. Calvin accused Quinn Morton, a mine operator, of urging that the train return and fire again on the tented camp, after the fire from the cars had once raked the little village, and after Cisco Estep had been killed beside his little home. Quinn Morton himself, Sheriff Bonner Hill who was on the train, and others who were on the train will be called by the operators in an effort to disprove Calvin's statement. Calvin will be recalled for cross-examination.

The discussion of general conditions leading up to the strike is the only branch of the inquiry which the committee has left to dispose of during its stay in Charleston. On this point the operators desire to present many witnesses. When the inquiry here is concluded, the committee will return to Washington to concluded its hearings. What the final result of the inquiry will be is a matter which the big galaxy of stars engaged by both sides is discussing eagerly. The committee, under the resolution of the senate authorizing the investigation, has solely the power to investigate and report.

Whether the senate itself has jurisdiction over any of the matters involved and the operators is a grave question. It is probable that as a matter of interstate commerce the senate may initiate remedial legislation as to any "combination against the mine operators of West Virginia—such as is charged in the resolution."

But beyond that even the members of the committe themselves doubt their authority to take any real action.

"The state of West Virginia is not on trial here," is the way Senator Swanson, the chairman of the comittee, states the question. "This committee has no power to try any one for any offense. We are simply here to determine the facts, and report them to the full committe on education and labor, to be presented to the senate for its inermation."

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

OLD LOVER SHOOTS GIRL; KILLS SELF

CLERK AT CORCORAN, MINN.

Hennepin County Village Is Shaken by Tragedy—Girl in a Serious Condition and May Die.

Minneapolis.—Remi De Rosie, clerk of the town of Corcoran, Hennepin County, shot and killed himself after he had tried to kill Miss Hattie Weier, who lives on a farm one and a half miles from Corcoran, and Rudolph Babler, when the latter two returned from an automobile ride.

Miss Weier was shot in the left side near the heart. Her condition is serious. The last seen of Babler he was fleeing for a strip of woods near the Weier farmstead with De Rosie in pursuit, firing his revolver.

Commits Suicide Finnally.

De Rosie then returned to his aged mother's home, bid her goodbye, and, getting another revolver, went into the garden and shot himself through the head.

The shooting was the climax of a love affair that bagn two years ago. De Rosie was 36 and Miss Weier 22. Six months ago Miss Weier's affections are said to have cooled and Rudolph Babler was seen calling at the farmstead. De Rosie, who had lead a sober, industrious life, seemed to be brooding over something, say the villagers, but he took no one into his confidence.

When news of the shooting spread about the countryside, the residents of the little town of Corcoran flocked to the Weier farmstead, and when it was discovered that Babler was missing, searching parties spread out for nearly a mile, beating the woods and brush into which Babler and De Rosie disappeared.

Seemed Depressed Tuesday.

On Tuesday night De Rosie visited the Weier home. He seemed much depressed and while talking about Miss Weier he tried to take a drink from a bottle that bore a poison label. Mrs. Weier grabbed the vial from his hand and tried to calm him. In a few minutes he drew another vial from his pocket. For a second time Mrs. Weier thwarted his efforts to take his life by taking the bottle from him. She has given both bottles to deputy sheriffs, who were sent to the scene of the shooting.

Early Wednesday evening Babler, who had hired an auto at Rogers, called for Miss Weier. They had been gone several hours when De Rosie reached the house. When told that Miss Hattie was out De Rosie left at once, but a few minutes later was seen loitering in the road in front of the house. Ten minutes later an auto chugged up to the front door. Miss Hattie stepped out and tripped lightly up the steps. Suddenly a cry was heard. Miss Hattie turned and saw De Rosie running down the porch toward her. She turned to run and De Rosie shot.

Babler leaped out of the auto after De Rosie and the girl. No sooner had De Rosie shot at the girl than he turned on Babler and fired. Babler whirled and began racing the other way with De Rosie in close pursuit and firing as he ran.

The shooting occurred about 9 o'clock. About a half hour later De Rosie walked into the farmhouse of Aaron Kruger, who lives on the outskirts of the town. "Well, I just did it. I put away both of them." De Rosie told Kruger. Kruger had not heard of the shooting and could not understand De Rosie's incoherent talk. In a few minutes De Rosie left for his home.

Tells His Mother Goodbye.

Old Mrs. De Rosie, the widowed mother, was waiting or her son to return. Entering the little living room of the cottage, De Rosie bent over and kissed his mother. "Goodbye, mother, I am going to kill myself," he said in a calm voice. Mrs. De Rosie made no move to stop him as he left the room. Going to his own room first for a second revolver he went outside, placed the gun against his head and pulled the trigger.

De Rosie, who had lived all his life in Corcoran, had held the office of town clerk for several years, having been twice re-elected.

Murphy of Wheaton delivered an address on the "Results Accomplished by the West Central Development Association." A talk by Secretary G. H. Richards brought the morning program to a close.

Senator T. C. Cashman of Owatonna discussed the new distance tariff law in the afternoon.

CAPTAIN WHITNEY DEAD.

End Come to Well-known Veteran and Former Editor at Daughter's Home.

St. Paul.—Captain Charles C. Whitney, veteran of the Civil war, and for many years a resident of Minnesota, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Fred H. Hills, 1172 Laurel avenue. For some time Captain Whitney suffered from an acute attack of stomach trouble.

As editor of the Marshall, Minn., News-Messenger, Captain Whitney was a prominent Minnesota newspaper man, and at one time was state printer. He was interested in matters pertaining to the Grand Army of the Republic, and was a member of the board of trustees of the Old Soldiers' home. He was a Mason, and belonged to the Elks and other organizations.

Mr. Whitney was born in Massachusetts, March 20, 1846, and came to Minnesota in 1879. Except during the time he was engaged as state printer, he resided at Marshall, Minn. Six months ago he came to St. Paul. Mrs. Whitney was with him. Besides the widow he is survived by the following children: Mrs. Hills of St. Paul, Joseph, who is identified with the News-Messenger at Marshall; Jack and Richard of Marshall, and Frank of New York city.

The body was taken to Marshall for burial. Funeral services were held Monday.

OLD SETTLER KILLS SELF

New Ulm Pioneer, Once Wealthy, Despondent Over Misfortunes, Takes His Own Life.

New Ulm. — Unsuccessful business ventures having reduced his snug fortune to the extent that he was apparently facing the poorhouse, John Gabriel, Sr., 70 years old, completed what he termed his life's tragedy by hanging himself in his room on an upper floor of a business building.

Gabriel was one of the oldest settlers of this vicinity, and by hard work in pioneer days he built the foundation for a comfortable fortune. In later years, however, fortune failed to smile longer upon him, and he was reduced to narrow circumstances.

Utterly despondent, he climbed the stairs to his little room in a business block and killed himself.

He is survived by one son, John Gabriel, Jr., of Otter Tail county.

NEW FRATERNAL LAW BLAMED

Foresters Fewer As a Result of the Present State Law, It Is Thought.

Winona.—Reports of P. H. Martin of Duluth, chief ranger, and George W. Stenger of St. Paul, secretary, at the business session of the state court of Catholic Order of Foresters, discussed the decrease in membership due, it was declared, to the new law covering fraternal insurance organizations.

The reports showed that during the last two years, since the last convention, there was a loss of one local court and 370 members.

The chief ranger urged united efforts to prevent suspensions and the continuance of the office of a state organizer as a remedy. The officers declared higher rates are necessary to perpetuate the order.

Advised Against City.

Faribault.—If the twenty-nine cadets who graduated from Shattuck take the advice of Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul they will not seek a livelihood in the big cities of the country but will live in the small towns or become farmers. "One of the dangers of this country," Mr. Kellogg said, "is overcrowding the cities with the millions of people reduced to the verge of poverty, while we have a rich country inviting our people to those occupations that yield a safe and sure return of industry. This terrible drain upon the vitality of the nation is being made from the best blood, brain and sinew of the land."

To Move Graves at Madelia.

Madelia.—Papers have been signed by which the Catholic Cemetery association has become owner of a ten-acre plot one-half mile east of Madelia. The present cemetery is three miles out of the city and steps will soon be taken to move all graves to the new location.

Fatally Burned At Bonfire.

Ada.—While the children of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Olson of Mary township were playing around a bonfire in the yard, one of the little boys threw a brand at his brother, setting fire to the lad's clothing and burning him so badly that he died in a few hours.

Registered Holstein Sale Successful.

Correll.—The second car of high grade and registered Holstein cattle to be sold in Big Stone county since the West Central Development association was organized, was disposed of here recently. One registered cow brought $175, and a good registered heifer $190. Nine good grade cows ranged in price from $75 to $121. Heifers ranged from $40 to $50. Three bull calves brought better than $50 a head and heifer calves about an average of $30. The sale was a success in every way.

Finds Watch After Years.

Blue Earth.—While working in a field, the son of John Franke, living near here, plowed up a gold watch that he lost while at work in the same field seven years ago. The watch was all right.

Moose Lake.—Moose Lake will celebrate July 4 in elaborate style. The program will start with a parade at 10.30 a. m. A ball game between Barnum and Moose Lake has been arranged for the afternoon and fireworks at night.

OPPOSES FURTHER TIME EXTENSIONS

UNION PACIFIC CASE RESTS WITH JUDGES. ATTORNEY GENERAL M'REYNOLDS WANTS IMMEDIATE ACTION.

U. P. MUST DISPOSE OF STOCK

Court Takes Question of S. P. Merger Dissolution Under Advisement, However—Other Questions Involved.

St. Paul, June 14.—Attorney General McReynolds personally served notice that the government was opposed to giving the Union Pacific railroad any further extension of time within which to dispose of its holdings of Southern Pacific stock, as ordered by the supreme court. In doing so he made known to the railroad's attorney and to United States Circuit Judges Sanborn, Hook and Smith, at a hearing in the dissolution proceedings here, his objections to the two latest plans proposed by the railroad for getting rid of its $126,650,000 worth of Southern Pacific stock.

Matter Under Advisement.

When the hearing had been concluded, after lengthy arguments on both sides, the court took the matter under advisement. No intimation was given whether either or both of the plans submitted, involving a year's delay, would be approved or whether the court would follow the attorney general's suggestion and attempt to dispose of the stock itself through the medium of a receiver.

In substance, the position taken by the railroad and by the government appeared to be as follows:

"We are anxious to comply with the mandate of the supreme court and dispose of our Southern Pacific holdings, but we are unwilling to sell it for the price we could get in the present state of the market." Chairman Lovett of the Union Pacific board told the court

"The supreme court ordered the Union Pacific to relinquish its Southern Pacific stock by July 1," responded Attorney General McReynolds. "That time practically has arrived and the Union Pacific has not complied with the mandate. The time has come for this court to take the matter in hand and order something done. If loss is incurred by the immediate sale of the stock it will be as the result of wrongful action on the part of the railroad."

McReynolds Agrees to Plan.

McReynolds declared that he could see no objection to the proposed exchange by the railroad of $38,000,000 worth of its Southern Pacific stock (a little less than one-third of its total holdings) for $21,000,000 worth of Baltimore & Ohio stock, held by the Pennsylvania railroad. He asked the court for a brief time, however, within which to investigate the stock holdings of the various railroads involved.

Permission to make this exchange was sought by the railroad in a supplemental plan of dissolution filed yesterday. The two plans were explained to the court by N. H. Loomis of Omaha, associate to Judge Lovett. He thought the railroad should be allowed a year to carry them out, if approved.

During the discussion of the primary plan providing for the sale of the stock by public subscription, through a syndicate, Judge Smith asked the railroad lawyer what there was to prevent the syndicate from fixing a prohibitive price on the stock, thus preventing popular sale and thereby leaving control of the Southern Pacific in the hands of the Union Pacific.

Good Faith Asserted.

Mr. Loomis protested that the railroad was acting in good faith and desired no prohibitive price placed on the stock. He agreed, however, with Judge Smith's suggestion that the court should fix a maximum for the minimum price, provided the figure was not below par.

In his statement to the court, Mr. McReynolds declared that he had been hopeful that the financial interests would get together and arrange an exchange of stock whereby the Union Pacific would acquire the Central Pacific, which runs from Ogden to Sacremento in return for its Southern Pacific stock. Failure to negotiate such a deal, he said, left the government with no alternative but to institute an expensive litigation against the Southern Pacific to compel it to relinquish its control of the Central Pacific.

AN OPIUM BONFIRE IN CHINA

Paraphernalia Confiscated From Smokers by Authorities Is Burned Once Every Month.

A quantity of opium pipes, lamps, and paraphernalia for the preparing of the drug, to the total value of more than 10,000 taels, was publicly burned in the presence of Chinese officials and a squad of soldiers on the empty space of ground behind the British concession in Hakow.

The goods represented the results of a month's raiding in and about the city. The opium, which was the native product, and the other articles were piled in a heap opposite the Ningpo club and were thoroughly soaked in kerosene and packed round about with firewood.

This was set fire to, kerosene being poured on the bonfire when the flames showed signs of dying down. Not a clay vial was left. The burning is carried out once a month, this being the second time, and a different place is selected for each fire. The opium and utensils were wholly confiscated from smokers. The smokers were fined or imprisoned.

Six-Mile Depth.

A surveying ship of the German navy has recently discovered the deepest known spot in the ocean. It is near the Philippines, about 40 sea miles off the north coast of Mindanao.

Great depths were found to be numerous in this region, but the record sounding showed the amazing result of 9,780 meters, or 406 feet more than six miles.

The greatest ocean depth hitherto known was found by the United States cable steamer Nero in 1901. This spot was to the south of the Island of Guam, and the deep sea land indicated 9,635 meters—just a little less than six miles.

Risks Life for Cat.

To save a cat which, in a fight, had climbed to the top of a 100 foot ladder, a foreman painter named Robinson risked his life the other day, in Oxford street, London. The cat clung to the topmost rung of the ladder from seven o'clock in the morning till nearly midday. A crowd endeavored in vain to coax it to make the descent. Then Robinson climbed the ladder. It overtopped the building against which it was standing by thirty feet, and when Robinson reached this point the ladder swayed ominously. He was able to clutch the animal and bring it safely down, amid the applause of the onlookers.

"Pleased to Meet You."

The Americans have a polite habit, on being presented to a new acquaintance, of uttering the words, "Pleased to meet you," although upon what the pleasure can rest, or how they know that it is a pleasure, or why an ordinary incident which is not the fulfillment of any anticipation, and which may turn out to be very disagreeable, should be pronounced at sight to be pleasant, I have never been able to understand.—Saturday Review.

Substitute for Grass.

An interesting experiment in horticulture was made some time back at the garden laid out at the site of the King Edward VII. memorial statute in Delhi, India. In order to ensure a green surface at the time of the stone-laying ceremony, "methi" (trigonella) seed was sown when the grass was planted. The "methi" sprang up in about a month and maintained a green surface throughout the cold weather, which could be smoothly mown and did not interfere with the growth of the grass. The ground was allowed to get dry at the beginning of the hot weather, and within a week the "methi" had died out, leaving good lawns in its place. The "methi," belonging to the order of "Leguminosae," acts as a manure and leaves the soil richer in available nitrogenous matter.

Affection Causes Dog's Death.

Natural affection on the part of a dog was instanced in a remarkable manner at Beaumont, in the province of Soane-et-Loire, France, a few days ago. One of the inhabitants drove out of the town into the forest to gather firewood, taking with him the dog, which he left to guard his coat and basket of food while he wandered about gathering wood. In his absence the dog gave birth to three puppies, and the wood gatherer, when he started home, forgot to place the puppies in the cart with their mother. During the night the dog jumped over a fence and ran the whole distance, some ten miles, to the spot where the puppies had been left, and brought one back in her mouth. Then she made two more journeys in order to bring back the other two. Altogether she covered a distance of about sixty miles in the night. The next morning her master found her dead in the yard by the side of her puppies, which were alive and well.

BEGAN YOUNG.

Had "Coffee Nerves" From Youth.

"When very young I began using coffee and continued up to the last six months," writes a Texas girl.

"I had been exceedingly nervous, thin and very sallow. After quitting coffee and drinking Postum about a month my nervousness disappeared and has never returned. This is the more remarkable as I am a primary teacher and have kept right on with my work.

"My complexion now is clear and rosy, my skin soft and smooth. As a good complexion was something I had greatly desired, I feel amply repaid even though this were the only benefit derived from drinking Postum.

"Before beginning its use I had suffered greatly from indigestion and headache; these troubles are now unknown.

"I changed from coffee to Postum without the slightest inconvenience, did not even have a headache. Have known coffee drinkers, who were visiting me, to use Postum a week without being aware that they were not drinking coffee."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

STATE WINS R. R. RATE FIGHT

Long Legal Battle for Low Tariffs and 2-Cent Fare Decided favorably for Minnesota.

St. Paul.—The 2-cent-a-mile passenger rate will be in operation again on all Minnesota railroads in a few days, as a result of the United States supreme court decision in the Minnesota rate case, according to attorney General Lyndon A. Smith.

Meanwhile, every purchaser of a ticket on a railroad in Minnesota, for transportation between points within the state, will be given a receipt, if it is asked for, and will get a refund when the 2-cent fare becomes operative.

Every holder of a receipt for purchase price of a passenger ticket in Minnesota, at any time after June 1, 1911, except in the case of the Minneapolis and St. Louis road, will be able to collect the difference between 2 cents and 3 cents a mile by filing a claim with the state railroad and warehouse commission.

All shippers of merchandise who, since June 1, 1911, have paid the rates demanded by the railroads in Minnesota, and who have expense bills, will be able to colect the dif- bills, will be able to collect the dif- the state commission and those actually collected by the railroads.

Shippers may also collect the difference between commodity rates, fixed by law and the rates actually charged since June 1, 1907. The total of such refunds is estimated at $3,000,000.

M. & St. L. To Meet Rates.

Vice-President W. G. Bierd, of the Minneapolis & St. Louis, which was accepted by the supreme court in the clause finding the Minnesota made rates not discriminatory, says that while he has not yet had a conference with President Newman Erb, of the road, who is in New York, the Minneapolis & St. Louis from the standpoint of service to Minneapolis and Minneapolis territory will have to go on parity with the other roads.

"The Minneapolis & St. Louis road will not be able, as I see the matter now, to take advantage of the exception made where competitive roads go on the lower basis," Mr. Bierd said, "and while I would not wish to speak authoritatively at this time, I expect that we will be governed by the same changes that will affect the other carriers.

The decision of the supreme Court follows:

Opinion of Justice Hughes.

Justice Hughes, who wrote the opinion, said:

"1. The constitution gives congress an authority at all times adequately to secure the freedom of interstate commercial intercourse from the state control and to provide effective regulation of that intercourse as the national interest may demand.

"2. The commerce that is confined within one state and does not affect other states is reserved to the state. This reservation is only of that power which is consistent with the grant of congress. The authority of congress extends to every part of interstate commerce and to every instrumentality or agency by which it is carried on; and the full control by congress over the subjects committed to its regulation is not to be denied or thwarted by the commingling of interstate and intrastate operations.

"3. Even without action by congress the commerce clause of the constitution necessarily excludes states from direct control subjects embraced within the clauses which are of such nature that, if regulated at all, their regulation should be prescribed by a single authority. There is thus secured the essential immunity of intrastate intercourse from the imposition by the states of direct burdens and restraints.

"4. But there remains to the states the exercise of the power appropriate to their territorial jurisdiction in making suitable provision for local needs. The state may provide local improvements, create and regulate local facilities and adopt protective measures of a reasonable character in the interest of the health, safety, morals and welfare of its people, although interstate commerce may incidentally or indirectly be involved. Where matters falling within the state power as above described, are also by reason of their relation to interstate commerce within the reach of the federal power, congress must be the judge of the necessity of federal action and until congress acts the states may act. The paramount authority of congress enables it to intervene at its discretion for the complete and effective government of that which has been committed to its care and for this purpose and to this extent in response to a conviction of national need to displace local laws by substituting laws of its own.

Power Over Whole State.

"5. State regulation of railroad rates began with railroad transportation. The authority of the state to prescribe what shall be reasonable charges for intrastate transportation is statewide unless it be limited by the exertion of the constitutional power of congress with respect to interstate commerce and its instruments. As a power appropriate to the territorial jurisdiction of the state it is not confined to a part of the state but extends throughout the state—to its cities adjacent to its boundaries as well as to those in the interior of the state. If this authority of the state be restricted it must be by virtue of the actual exercise of federal control and not by reason merely of a dormant federal power, that is one which has not been exerted.

"6. Congress in an act to regulate commerce expressly provided that the provisions of the act should not extend to transportation 'wholly within one state.' Having regard to the terms of the federal statute, the familiar range of state action at the time it was enacted, exercise of state authority in the same manner and the same extent after its enactment and the decisions of this court recognizing and upholding this authority, the court finds no foundation for the proposition that the act to regulate commerce contemplated an interference with the authority of the state to prescribe reasonable rates for the exclusively internal traffic throughout the extent of its territory. Neither by the original act nor by its amendment has congress sought to establish a unified control over interstate and intrastate rates; it has not set up a standard for intrastate rates or prescribed or authorized the federal commission to prescribe either maximum or minimum rates for intrastate traffic. The fixing of reasonable rates for intrastate transportation was left by the act where it had been found; that is, with the states and the agencies created by the states to deal with that subject.

Didn't Overstep Authority.

"7. Under the established principles governing state action, Minnesota did not transcend the limits of its authority in prescribing the rates here involved, assuming them to be reasonable intrastate rates. It exercised an authority appropriate to its territorial jurisdiction and not opposed to any action thus far taken by congress.

"8. The inter-blending of operations in the conduct of interstate and local business by interstate carriers and the exigencies that are said to arise with respect to the maintenance of interstate rates by reason of their relation to intrastate rates are considerations for the practical judgment of congress. If the situation has become such that adequate regulation of interstate rates cannot be maintained without imposing requirements with respect to such intrastate rates of interstate carriers as substantially affect interstate rates, it is for congress to determine within the limits of its constitutional authority over interstate commerce and its instruments, the measure of the regulation it should supply. It is the function of the court to interpret and apply the law already enacted, but not, under the guise of construction to provide a more comparatice scheme of regulation than congress has decided upon. Nor in the absence of federal action may affect be denied to the laws of the state enacted within the field which it is entitled to occupy until its authority is limited through the exertion by congress of its paramount constitutional power.

On Rate Making Power.

"9. On the issue of confiscation: The rate making power is a legislative power and necessarily implies a range of legislative discretion. The court does not sit as a board of review to substitute its judgment for that of the legislature or of the commission lawfully constituted by it, as to matters within the province of either.

"The question is whether in prescribing a general schedule of rates involving the profitableness of the intrastate operations of the carrier, taken as a whole, the state has superseded the constitutional limit by making the rates confiscatory. The property of the railroad corporation has been devoted to a public use. But the state has not seen fit to undertake the service itself and the private property embarked in it is not placed at the mercy of legislative caprice. It rests secure under the constitutional protection which extends not merely to the title, but to the right to receive just compensation for the services given to the public.

"10. In the cases of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies, on the examination of estimates of value and methods of apportionment, it is concluded that the proof is insufficient to justify a finding that the rates were confiscatory; and the decrees are reversed with instructions to dismiss the bill in each case without prejudice.

"11. In the case of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railroad company it is found in view of the special facts appearing that the margin of error in the estimates and calculations was not sufficient to affect the result. The decree in that case, adjudging the rates to be confiscatory, is therefore affirmed with the modification that the members of the railroad and warehouse commission and the attorney general of the state may apply to the court by bill or otherwise as they may be advised to a further order or decree whenever it shall appear that by reason of a change in circumstances the rates fixed by the state's act and orders are sufficient to yield to this company reasonable compensation for the services rendered."

Doncaster, Eng., June 11.—Because an innocent woman was charged with the crime, and in danger of conviction, Miss Lillian Lenton, militant London suffragette, surrendered to the police and confessed that she set fire to the Westfield house here, which was burned, with heavy loss, several days ago. Miss Lenton was not suspected of the outrage and she had difficulty in persuading the police to take her confession seriously. Before her surrender Miss Lenton was a fugitive from justice.

ANCIENT CITY TO HAVE FETE

Witham, England, Near London, Will Celebrate Its 1,000 Years in History.

London.—Witham is a little town of Essex, thirty-nine miles northeast from London, which is to celebrate its millenary this year. It has a population of about 3,500 and is situated on the River Brain, also known as the Guith, a form indicating the origin of the name of the town. In the days of the ancient Britons it is said the place was called Guith-avon.

In that part of the town called Chipping Hill are earthworks thought to be the remains of fortifications ordered made by Edward the Elder in 913, but held by some to be of British origin. Roman bricks appear in the old Church of St. Nicholas. The tower of the church formerly was of wood, but was rebuilt with brick in 1743. An old smithy there is pointed out as one where Dick Turpin stopped to have his horses shod when on one of his pilgrimages for plunder. The Spread Eagle hotel is six centuries old and has been said to be the only four-gabled inn to be found in England. Witham will recall events of 1,000 years ago, including the reconquest of England from the Danes.

DOLL SOLACED DYING MOTHER

Kansas Woman Took Substitute for Her Dead Baby Down to the Grave.

Trinidad, Colo.—It was only a doll—a big, golden-haired, "shut-eye" doll; but to the fever-racked mother who tossed on tear-stained pillows in the county hospital, it took the place of another little doll in a Kansas cemetery.

She cared for it as she had cared for the baby which death had taken from her. And as death approached she hugged the waxen image to her breast and begged that it share her grave.

She was penniless, a county charge; she looked forward only to a tiny plot in the potter's field. But her pleas touched the doctors who attended her and a little group of hospital attendants afterward stood beside a new made grave in the Catholic cemetery where lay the woman and doll.

The woman was Mrs. Florence Stancel of Great Bend, Kan. She came to Trinidad two months ago, just a month after her three-year-old girl died. She had quarreled with her husband, she said, and left her home.

One day she saw the big doll in a store window. It was just the size of her dead baby. She bought it, and from a trunk took the little clothes her own baby had worn. With them she dressed the doll. Around its neck she placed a necklace of beads and earrings adorned its waxen ears. It was only a doll, but when her constitution broke down and peritonitis set in, she took it with her to the hospital to remind her always of her own little one. And thus it lay beside her body in the morgue; and thus it was buried by her side.

REAR-END-BOW HAT TOO MUCH

Monkey Saw the Green Creation and Zoo Parade Was on the Blink.

New York.—One of those funny little green hats with the bow behind like a rudder, known on Broadway as an "ingrowing Willyboy lid," nearly spoiled the spring parade of Baldy and Susan and the other monkeys at the Bronx zoo the other afternoon. The bonnet was on Baldy until he realized, and then—

Well, no one could really blame Baldy. He did look funny. It was the big monkey event of the year. Susan was all a-flutter in a new silk gown, Bulgarian style. Baldy had on a new light gray suit, patent leather shoes and red socks. He was so taken with his new raiment that he didn't pay any attention to the hat at first.

A big crowd was watching the parade, when Baldy took off the lid to wave welcome. As he replaced it he caught the first sight of the bow behind. He gave Susan a wallop with it, placed the brim in his teeth and it was all off. The other monks became frightened and climbed into nearby trees and discipline was at a discount. Baldy was the last to subside. Whenever he spied a shred of the hat he became frantic.

A new black hat has been ordered for Baldy and the bow will be on the side.

MUST HAVE KNOWN JOHNSONS

Raymond Hitchcock, the Actor, Tells of a Conversation He Heard on Train in the West.

Speaking of hospitality a few nights ago, Raymond Hitchcock, the actor, told of a conversation he once heard on a local train in the west.

Just before the train reached a certain small town, Mr. Hitchcock declared, a nice-looking young man with several grips, several cases and several umbrellas called to the conductor:

"Mr. Conductor," said he, producing his transportation, "will this ticket allow me to stop over in the next town?"

"It altogether depends," replied the conductor, examining the ticket. "What do you want to stop for?"

"I want to visit some rather distant relatives of mine," answered the young man. "Their name is Johnson."

"I see," returned the conductor, handing back the transportation. "You will have plenty of time. The ticket is good for the next train."

"The next train!" exclaimed the young man, with a jolted expression. "Do you know how long I intend to stay?"

"No," was the prompt response of the conductor, "I don't know how long you intend to stay, but I know the Johnsons."

ITCHING AND BURNING

Iberia, Mo.—"I was troubled with scalp eczema for about five years and tried everything I heard of, but all of no avail. The doctors told me I would have to have my head shaved. Being a woman, I hated the idea of that. I was told by a friend that the Cuticura Remedies would do me good. This spring I purchased two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap. After using one box of Cuticura Ointment I considered the cure permanent, but continued to use it to make sure and used about one-half the other box. Now I am entirely well. I also used the Cuticura Soap.

"The disease began on the back of my head, taking the form of a ringworm, only more severe, rising to a thick, rough scale that would come off when soaked with oil or warm water, bringing a few hairs each time, but in a few days would form again, larger each time, and spreading until the entire back of the head was covered with the scale. This was accompanied by a terrible itching and burning sensation. Now my head is completely well and my hair growing nicely." (Signed) Mrs. Geo. F. Clark, Mar. 25, 1912.

Factories That Float.

Floating factories have become an important part of the development of the forest resources of India. In certain parts of the country forests are only accessible through the water-courses, and the great expense of erecting land plants for the utilization of the lumber resources makes such a course impracticable. Therefore sawmills and other manufacturing establishments are built on floating platforms and moved up the streams as they are needed.

After the lumber is prepared in a sawmill it can be packed in a way that makes transportation much more economical than any system of logging. Plants for the preparation of tannin extracts have also been establish in this manner. The plants are built on flat boats, 200 feet long, by 27 feet wide, capable of carrying a load of 470 tons.

Where Women Run Cars.

The suggestion that women may be employed as street car conductors in Philadelphia has brought out the fact that the women of Latin America, usually thought of as sheltered, retiring and unprogressive, have been doing this kind of work for years. During the war between Chili and Peru, when all the men of Chili were needed at the front, women took their places on the street cars, and Santiago, Valparaiso and several other cities have had women conductors ever since.

Square Foot and Foot Square.

There is no difference in area between one square foot and one foot square, though there may be a difference in the shape and dimensions of the surfaces. For instance, one square foot may be inclosed by a circular line, a hexagon, a triangle or a rectangle. One foot square is an area of fixed form, the four sides being equal and the four angles all right angles.

There is no such reformer as an exacting duty. Note the asceticism of athletes and scouts. The ravages of drink are abated as machinery, with its demand for a clear brain and steady nerves, is multiplied on every hand. Each new stress of business and professional rivalry puts a fresh premium on sobriety and wise restraint.

160 ACRE
FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA
FREE

Your Opportunity is NOW in the Province of Saskatchewan, Western Canada

Do you desire to get a Free Homestead of 160 ACRES of that well known Wheat Land? The area is becoming more limited but no less valuable. NEW DISTRICTS have recently been opened up for settlement, and into these railroads are now being built. The day will soon come when there will be no Free Homesteading land left.

A Swift Current, Saskatchewan, farmer writes: "I came on my homestead, March 1906, with about $1,000 worth of horses and machinery, and just $35 in cash. Today I have 900 acres of wheat, 300 acres of oats, and 50 acres of flax." Not bad for six years, but only an instance of what may be done in Western Canada in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Diminishing Meat Supplies.

There is no mystery about the high cost of meat these days. We don't have to wrinkle our brows over the quantitive gold theory or credit inflation as the cause; having the statistics at hand, the old law of supply is found guilty without the introduction of opaque expert economic testimony.

Domestic meat production is decreasing and population is increasing.

The margin between supply and demand is growing apart and there is no immediate indication of a check on the further widening of the gap. In the last six years the statistics disclose a decline of more than 30 per cent in the number of beef cattle in the country. For the first three months of this year the receipts of live stock at Chicago have shown a decrease of 2,085, 173 compared with the run to this leading market in the corresponding months last year, indication enough that the shortage is becoming more pronounced.

While the diminishing of meat supplies relative to population growth in the United States was suggested by the statistics before 1910, the drought of that year, which was country-wide aggravated the conditions and the tendency. In many sections of the country it was necessary to rush live stock to market because of the ruined pastures and the consequent high prices for feed. Farms and ranges were depleted, a condition which has not yet been fully corrected.

The efforts that are now being made to stimulate farmers' enterest in live stock are most commendable, and with the high prices should prove successful. Another liberal corn crop like that of last year would, however, prove the most effective stimulant in increasing the raising of meat animals on the farm, as it should result in lowering corn prices to the point where it would be more profitable to feed the grain than to market it.

And that does not mean particularly low corn prices owing to the high prices for meat. It is now a question of lowering the cost of meat by encouraging increased production, but as a check against a still further climb skyward and at present market quotations there is a very wide margin of profit in all live stock.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Edward A. Hermanson

The Cure for Degeneration.

Attention is just now rather too much concentrated—with the most humanitarian motives, to be sure—on that kind of social perfection which consists in bringing everybody up to an average. It is time to emphasize also the importance of producing and making the most of the few really great men through whom the world mainly progresses, the pioneers and the prophets of civilization and the arts. Of degeneration we have a morbid and needless fear; the best cure for it is not medical science, but social justice. Break up the slums, take the boys out of gangs and find them clean sport and congenial work. Pull down the rookeries, let in the sun and air, keep human life from festering in rotten places and nature will do the rest. Breeds and races may die out, but there are always new ones being created, and nature is herself the greatest of regenerating forces, destroying the decadent even as she checks the superman before he becomes as the gods.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The "Workin' Stiff."

"He is one of the army of unskilled laborers easily mobilized on any of a variety of industrial frontiers," write Charles Phelps Cushing and Arthur Killick in the issue of Harper's Weekly—"an army estimated now at half a million, content to do the hardest sorts of toil at wages so low that not more than one man in a thousand saves anything." When he gets into trouble the "stiff's" hands are his best credentials. "Look at his hands, sergeant," the magistrate says. "The police court bailiff feels their palms and makes one of two permissible answers, 'Soft as a baby's, yer Honor!' or 'Hard as nails, sir.'"

Why Thunder Sours Milk.

It is universally known that milk turns sour after a thunder storm. This has been attributed to the large quantity of ozone which is liberated by the electricity in the air. The experiments of Professor Trillat in Paris do not confirm that theory. He has established that atmospheric depressions cause putrefying gases—normal quiescent—to rise to the surface of certain substances, and in support of his theory points out that odors of all sorts are more permeating after storms These atmospheric depressions accelerate the decomposition of gases and tend to liberate them. Hence lactic ferment is produced. Professor Trillat has made many experiments with diverse substances under varying pressures and has observed that when the barometer is lowest (during storms, etc.) the decomposition of gases is most rapid.

In the early days of its history the earth is believed to have grown rapidly by the addition of meteoric matter It is still growing in the same manner, though scarcely to an appreciable extent, for the mass of meteoric matter added yearly is reckoned to be only 20,000 tons.

When he found that he could swim no farther he clutched at a dead-head that was partly floating in the river. He then sank in about 18 feet of water and must have held on to the water-soaked log with a death grip, for he did not come to the surface again. Selstad was the main support of his mother and younger brother and sister.

RIGID RULES FOR BANKS

Details of the Proposed Law Which Has the Indorsement of President Wilson—Federal Board to Have Control.

Washington, June 20.—The Owens-Glass-McAdoo banking and currency bill was introduced in both houses of congress today.

This bill, which has the approval of President Wilson, may be modified in some particulars during its consideration by congress, but in most of its features it will be the law of the land, in all probability, before the adjournment of the present session of congress.

Summary of Provisions.

Summarized, the bill is as follows:

The secretary of the treasury, the attorney general, and the controller of the currency are formed into an organization committee for the purpose of dividing the United States into not less than 12 districts, each district to contain a federal reserve city.

In each federal reserve city the organization committee will organize a federal reserve bank.

Every national bank within a reserve district must subscribe 20 per cent. of its unimpaired capital to the capital stock of the federal reserve bank of that district, the capital stock to be not less than $5,000,000.

Limit on Branch Houses.

Each federal reserve bank may establish branch offices, the number of which must not exceed one for each $500,000 of the capital stock of such federal reserve bank.

Every federal reserve bank shall be incorporated and shall have succession for a period of 20 years from its organization.

Every federal reserve bank shall be controlled by a board of nine directors holding office for three years, three of whom shall be chosen by the stockholding banks, three representing the general public interests of the reserve district, and three designated by the federal reserve board. Shareholders in a federal reserve bank shall be entitled to an annual dividend of 5 per cent. on the paid up capital.

Raising of Surplus Fund.

One-half of the net earnings shall be paid into the surplus fund until that fund amounts to 20 per cent. of the bank's capital, and the remaining half shall be paid to the United States.

When the surplus fund amounts to 20 per cent. of the capital and the shareholders have received their five per cent. dividends, all excess earnings shall be paid to the United States.

Any state bank, banking association, or trust company may subscribe to the stock of a federal reserve bank.

A federal reserve board is created consisting of nine members, the secretary of the treasury, the secretary of agriculture, and the comptroller of the currency, three members chosen by the president of the United States and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, for a term of six years, one of whom is to be the governor, another the vice-governor, and the third the secretary; and three members chosen by the electors of the federal reserve banks.

Powers of Federal Board.

The federal board as empowered:

To examine accounts and books of federal reserve banks.

To require or permit a federal reserve bank to rediscount the paper of any of the federal reserve banks.

To establish each week or oftener a rate of discount which shall be mandatory upon each federal reserve bank for each class of paper.

To supervise and regulate the issue of treasury notes to federal reserve banks.

To require the removal of federal reserve bank officials for incompetency, dereliction of duty, fraud or deceit.

To require the writing off of doubtful or worthless assets upon the books and balance sheets of federal reserve banks.

To suspend the further operations of any federal reserve bank and appoint a receiver therefor.

Limit of Bank's Business.

A federal reserve bank may receive from any of its stockholders deposits of current funds, national bank notes, federal reserve notes or checks and drafts upon solvent banks.

Upon the endorsement of any member bank it may discount notes and bills of exchange arising out of commercial transactions.

Various restrictions are imposed in reference to the extent of the loaning power of a federal reserve bank.

The federal reserve board may authorize the reserve bank of a district to discount the direct obligations of member banks.

Fiscal Agents of Government.

All moneys now held in the general fund of the treasury will be deposited in federal reserve banks, which shall act as fiscal agents of the government.

All revenues of the government shall be deposited in such banks and disbursements drawn against such deposits.

The federal reserve banks may be required to pay interest on government deposits, but shall not pay interest on any other.

The government and state banks depositing in the federal reserve banks shall be the only depositors in the reserve banks.

An issue of $500,000,000, plus an amount equal to the amount of national banks notes which may be retired, is authorized.

Division of Treasury Notes.

Any federal reserve bank may make application to the federal reserve board for such amount of treasury notes as it may desire, such application to be accompanied with an offer of collateral security to protect the notes, equal in amount to the sum applied for.

Whenever any federal reserve bank shall disburse federal reserve trasury notes, it must hold in its own vaults gold or lawful money equal in amount to 33 1-3 per cent. of the treasury notes so paid out by it.

Federal reserve banks may be required to deposit in the treasury a sum in gold or lawful money equal to 5 per cent. of whatever amount of federal reserve treasury notes issued to it.

Service as Clearing House.

The federal reserve board may act as a clearing house for federal reserve banks, and may also require each such bank to exercise the functions of a clearing house for its shareholding banks.

Provision is made for the reduction and wiping out of liability by federal reserve banks.

The secretary of the treasury is directed to exchange United States 2 per cent. bonds, bearing the circulation privilege of 3 per cent. bonds without the circulating privilege. When the outstanding 2 per cents. shall be exchanged or refunded the power of national banks to issue circulating notes secured by United States bonds will cease.

Every national bank may receive circulating notes under the conditions prescribed by the bill, but no national banks shall be permitted to issue circulating notes or any substitute therefor. After twenty years national bank notes remaining outstanding shall be recalled.

Demand for Bank Reserves.

Within 60 days after the establishment of a federal reserve bank every national banking association shall establish with the federal reserve bank of its district a credit balance on the books of the latter institution equal to not less than three per cent. of its own total demand liabilities, exclusive of circulating notes, and at the end of 14 months this amount shall be increased to five per cent.

National banking associations classified as country banks and situated outside of central reserve and reserve cities must maintain a reserve equal to 15 per cent. of the aggregate amount of their deposits. National banks in reserve cities must maintain a reserve of 25 per cent. of their outstanding deposits for 26 months after the passage of the bill and for 12 months thereafter 22½ per cent., and at the end of 38 months permanently a reserve of 20 per cent. of their standing deposits.

Every federal reserve bank must at all times have in its vaults in gold or lawful money a sum equal to not less than 33 1-3 per cent. of its outstanding demand liabilities.

Drastic Examination Provided.

Any national bank making a loan or gratuity to an examiner is subject to a fine of $1,000 and the officer or officers of the bank authorizing it to an additional fine of $500. Any examiner accepting the loan or gratuity is fined $500 and disqualified from office.

No officer or director of a national bank may be a beneficiary of any transaction made on behalf of his bank. Should he violate this provision he will be punished by a fine of not less than $5,000 or by a penitentiary sentence of three years, or both.

Responsibility on Persons.

The stockholders of every national banking association will be held individually responsible for all obligations of such association.

Any national banking association not situated in a reserve city may make farm loans, equal to 25 per cent. of its capital and surplus or 50 per cent. of its time deposits.

Any national banking association capitalized at $1,000,000 or more may, through the federal reserve board, establish branches in foreign countries.

The bill describes itself as "a bill to provide for the establishment of federal reserve banks for furnishing an elastic currency, affording means for rediscounting commercial paper and to establish a more effective supervision of banking in the United States, and for other purposes."

It prescribes that the short title of the act shall be the "federal reserve act." The second section which relates to "federal reserve districts" requires that within 60 days after passage of the bill the secretary of the treasury, the attorney general, and the controller of the currency, acting as a reserve bank organization committee, shall designate from among the reserve the cities now authorized by law a number of such cities, not less than 12 to be known as federal reserve cities, and shall divide the continental United States into districts, each district to contain one of such federal reserve cities.

PRESIDENT URGES CURRENCY REFORM

Public Duty Makes Prompt Action Imperative.

READS MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Business Men of Country Should Be Given Banking and Currency System Which Will Make Possible Individual Initiation.

Washington, June 23.—The following is President Wilson's message to congress on the subject of currency reform:

Mr. Speaker, Mr. President, Gentlemen of the Congress: It is under the compulsion of what seems to me a clear and imperative duty that I have a second time this session sought the privilege of addressing you in person. I know, of course, that the heated season of the year is upon us, that work in these chambers and in the committee rooms is likely to become a burden as the season lengthens, and that every consideration of personal comfort, perhaps, in the cases of some of us, considerations of personal health even, dictate an early conclusion of the deliberations of the session; but there are occasions of public duty when these things which touch us privately seem very small; when the work to be done is so pressing and so fraught with big consequence that we know that we are not at liberty to weigh against it any point of personal sacrifice. It is absolutely imperative that we should give the business men of this country a banking and currency system by means of which they can make use of the freedom of enterprise and of individual initiative which we are about to bestow upon them.

We are about to set them free; we must not leave them without the tools of action when they are free. We are about to set them free by removing the trammels of the protective tariff. Ever since the Civil war they have waited for this emancipation and for the free opportunities it will bring with it. It has been reserved for us to give it to them. Some fell in love, indeed with the slothful security of their dependence upon the government; some took advantage of the shelter of the nursery to set up a mimic mastery of their own within its walls. Now both the tonic and the discipline of liberty and maturity are to ensue. There will be some readjustments of purpose and point of view. There will follow a period of expansion and new enterprise, freshly conceived. It is for us to determine now whether it shall be rapid and facile and of easy accomplishment. This it can not be unless the resourceful business men who are to deal with the new circumstances are to have at hand and ready for use the instrumentalities and conveniences of free enterprise which independent men need when acting on their own initiative.

It is not enough to strike the shackles from business. The duty of statesmanship is not negative merely. It is constructive also. We must show that we understand what business needs and that we know how to supply it. No man, however casual and superficial his observation of the conditions now prevailing in the country, can fail to see that one of the chief things business needs now, and will need increasingly as it gains in scope and vigor in the years immediately ahead of us, is the proper means by which readily to vitalize its credit, corporate and individual, and its originative brains. What will it profit us to be free if we are not to have the best and most accessible instrumentalities of commerce and enterprise? What will it profit us to be quit of one kind of monopoly if we are to remain in the grip of another and more effective kind? How are we to gain and keep the confidence of the business community unless we show that we know how both to aid and to protect it? What shall we say if we make fresh enterprise necessary and also make it very difficult by leaving all else except the tariff just as we found it? The tyrannies of business, big and little, lie within the field of credit. We know that. Shall we not act upon the knowledge? Do we not know how to act upon it? If a man cannot make his assets available at pleasure, his assets of capacity and character and resource, what satisfaction is it to him to see opportunity beckoning to him on every hand, when others have the keys of credit in their pockets and treat them as all but their own private possession? It is perfectly clear that it is our duty to supply the new banking and currency system the country needs, and that it will immediately need it more than ever.

The only question is, When shall we supply it—now, or later, after the demands shall have become reproaches that we were so dull and so slow? Shall we hasten to change the tariff laws and then be laggards about making it possible and easy for the country to take advantage of the change? There can be only one answer to that question. We must act now, at whatever sacrifice to ourselves. It is a duty which the circumstances forbid us to postpone. I should be recreant to my deepest convictions of public obligation did I not press it upon you with solemn and urgent insistence.

The principles upon which we should act are also clear. The country has sought and seen its path in this matter within the last few years—see it more clearly now than it ever saw it before—much more clearly than when the last legislative proposals on the subject were made. We must have a currency, not rigid as now, but readily, elastically responsive to sound credit, the expanding and contracting credits of everyday transactions, the normal ebb and flow of personal and corporate dealings. Our banking laws must mobilize reserves; must not permit the concentration anywhere in a few hands of the monetary resources of the country or their use for speculative purposes in such volume as to hinder or impede or stand in the way of other more legitimate, more fruitful uses. And the control of the system of banking and of issue which our new laws are to set up must be public, not private, must be vested in the government itself, so that the banks may be the instruments, not the masters, of business and of individual enterprise and initiative.

The committees of the congress to which legislation of this character is referred have devoted careful and dispassionate study to the means of accomplishing these objects. They have honored me by consulting me. They are ready to suggest action. I have come to you, as the head of the government and the responsible leader of the party in power, to urge action now, while there is time to serve the country deliberately and as we should, in a clear air of common counsel. I appeal to you with a deep conviction of duty. I believe that you share this conviction. I therefore appeal to you with confidence. I am at your service without reserve to play my part in any way you may call upon me to play it in this great enterprise of exigent reform which it will dignify and distinguish us to perform and discredit us to neglect.

PASSION FOR THE "PARLOR"

Medical Officer Finds Fault With Custom of Using Poorest Rooms for Sleep.

In the course of lectures on personal hygiene at the Royal Sanitary institute, Prof. H. R. Kenwood, medical officer of health for Bedfordshire, dealt with "The Home." Much might be done for the prevention of tuberculosis by the improvement of the home, he said, according to the London Daily Telegraph. Wherever there was dirt there was also degradation. But it was the really invisible dirt in the form of germs in the atmosphere or ground that was the most harmful. It was essential in dealing with these to make the acts of cleansing as simple as possible, and there should be no heavy pieces of furniture to move; no nailed-down carpets, but movable strips and squares and light washable curtains. It should be remembered that there is no such thing as dry cleaning. Dusting was a mere disturbance of particles unless a damp cloth, tea leaves or wet sand were employed.

Was there, he asked, anything more absurd than to find a little house in a shabby genteel street with its bedroom accommodation overtaxed and the best apartment used as the parlor—that holy of holies, with its odor that might be called sanctimonious, and occupying cubic space that could be far better used? This passion for the parlor was almost like the fetish of the uncivilized.

Direct sunshine, with its regenerative power and germicide effects, should not be reduced by heavy curtains. It was the soundest of investments to make the home as healthy and attractive as possible. The cuckoo type of parent, depositing its children at school and expecting them to learn everything there, should realize that the true influences in youth are those of the home itself.

Obliterating Field of Waterloo.

While Americans are observing the semi-centennial of Gettysburg, and thousands study the battle by the aid of the monuments and markers on the battlefield, complaint comes to England that the Waterloo terrain is in danger. While La Haie Sainte and Hougomont still bear the marks of cannon shot, both are in danger of being rebuilt, and part of the Hougomont wall against which the wave of French courage dashed in vain has already been pulled down. That is not the worst of the situation, according to a British officer who recently visited the field. "Tramcars" and cheap fares have been followed by "tawdry cafes" located on the very spot whence the Imperial Guard recoiled. What is to be done? The suggestion is that co-operation of Belgians and Englishmen who would preserve the topography of Waterloo many be effective in doing for that famous field what has been done for Gettysburg, but the first step, it is admitted, will be very expensive. If preservation is not organized there is danger that the strategic points will be obliterated by garden and farm field.—Boston Transcript.

To Train Porch Vines.

One of the best labor-saving arrangements is a device to fasten the strings or wire netting for the vines of the porch. A strip of wood one inch square and about six feet long, with a strong screw eye at each end, is all that is needed. Drive two nails into the upper part of the porch, the same distance apart as the screw eyes; then after tying the strings onto the strip lift it up and hook the screw eyes over the nails. Fasten the lower ends of the strings into the ground with small pegs and train the vines on them.

Teaching the Child by Pictures.

One of the quickest ways in which to put an idea or a story into a child's mind is by means of pictures, and the material available for Sunday school or club work is both excellent in quality and of great variety. There are Bible stories, films on nature study, films illustrating the trades and industries, films dealing with [illegible] tery, sculpture and painting, while in literature there are presentations of the work of such authors as Shakespeare, Scott, Dickens and others. Travel and history are also presented. —Farm Journal.

Holland's Fishing Net Factories.

The manufacture of fishing nets has for centuries been a very important industry in Holland, which in the seventeenth century had a fleet of over 2,000 smacks engaged in the herring fishery. The latest census of the industry shows that there is one fishing net factory at Scheveningen, where the first factory was established, with about ten hands; one at Apeldoorn, [illegible] with about 80 hands, and one at Gouda, with about 30 hands.
